$47,250,000 D. C. Budget Fixed in Bill; Deficit Faced

Senate Sub-Committee Revises Fund for Highways.

Measure Will Fall Short by $4,000,000

Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge Provision Is Re-inserted.

By James D. Secrest.

A District appropriations bill aggregating approximately $47,250,000 and a general revenue deficit of $4,000,000 will be reported to the Senate Appropriations Committee today by a sub-committee which yesterday drastically revised the highway fund items.

Chairman Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, disclosed that $620,000 to start construction of the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge had been put back into the bill. It had been eliminated by the House.

The sub-committee struck out three major highway projects designed to facilitate traffic, viz., underpasses at Dupont and Thomas circles and an overpass along K street at Rock Creek Parkway.

New Bridge Approved.

As a substitute for these projects, the sub-committee inserted $460,000 for an entirely new proposal—a bridge along Massachusetts avenue over Rock Creek Parkway—and $300,000 for various street improvement items.

Upon motion of Senator Thomas, the sub-committee also inserted an authorization for the District Commissioners to install parking meters, although three previous Senate proposals have been defeated.

As a result of the refusal of Secretary Ickes and the Senate Rules Committee to permit Health Department inspectors to inspect Interior Department and Senate restaurants, respectively, the sub-committee wrote into the bill an authorization for the Health Department to inspect all public as well as private restaurants.

Jurisdiction Challenged.

The House sub-committee brought out in executive hearings that the jurisdiction of the Health Department over these Federal restaurants was challenged.

Senator Thomas said that the House appropriation of $5,000 for a study of Dstrict government reorganization plans have been eliminated, but that the suggestion of Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, that the high-

Pershing Sits Up, Feeds Self and Calls for Barber

Tuscon, Ariz., March 2 (AP).—Gen. John J. Pershing, who a week ago was believed dying, awoke today from a fairly restful sleep, ate grapefruit and cereal propped up in bed, and called for his barber.

"The immediate danger appears to have passed," said Dr. Roland Davison in the first bulletin of the day from the bedside.

"The possibility of future complications from the heart or kidneys can not be minimized," he added. "If these can be avoided, however, convalescence over a protracted period should restore him to a reasonable state of health."

The general refused to permit one of the nurses to feed him, insisting on doing it himself.

Lieut. Graves Speeds to Search for Brother, Pilot of Ship Missing in Storm; Scar Gouged in Peak May Yield Clew.

By the Associated Press.

Fresno, Calif., March 2.—Darkness and storm tonight halted search for a missing airliner and its nine occupants shortly after the sighting of mystery lights and a white object near a mountainside scar in the area where the plane was sighted last night.

The scar, estimated by searchers a mile and a half distant to be 200 feet long, apparently was gouged out of the mountainside 60 miles east of here in the high Sierra.

Discovery of the possible clew was reported by a party of 20. Raging storm waters in the north fork of the San Joaquin River prevented their approaching closer to the objects, but at daybreak they planned to fight their way to the area.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, March 2.—Twenty of 21 defendants in Moscow's greatest treason trial today pleaded guilty to far-reaching charges, which included plotting to dismember the Soviet Union, overthrow the regime, restore capitalism and murder Russian leaders.

But the twenty-first—Nicholas N. Krestinsky, once Soviet ambassador in Berlin—desperately repudiated his confession of guilt and hurled the lie at his accusers among the defendants.

Leon Trotzky, former bolshevist leader now living in exile in Mexico, was named as one of the inspirers of the anti-Soviet plotting.

The trial, before the military collegium of the supreme court in the small, elaborately decorated ballroom of the former Nobles' Club, was opened with the reading of a lengthy indictment of the accused.

Retiring United States Ambassador Joseph E. Davies was among the members of the diplomatic corps who, with representatives of Soviet public organizations and newspapermen, witnessed the proceedings.

The presiding judge was Vasily V. Ulrich, who presided over the treason trials of August, 1936, and Jan-

U. S. Agents Arrest 8 in Fake CashQuiz

Baltimore, March 2 (AP).—Secret service agents here announced today eight men were held in the investigation of a syndicate which has been passing fake $5 and $10 bills since January 1.

Two men are under arrest in Newark, Ohio; four in Washington, and two here. George J. Renalli, of Newark, under arrest here, was charged with possessing and passing counterfeits. The others have not been charged.

The agents said $70 in fake money was found in an automobile in Washington after a series of complaints from merchants.

Britain Revises Arms Program To New Record

By the Associated Press.

London, March 2.—Great Britain today indicated the breakneck pace of the world arms race had forced her to revise the staggering five-year program she set for herself last year to make the empire strong on both sides of the globe.

The government announced that the $7,500,000,000 earmarked a year ago would not be enough to build "unavoidable" defenses, in view of the epidemic of wars and higher costs resulting from "continuous development of modern armament."

The report said the government was convinced its own share in the rearmament struggle would "furnish a steadying influence on the present state of international relations."

The White Paper, which will be the basis for an expected fiery debate in the House of Commons Monday, followed announcements of a $115,000,000 increase for air armaments alone during the 1938-39 fiscal year. It gave a broad hint of equally swollen figures for the navy which is sorely needed to guard the empire's life lines both in the Mediterranean and China seas.

Air estimates announced today totaled $557,510,000. Estimates on land-defense expenditures for the coming fiscal year will be submitted tomorrow, followed by naval figures Friday.

The report indicated keels of new warships to be laid in the year end-

10 More Feared Swept to Sea as Long Beach Bridge Collapses.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, March 2.—Southern California's worst flood in decades took between 10 and 20 lives tonight, after four days of record-breaking rains which turned highways and avenues into rivers, cut Los Angeles off from the world by air, rail and trunk highway and caused property damage running into the millions.

Thousands were marooned or forced to flee, bringing an enormous relief crisis.

Bridge Collapses.

A foot bridge across the Los Angeles River, near the ocean, west of Long Beach, collapsed and carried men and women out to sea. They were among a crowd which had been watching the flood.

Lloyd Clark, a sailor from the U. S. S. California, said three uniformed sailors, two women, four other men and a boy were hurled into the water. Other witnesses were sure of four. Boats from the U. S. S. Houston, anchored nearby, were launched and looked for bodies, aided by the warship's searchlights.

The known dead:

[John Croft, 50, Long Beach; P. E. Kay, 24, Long Beach; Lynn Stewart, 24, a tourist from New York, and Thomas W. Munday, 40, of Long Beach, were named by the United Press as known drowned at the bridge.—Editor's note.]

Admiral Claude Bloch told Long Beach police an elderly man, whose name was not given, was rescued by a shore boat of the battleship Utah 3 miles at sea.

He had grasped a timber from the collapsing bridge and was catapulted into the ocean by the raging current. The river, ordinarily dry, was flowing at a rate of 25,000-second feet.

In Seaside Hospital at Long Beach were Lloyd Folkstead, 26, and William Munholland, 48, of Long Beach, suffering from exposure after they were picked up by naval shore boats.

"We were pitched into the flood waters," Munholland told police. "I let go of the board I had been clinging to and thought I surely would drown."

Then, he said, a naval boat picked him up.

Folkstead said he grabbed a log before the torrent rushed him into the sea.

"There was a youngster, not more than 12 years of age, standing by me when the crash came," said Folkstead. "I saw him sink."

At San Bernardino, three men, a woman and a boy were believed to have drowned in Lytle Creek, turned into a raging flood by a

House Gets Bill to Ease Taxes Today

Passage by Wednesday Goal of Leaders to Help Business.

Most Members Unable to Comprehend Measure's Technical Phrases.

By Robert C. Albright.

Sped forward by claims of "very substantial stimulation to business," the Administration's long-heralded tax modification bill today will make its bow to a House that does not understand its highly technical proposals, but is anxious to take steps to check the recession.

Passage by next Wednesday was the leadership goal, as Representative Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina, raw-boned chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, prepared to take the floor at noon today to explain proposed easing of undivided profits tax and capital gains burdens.

Some Democratic criticism of the bill as "disappointing" broke out in the House last night, but leaders faced a possible setback on only one feature—proposed penalty taxation of "closely held" or family corporations earning more than $75,000.

Sharp condemnation of this punitive section was incorporated in the majority report on the bill as the "separate views" of Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, and Arthur P. Lamneck, of Ohio, Democrats.

"Principles Violated."

Under liberal rules that permit free amendment, they will sponsor a motion to strike it from the text. A final minority motion to send the bill back to committee may be based either on this penalty section or a Republican motion to completely repeal the undivided profits tax. Only one recommit motion is permitted, and no agreement had been reached last night between Republicans who condemn the whole bill and Democrats who are fighting only the penalty section.

McCormack and Lamneck, who believe there is sufficient sentiment in the House to override the committee on the penalty proviso, declared it "violates all sound principles of taxation" and "is inconsistent with sound financing."

"Title 1-B will prevent re-employment and will increase unemployment," they said in their statement. This proposal will definitely retard the efforts of small and medium-sized operating corporations to gain in stature. The imposition of this tax would result in the position of large operating becoming more insecure and in the encouragement of monopoly all at the expense of corporations affected."

While Lamneck and McCormack confined their attack to this section,

Dad, Please Pay, Kidnaped Boy Begs His Father

New Rochelle, N. Y., March 2. (AP). A note in the schoolboy handwriting of 12-year-old kidnaped Peter Levine, begging "Dad" to pay the $60,000 ransom demanded, turned up today as the father continued his efforts to communicate with the abductors.

"Dear Dad," he wrote, "please give these men the money. I have a bad cold. Peter."

That, the boy's first known communication with his father, was on the back of a third ransom letter, reported found on a vacant lot adjoining the synagogue of Rabbi Abraham Nowak.

The demand instructed the father, Murray Levine, a Fifth avenue (New York) lawyer, to drop a package of bank notes of $10, $20, $50 and $100 denominations at a street light pole in The Bronx.

'War Profits' Bill Is Assailed As a 'Blueprint for Fascism'

Bv Sidney Olson.

In one of the most violently-worded attacks on a bill in contemporary Congressional history, a three-man minority yesterday denounced the Sheppard-May "war profits" bill as a "blueprint for Fascism," and as "against the interest of business, of labor and the veteran."

The assault, in the form of a minority report, made by Representatives Maury Maverick (Democrat), of Texas; Paul Kvale (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, and C. Arthur Anderson (Democrat), of Missouri, followed a day of incessant developments in the field of national defense.

The chief of naval war plans, Capt. Royal E. Ingersoll, revealed the Navy's defense program requires a 40-ship merchant marine fleet of fast passenger vessels, easily transformable into auxiliaries, with 16 maintained at all times on the Pacific Coast.

It was learned the Navy Department, acting on orders approved by President Roosevelt on December 31, rigidly tightened up secrecy regulations throughout the Navy, extending the ban on "leaks" to all ships and shore stations personnel.

The House Naval Affairs Committee, nearing the end of long labors on the $1,171,000,000 fleet expansion bill, killed an amendment by a 16-6 vote which would have restricted American naval operations to an area within theoretical defense lines drawn in mid-Pacific and mid-Atlantic.

The committee also defeated an amendment ordering immediate withdrawal of all American naval vessels from China.

Senator Lynn J. Frazier (Republican), North Dakota, introduced a bill requiring immediate withdrawal of all American citizens,

TVA Chairman Accuses Colleagues

"Honesty, openness, decency and fairness."

"There are certain fundamental decencies and standards of integrity and propriety in public life which are more important to civilized society than any particular Government program."—Arthur E. Morgan.

Sen. Berry's Rejected Marble Claim Made Basis of Attack.

Discord Stressed In New Deal Body

By Franklyn Waltman.

Striking out sharply at his two fellow-members of the Tennessee Valley Authority, stormy petrel of the New Deal, Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, its chairman, last night invited a sweeping investigation of that agency by a joint committee of House and Senate.

Based on the circumstances attending Senator George L. Berry's marble claim against the TVA, Morgan's assault, contained in a lengthy and documented statement to the press, was aimed chiefly at David E. Lilienthal and Dr. Harcourt A. Morgan, his fellow-members.

Chairman Morgan and Lilienthal have been in sharp disagreement regarding TVA policies for several years, but until last night the controversy has been veiled from public view. With the rejection by a Federal district court commission of the Berry marble claim, Chairman Morgan decided to bring the controversy into the open and to strike out with both fists at his foes within the TVA.

Dissension Revealed.

From the statement made public last night by the TVA chairman it was apparent there exists in that agency greater dissension than has marked any New Deal body, or for that matter any agency of the Federal Government, in years. So blunt was Chairman Morgan's attack on his colleagues that apparently any reconciliation among the present TVA members is impossible.

The chairman asserted the manner in which the other two members conducted the business of the TVA frequently created for him a dilemma in which he was forced to choose between his desire to support the New Deal and the TVA program and his belief that "there are certain fundamental decencies and standards of integrity and propriety in public life which are more important to civilized society than any particular Government program."

Cites Berry Marble Case.

"The Berry marble case," he asserted, "represents the kind of difficulty with which, as chairman of the TVA Board, I have been faced in the effort to maintain good standards of public service. To a steadily increasing degree I have contended with an attitude of conspiracy, secretiveness and bureaucratic manipulation, which has made the proper and effective conduct of TVA business increasingly difficult.

"During this period the public has been steadily, and I believe purposely, led to believe that the difficulties within the TVA have been due primarily to differences as to power policy, or to just another 'family quarrel.' The real difficulty has been in the effort to secure honesty, openness, decency and fairness in government. The Berry marble case, as I have said, is an instance of this difficulty."

The Associated Press reported from Knoxville later last night that no official source within the TVA would comment on the Morgan accusations. Lilienthal was reported to be en route to Washington and Harcourt Morgan was said to be on a speaking tour, with an unknown itinerary. Earlier in the day James L. Fly, TVA general counsel, issued a statement asserting that the rejection of the Berry marble claim

Walsh Opens Fight in Senate On One-Man Civil Service Rule

Objectives of Reorganization Called 'Mirage;' Foes Claim Growing Support in Third Day of Drive to Amend Bill.

A fight to maintain the three-man Civil Service Commission in control of the Federal merit system was launched in the Senate yesterday by Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts.

Walsh called one-man personnel control objectives a "mirage" and assailed Administration arguments for a single civil service administrator as "flimsy."

It was the third day of a bi-partisan drive in the Senate to drastically amend the Administration's reorganization bill, and civil service recommendations of the President were subjected to a damaging attack.

Close Vote Expected.

The Massachusetts Senator, who has joined with Chairman William J. Bulow, of the Senate Civil Service Committee, and Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, in an amendment to continue the present Civil Service Commission, claimed growing support.

The Walsh-Bulow-Clark amendment, designed to knock out of the bill proposed central control of Federal personnel under the President, may provide the first test of opposition strength against broad reorganization proposals. Informal polls indicated the vote on this section will be close.

"In one breath," said Walsh, "it is argued that a one-man administrator with a long term of office will be independent of the executive and therefore preferable to the present commission, and in the next breath they argue that the powers under the civil service law are executive powers, and these powers ought 'to be placed in the hands of the Chief Executive' and the reorganization bill seeks to accomplish that purpose.

Calls Excuse "Flimsy."

"Now I submit that these contentions provide a very flimsy excuse for the abolition of the present commission and the substitution of a new one-man agency."

Walsh asked if it is "in the interest of democratic government to vest in one officer, nonelected and nonresponsible by appointment to a President, or by confirmation by a particular Senate, the power to make

The Foxes Go on a Spree While McNutt's Cocktails Irk the Ministers.

New Albany, Ind., March 2 (AP).—Drunken foxes are preying on farms near Lanesville, 15 miles west of here. One farmer was bitten by a fox he surprised in a chicken house.

"The foxes evidently are stuffing themselves with brewery slop," one farmer said. "It makes them reckless. They go places they never went before."

Indianapolis, March 2 (AP).—The reception for Paul V. McNutt in Washington a week ago brought a plea today from Indianapolis Methodist Episcopal ministers that the University of Indiana consider no one for its presidency "who sanctions or uses intoxicating liquors."

Committeemen named by the ministers to convey the request to university trustees said the action grew out of the serving of cocktails at the reception for McNutt. Former Gov. McNutt, now high commissioner to the Philippines, has been mentioned for the university presidency, now vacant.

Dr. Cornell's treatment for cancer calls for the injection of ovarian and testicular extract of cattle into cancer patients.

Social Security Board Drops Pension Grants to Oklahoma

The Social Security Board yesterday ordered all further Federal grants be withheld from Oklahoma.

The grants will be resumed when the board is "satisfied that in the administration of the Oklahoma plans for old age assistance, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children there is no longer failure to comply substantially with the provisions of the social security act."

In 15 separate findings of fact, the board severely criticized the "gross inefficiency of the administration of public assistance in this State."

On the basis of these findings of fact the board concluded that the State welfare commission had failed to comply with the act on four distinct requirements as follows:

"With such provisions as are necessary to assure the correctness and verification of reports to the Social Security Board by the State agency.

"Such methods of administration as are necessary for the efficient operation of the plans.

Plans administered or supervised by a single State agency.

"Granting to any individual whose claim for assistance is denied an opportunity for a fair hearing before the State agency."

Highlights of 15 findings of inefficient administration are:

A total of $685,000 has been irregularly spent.

The State welfare commission has failed to clearly define its policies.

In practice there is no clear delegation of authority.

Shorten Hours To Boost Jobs, Mill Head Says

35-Hour Work Week for 60-Day Trial Suggested to Senate Group.

By the Associated Press.

A business man told a Senate committee yesterday that Congress could solve the problem of unemployment by legislation shortening hours to absorb 9,000,000 jobless into industry.

Austin T. Levy, Harrisville (R. I.) woolen mill operator, suggested to the unemployment committee that a law be passed reducing the work week to 35 hours for a trial period of 60 days.

Wages would be maintained at the level of January 1, 1938, except that employes and employers would be permitted to negotiate changes.

If this failed to absorb all jobless except the 3,000,000 he estimated were "normally unemployed," further reductions in hours could be made until all were put to work.

By maintaining wages, he said the purchasing power of the Nation would be increased, which, in itself, would add to employment.

As a brake, he suggested that whenever unemployment dropped to less than 3,000,000 persons, hours would be lengthened. This would not be done, however, without increasing wages.

Levy's suggestions were made after two other businessmen had testified that business could do little to combat the present slump until governmental "restrictions" were lifted and "punitive" taxation abandoned.

George H. Houston, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, urged removal of restrictions on the flow of capital and "revival of the American spirit of enterprise."

Ralph E. Flanders, member of the President's Business Advisory Council, told the committee bluntly that industry "is now completely helpless before Government."

"Why?" interjected Chairman Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina.

"The Government has its fingers on practically every element of business," replied Flanders.

Politics and People

Reorganization Bill Improved by Byrd, But Still Would Create Virtual Dictatorship.

By Franklyn Waltman

Thanks to the virtually single-handed and constant fight made by Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, the so-called Government reorganization bill now pending before the Senate is a vast improvement over the original measure drafted by the President's Committee on Administrative Management—the Brownlow committee.

WALTMAN.

Improved though the bill has become, it remains, nevertheless, a dangerous and iniquitous piece of legislation. Under the guise of making the Federal Government more efficient—all pretense of economy has frankly been disavowed—this measure, if passed in its present form, would make the President a virtual dictator of the United States until July 1, 1940. Congress in effect, by enactment of this measure as it now stands, would hand Mr. Roosevelt a blank authorization to do as he pleases—and I mean do as he pleases.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt pleases to do things contrary to the will of Congress—whether he would assume dictatorial powers—is beside the point. Until the President, whoever he is, acts, it is out of order to impute to him unworthy intentions. The point is that living as we do under a constitutional and representative republican form of government, Congress should never yield to Mr. Roosevelt or any President the powers conferred by this bill for almost two and one-half years.

And, once implications of the pending bill are fully understood, I do not believe Congress will yield such power. Its attitude toward the Supreme Court reorganization bill, once that measure was fully understood, is the basis for that belief. The powers delegated by this bill, moreover, could be used in a manner far more subversive of constitutional government than the provisions of the Supreme Court program.

The danger in regard to this legislation is that the implications will not be understood, or, if they are, appreciated. In the first place, there is almost universal agreement that the Federal Government sorely needs re-organizing. It is a worthy motive, just as the claim originally made on behalf of the Supreme Court proposal, namely to improve judicial efficiency, was a worthy motive.

Secondly, a general state of ennui toward this measure exists on Capitol Hill. It has been before Congress for more than a year and in this case familiarity has bred indifference. The fight needs to be dramatized in order to wake up the country. If everything else fails, the opponents of this measure should determine to force a debate on it, at least as lengthy as that forced on the anti-lynching bill.

Thirdly, a precedent can be and is claimed for this legislation, something which was impossible in regard to the Supreme Court program. In the spring of 1933 Congress authorized the President, without further ratification by Congress, to transfer, regroup and consolidate both executive and independent agencies of the Federal Government and their functions, very much like the pending bill does, except that the present measure places independent agencies beyond the President's reach.

But, while the 1933 legislation in this last respect went further than the pending measure, it did not also propose one-man control over the Civil Service Commission nor did it jettison the present Congressional control over expenditures as the present bill does.

Even aside from these differences—and they are important—the precedent cited for the pending bill, however, is not a vadid argument for its passage. Indeed, it is an argument against passage of such legislation. The proper answer is that the 1933 legislation should not have been passed.

Justification for Congress departing from sound constitutional practice in 1933 may be found in the spirit of that period. Emergency conditions confronted the country, as Congress pointed out in enacting the legislation. The legislation was inspired by the only genuine demonstration of the desire of Mr. Roosevelt and Congress to bring Federal finances into balance. Such a purpose is not claimed now. On the contrary, Mr. Roosevelt has warned us not to expect any economies from his reorganization plan.

But over and above all of that, we have become—or should have become—a wiser people since that action was taken in 1933. In the intervening five years we have been given a new understanding of what the dictatorial and totalitarian government means. In 1933 few contended that democracy was in jeopardy. Today that is a prevalent view and no less an authority than President Roosevelt constantly has warned we must be vigilant and alert to preserve the representative form of government.

Let it be assumed that President Roosevelt's use of the power conferred by this bill will advance, rather than retard, democracy. But the possibility exists for a misuse of power. In some future year the precedent created this year may be used as an argument for the delegation of similar or more extensive power to a President who is not as devoted to the democratic ideal as Mr. Roosevelt professes to be—just as the precedent established in 1933 is cited as justification for greater delegation of power.

Obviously the foregoing has been general and categorical. It was not intended to be more. It was intended to be a statement of principles—an introductory statement—to an analysis of the pending bill and a statement of facts to which this column will be dedicated during the next few days. Nothing at this time could be more important than that this bill be understood.

Little Men Resent Aid of Underlings, Roper Study Finds

By the Associated Press.

Small business men don't mind listening to President Roosevelt, but they want "deep silence from Washington underlings," Secretary Roper told the White House yesterday.

He said many of the persons who wrote 1,900 letters which he analyzed for the President resented the alleged interference of minor officials.

The letters, Roper said, proposed nearly every service of help to business except self-help.

This observation by Roper brought the rejoinder from Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican National Committee that it revealed "the curious irresponsibility which is so characteristic of New Deal utterances."

N. A. M. Helped Push Company Union Program

$7,000 Fund Raised for Promotion, LaFollette Committee Told.

By the Associated Press.

The La Follette Civil Liberties Committee produced evidence yesterday to show the National Association of Manufacturers had actively promoted formation of company unions.

A committee official also said the 207 leading contributors to the National Association of Manufactuurers bought 60 per cent of all tear gas sold to industry "for labor warfare" in 1933-1937.

Robert Wohlforth, committee secretary, made that statement shortly after the committee's investigation of the manufacturers' association opened.

It brought John Gall, association lawyer, to his feet with a reply "the association has at no time during the period covered by this report (1933-1937) suggested to its members that they use tear gas."

Wohlforth told the committee some of the contributors also were "quite prominent in the employment of detectives agencies." He listed the General Motors Corporation, the Chrysler Corporation, the Pennsylvania Railroad, Congoleum-Nairn, Inc., and Laclede Gas, of St. Louis, in this connection.

Chairman La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, put in evidence a letter from William D. Anderson, Charlote, N. C., textile manufacturer, saying he was seriously considering a "company union" for his plant as "the only avenue of escape" from the United Textile Workers, and asking literature on the subject.

Walter B. Weisenburger, executive vice president of the association, to whom the letter was addressed, testified Anderson was supplied with a "manual" on "employe representation plans" prepared by the association.

Weisenburger, Robert A. Lund, of St. Louis, a former president of the association, and Noel Sergent, secretary and economist, testified the organization began such activities in 1919, and that a fund of "about $7,000" was raised for printing literature on the subject at the time of NRA.

NRA Bulletins Questioned.

La Follette questioned Lund sharply about bulletins issued by the association at that time. These La Follette contended over Lund's remonstrances, gave the workers one interpretation of the meaning of section 7 (a) of the national recovery act and the employer members another.

Weisenburger attempted unsuccessfully to read a prepared statement, but La Follette said it could be inserted in the record later. This led Gall, association counsel, to complain of "ex parte" proceedings.

The statement asserted that the organization "believes in the right of free speech, in the right of individuals to assemble peacefully, in their right to collective action within the law."

On Capitol Hill

Capitol Hill Correspondents Invited by Smathers to Oyster-Champagne Feast.

The Capitol Hill correspondents, a Louisiana Creole gumbo luncheon by Senator and Mrs. Allen Ellender, of Louisiana, were invited yesterday by Senator W. H. Smathers, of New Jersey, to attend "a demonstration on Thursday, March 10, of two of New Jersey's industries"—oysters and champagne.

Senator Smathers, a recent bridegroom, said in his invitation:

"Everybody knows that New Jersey's Maurice River section produces the finest oysters in the world. And everybody should know that the Renault champagne produced in the sunny vineyards of the great garden State of New Jersey is the finest in America."

An amendment to the interior appropriation bill, apparently sarcastically offered by Representative Rich (Republican), of Pennsylvania, to make the name of the Blue Ridge Parkway in Virginia and North Carolina "the Doughton-Blue Ridge Parkway," after Representative Robert L. Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, was adopted yesterday by the House.

Immediately afterward the House rejected an amendment offered by Representative Taber (Republican), New York, to cut in half the $4,000,000 provided in the bill for the Blue Ridge and the Natchez Trace Parkways for the fiscal year 1938-39.

A $125,086,690 appropriation bill for the 1939 needs of the Interior Department was passed by the House and sent to the Senate. The total was $87,690 above the House Appropriation Committee's recommendations and $7,859,597 below last year's figure.

If the bill becomes a law, Secretary of the Interior Ickes will get $85,000 additional for salaries in his office. He asked for $50,000 of this originally to establish a publicity bureau, complaining he was forced to use the PWA press agents.

Senate Vote Kills 'Super-Roads' Bill

The Senate virtually pigeonholed the $8,000,000,000 Bulkley super-highway bill yesterday when members voted, 38 to 36, to transfer the measure from the Banking and Currency Committee to the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads.

The latter committee, headed by Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, is opposed unanimously to the measure. McKellar moved to discharge the Banking Committee from consideration of the bill and was upheld by his committee members, a solid bloc of conservative Democrats and most Republicans.

Senator Robert J. Bulkley (Democrat), Ohio, sponsor of the bill; Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, and Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York, chairman of the Banking Committee, fought vigorously to save the bill from death on a shelf in the McKellar committee. Their efforts failed by the narrow margin of two votes.

Weir Gives Figures, Views to President

By the Associated Press.

Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Corporation, conferred with President Roosevelt on the business situation yesterday.

He said he turned over to the President facts and figures on business which the latter had requested.

As to what he thought of the present situation, Weir replied:

"Business is running along about the same. I see no improvement, although I hope the bottom has been reached."

Arts Bureau Backed.

Gutzon Borglum and Walter Damrosch, outstanding in the field of American sculpture and music, approved yesterday before a Senate Labor and Education sub-committee a bill for creation of a Federal Bureau of Fine Arts, but opposed relief features of the measure.

Burlew Finally Wins Approval Of Committee

By the Associated Press.

The Senate Public Lands Committee yesterday approved the nomination of Ebert K. Burlew as First Assistant Secretary of the Interior Department after nearly three months of controversy over his promotion. Burlew is administrative assistant to Interior Secretary Ickes.

The nomination now goes to the entire Senate for action.

Burlew was nominated by President Roosevelt last December, and opposition to the appointment was led by Senator Pittman (Democrat), of Nevada.

After the committee had acted, Pittman, who alone dissented, said he would carry his fight against Burlew to the Senate floor.

Chairman Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, of the Public Lands Committee, said the nomination probably would not be called up until Pittman had time to write a minority report.

Congressman's Car Is Parked Thrice Illegally

Auto Listed to Rep. White Left Persistently on Dangerous 13th St.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Ignoring at least three police warnings to remove his car from a congested "no parking" area of down town Thirteenth street, the driver of a Congressional-plated car listed to Representative Compton I. White (Democrat), of Idaho, was back again yesterday in defiance of posted restrictions and safety rules.

All parking on Thirteenth street between E street and Pennsylvania avenue—one of city's most congested traffic centers—is prohibited day and night. In spite of signs to this effect, the Idaho car has been seen repeatedly on the west side of the street—the only parked car in the block. Large buses and heavy traffic must swerve to avoid collision.

A police "courtesy card" was placed on the car Tuesday night. Yesterday the machine was again parked almost in the same spot.

Said the policeman who issued Tuesday's warning:

"I've told the driver of that car three times not to park there—it's dangerous. He's the only one in Washington who does."

Representative White could not be reached for comment last night. His car bears "Congressional" tag No. 454.

An automobile bearing Congressional license tags and Louisiana tag No. 40 was found parked in front of the National Theater last night. Police put a courtesy ticket on the car, which called attention to the fact that the driver had committed his third offense at this spot.

Earlier yesterday, Representative Joseph J. Mansfield (Democrat), Texas, urged all members of Congress to remove "special privilege" tags from their cars and use them only in cases of emergency. He suggested the tags be placed in the windshield when holders are on official business.

Mansfield said he is convinced a disgruntled citizen smashed the fenders of his car last year because it bore Congressional plates. All members of Congress, he added, should not be condemned for the mistakes of a few.

At 1 p. m. today, Representative Claude V. Parsons (Democrat), of Illinois, is scheduled to appear in Police Court to answer charges of leaving after colliding.

He is accused by Margaret Ellis, of 2603 Connecticut avenue northwest, and her brother, Albert Nesbitt, Cleveland attorney, of refusing to give his name and attempting to elude apprehension after striking their car several days ago.

Parsons, who admitted at a recent hearing before two assistant corporation counsel that he was driving the car, led a wild chase through Rock Creek and back to Connecticut avenue, his accusers claim. Nesbitt must also answer a charge of pulling from the curb without a proper hand signal.

Hyattsville Youth Held to Grand Jury In 'Runaway' Case

Clay Cook, 18, was bound over to the Prince Georges County grand jury yesterday on a morals charge. The action of Judge George B. Merrick in Hyattsville Police Court followed testimony by 15-year-old Lois Simms, who disappeared from her Riverdale Heights home February 15.

The courtroom was cleared of all persons under 21 before State's Attorney Alan Bowie presented the case against Cook, fellow student of the Simms girl at Hyattsville High School.

Young Cook and Lois were apprehended by Department of Justice agents near Purcellville, Va., on February 2, after parents of the girl expressed fears she had been kidnaped.

The youth pleaded not guilty and did not testify. Mrs. O. L. Simms, mother of the girl, took the stand to state that Lois was under age when the alleged morals offense was committed. Cook was placed under $1,000 bond.

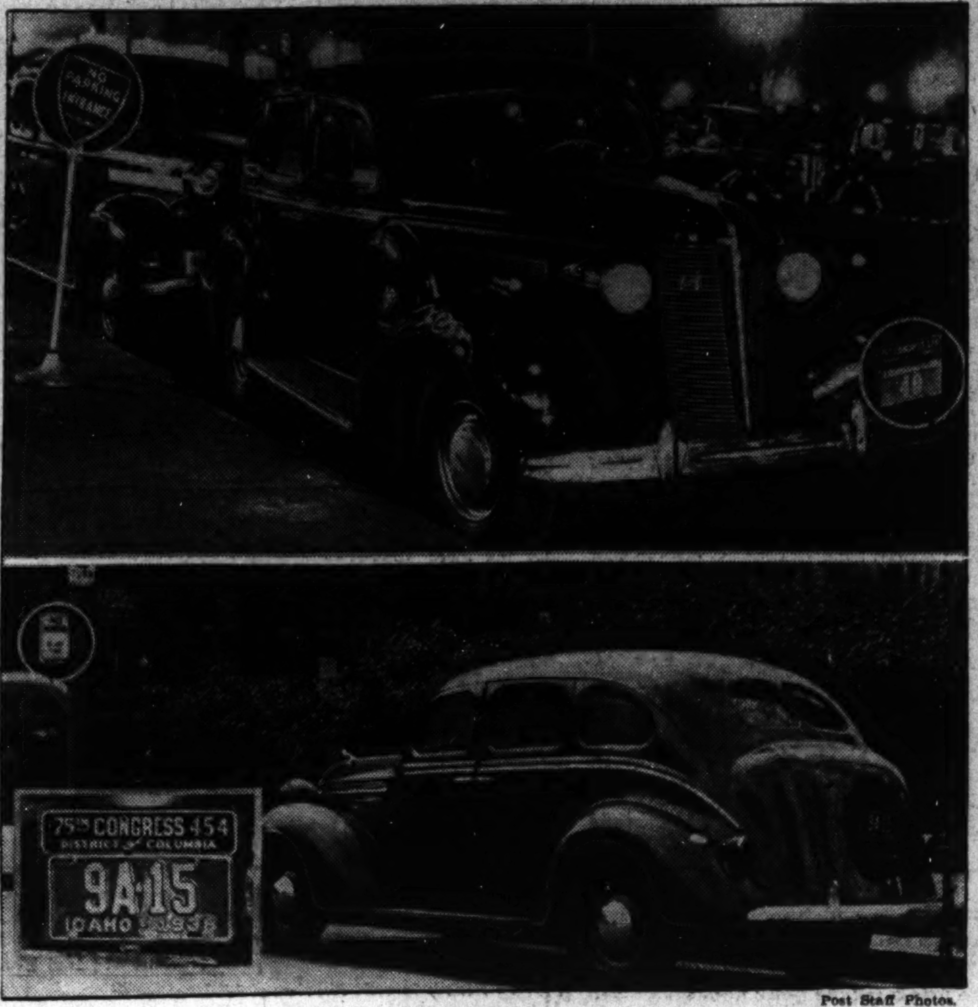
F. Ryan, who now are stationed in Hawaii, where Lieut. Ryan is aide-de-camp to Brig. Gen. Duncan Major.

Chronic Offender Defies Parking Regulations Again



Post Staff Photos.

The driver of a Congressional-tagged car listed in the name of Representative Compton I. White, of Idaho, who has ignored three police notices to remove his car from a "no parking" area on Thirteenth street, was back at his old stand yesterday (lower picture). The car was between Pennsylvania avenue and E street. The upper picture shows a Louisiana car with Congressional tag 320 in front of the National Theater, where it was parked during show hours in a "no parking" area.

Colored Suspect Vindicated After Indictment When Authorities Produce Right Man in Mistaken Identity Case.

By the Associated Press.

Crisfield, Md., March 2.—A colored man identified by more than 500 persons in a mass police "line-up" as Walter Nelson, indicted for murder, was freed today after county authorities arrested another "Walter Nelson."

In August, 1932, Kate Elzie Nelson, colored, was found dead here. She had been stabbed 36 times. A coroner's jury named her husband, Walter Nelson, as her slayer. He had disappeared. The grand jury indicted him for murder.

Last October Harry Lewis, colored, was identified in a Baltimore police line-up as Walter Nelson. He denied he was Nelson. Police brought him here and 35 persons who had worked with Nelson said Lewis was the Nelson they had known. Then police put him on the stage of the firemen's hall and 500 more persons saw him. Those who knew Nelson said Lewis was the man.

State's Attorney Kirk Maddrix and Deputy Sheriff Isaac H. Dorsey went to Waterview, Va., and arrested another man who said his name was Walter Nelson. Maddrix said: "There is no question of him being the right man."

Harry Lewis, who had been hald in jail since October, was freed, and Nelson was taken to the Somerset County Jail in Princess Anne County to face the murder indictment next month.

11 Indicted at Danville For Liquor Tax Evasion

Danville, Va., March 2 (AP).—A Federal grand jury returned indictments today charging 11 men with being involved in liquor conspiracies in 1932 to dodge internal revenue taxes.

The 11 men from Henry and Franklin Counties were listed on the indictments as Elmer E. Stultz, Willie O. Stultz, Charles Lovell, William G. Hurd, Frank Wingfield, Charles Barber, John Lovell, Harmon Harris, William Ernest Stultz, Lester Mills and Otoho Thomas.

Striking Pecan Shellers Attacked With Tear Gas

San Antonio, Tex., March 2 (AP).—Tear gas was hurled today at pickets at the Southern Pecan Shelling Co. plant of Julius Selegman, where a strike has been in progress for weeks.

J. Austin Beasley, C. I. O. Pecan Shellers' Union strike leader, said national labor relations act charges would be filed.

Reynolds Robertson Better.

E. R. Kelly Named Langdon's Lawyer

E. Russell Kelly was named yesterday as defense attorney for Robert P. Langdon, one-time District policeman who was indicted two weeks ago for the murder of Beulah Limerick in 1931.

Kelly, former assistant United States attorney, was appointed by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue in District Court, after Langdon had announced at his arraignment last week that he had no lawyer.

Kelly said yesterday he would begin immediately to study plans for the defense of Langdon, the "cop on the beat" at the time of the murder.

Fresh Eggs, Ancient Truck Are Stolen In 'Petit Larceny'

"Flash! . . . Petit larceny. . . Truck loaded with eggs. . ."

That was the heading on a report teletyped from the Fifth Precinct police station yesterday when Willard Miller, of Alexandria, Va., lost his truck at First and B streets southeast.

Miller was eating when the truck was stolen. He was bound for the wholesale market. The load consisted of 75 dozen eggs.

The reason the theft was listed as "petit larceny" was because the truck was of ancient vintage.

Consuls Doubt Stokowski and Garbo Are Wed

By the United Press.

Ravello, Italy, March 2.—In the little Villa Cimbrone, where Richard Wagner wrote "Parsifal" more than a half-century ago, beautiful Greta Garbo and her white-haired musician-friend, Leopold Stokowski, basked today in romantic seclusion while the world wondered whether they are married.

She registered as "Margaret Louisa Gustafson," her real name. Romantic pilgrims who have trekked here from nearby towns to catch a glimpse of the famous face of the Swedish sphinx were met with a sign pasted across the villa gate: "No visitors until further notice."

Friends of the actress and of Stokowski today urged the chief of police of Ravello, to "have all newspapermen expelled from the area."

Consuls Doubt Marriage.

The Swedish consul at Naples, a few miles up the coast from this little town, nestled among craggy cliffs overlooking the blue gulf of Salerno, told the United Press he doubted whether the two had been married or contemplated marriage. So did the United States consulates at Naples and at Rome.

Stokowski seemed considerably irritated at the presence of newspapermen. Although he admitted courteously to the United Press correspondent his own identity, when he was asked if the lady with him was Miss Garbo he turned and stalked away.

"She Is Not Beautiful."

Later a constable went to the gatekeeper at the villa and warned him he would lose his job if he let any newspapermen or other unauthorized visitors into the grounds.

The village nearby teemed with excitement. Dino Caruso, owner of the village hotel where Garbo and Stokowski come each afternoon for tea, said she was attired in a "fur coat, blue knickers, a sweater and wool stockings."

"Her hair falls over her shoulders and she wears smoked glasses," he said. "She is not beautiful."

Landlord Guilty Of Killing Cabby

An over night jury in District Court yesterday found Donald K. Stanton, slightly-built landlord, guilty of second degree murder in the slaying of Ray E. Childress, burly cab driver, who was shot October 2, at 69 New York avenue northeast.

The jury had been ordered locked up for the night by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue after it had failed to reach an agreement by 11 o'clock Tuesday night but reached its verdict shortly after reconvening yesterday morning. The verdict means a minimum of 20 years in jail.

Sentence was postponed pending filing of a motion for a new trial by defense attorneys James A. O'Shea and J. H. Burnett. The Government was represented by Assistant United States Attorneys Charles B. Murray and William Hitz.

Frosts Kill Ga. Peaches.

Soviet

uary, 1937, and the prosecutor was Andrei J. Vishinsky, also a veteran of previous mass trials.

Leaders Among Accused.

Those accused in the plotting, which the indictment traced back in part 20 years when Tratsky still was in power, included men once high in Soviet affairs. Among them stood:

Alexis I. Rykoff, who was premier of the Soviet Union for nearly ten years; Nikolai Burcharin, former government newspaper editor; Genrikh G. Yagoda, former chief of the secret police; Krestinsky, former first assistant foreign commissar as well as former Ambassador to Germany; Christian Rakovsky, former Ambassador to France, and Faysula Khodjaieff, former president of the Uzbek Republic.

It was charged that upon instructions of the intelligence services of foreign states hostile to the U. S. S. R. the defendants organized a croup of plotters under the name of the "bloc of Rightists and Trotzkyites."

Plots Are Outlined.

Confessions were cited in which it was alleged there were plots in which:

Japan undertook to render armed assistance to overthrow the Soviet power in return for which she was promised the Soviet maritime provine in the Far East.

An "independent" White Russia was to be created under a Polish protectorate.

Ukraine was to be surrendered to Germany after the defeat of Soviet Russia in a war with Germany and Japan.

Uzbekistan and Turkmenia were to be separated from the Soviet Union with one scheme for them to become protectorates of Japan and Germany or Great Britain.

Georgia, Armenia and Azerbaidjan were to have been cut off for the "foreign states."

Secret Session Planned.

The court announced a secret session would be held at an unfixed date presumably to hear testimony about the part of hostile foreign powers in the plotting.

Specific points in the lengthy indictment accused the defendants of forming their bloc with the object of:

Spying on behalf of foreign states; wrecking; diversions; terrorism; undermining the military power of the U. S. S. R.; provoking military attacks by foreign states; defeating the U. S. S. R.; dismemberment of the country; overthrowing the existing Socialist social and state system, and restoring capitalism and the power of the bourgeoisie.

Terrorist Acts Cited.

Accusations also were made that terrorist acts were carried out against Sergei Kiroff, who was assassinated in 1934; Maxim Gorky, the writer; M. Menjinsky, one-time chief of the secret police, and Valerian V. Kuibisheff, chief of the first five-year plan.

Three men formerly high in the Soviet medical world made confessions to malpractice to contribute to the deaths of the last three.

Krestinsky, the only one of the accused who pleaded innocent, fought for his life against Prosecutor Vishinsky's efforts to shake his repudiation of his confession.

"I did not commit the crimes of which I am accused," he cried. "I have been a member of the (Communist) Party and still consider myself one."

Testified Falsely, He Says.

The indictment quoted at length from his alleged confession that he had entered into a treasonable plot with Gen. Vans von Seekt, late German military leader, at the behest of Trotzky.

He declared he had testified falsely in the preliminary investigation because he was "convinced there was no use denying guilt except in open court."

Agitated to the point where he had to take a nerve tablet to steady himself, he called his accusers among the defendants liars, and they in turn hurled the epithet back at him.

Rykoff said he knew Krestinsky as a "Trotzkyist" and charged "Krestinsky is lying. He had a talk with me about illegal matters."

Krestinsky, who was finance commissar during Rykoff's premiership, retorted:

"Rykoff lies."

"I speak the truth," he added.

To this the prosecutor inquired: "Beginning today noon?"

"Yes," Krestinsky replied.

Kerensky Arrives in N. Y.

New York, March 2 (AP).—Alexander Kerensky, former premier of Russia, declared on his arrival from Paris today that political executions in the Soviet "purge" had totaled from 20 to 25 a day in the past year.

Kerensky, an expatriate since the rise of Bolshevists, described the Stalin dictatorship as the "most ruthless tyranny in history" and reiterated a prediction it would be overturned.

He ascribed present internal difficulties to a struggle on the part of rightist elements to achieve an "armistice between Stalin and peasantry."

"Stalin expects a new World War in a short time which will result in a class war," Kerensky said.

He expressed the opinion that democracy would be restored in Russia "by internal movement or in time of war."

Kerensky said he came here to make a lecture tour, which will take him to Washington March 6.

London

ing March 31, 1939, would include two capital ships, one aircraft carrier, four large cruisers, three small cruisers and other smaller craft. In addition, 60 new vessels, totaling 130,000 tons, will be put into service during the year.

Depends on Chamberlain.

The announcement made it clear that the actual cost of the five-year arms plan would depend largely upon the success of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's "efforts to achieve some appeasement in international affairs."

It envisaged a $341,250,000 increase over last year in the 1938-39 costs of air, land and naval defenses. The total estimates for the coming year were $1,758,750,000, including $42,500,000 for air-raid precautions.

The report added ominously, however, that the peak would not be reached until 1939-40.

"It must therefore be expected," it stated, "that even on the assumption that 1939, as now seems probable, will be the peak year for defense expenditure, the total expenditure on defense over the five years, 1937-1941, will exceed the sum of £1,500,000,000 (about $7,500,000,000) mentioned in the white paper of February, 1937."

Naval Building Quadrupled.

It showed that naval building had almost quadrupled since January 1, 1935, rising from 139,345 tons on that date to 547,014 tons on January 1, 1938.

The White Paper made no mention of possible enlargements of battleships above 35,000 tons, the limit fixed in the treaty between the United States, Britain and France. This question has been under discussion since Japan refused to make known her naval-building plans.

Dealing with the air raid specter, which many regard as the most pressing problem of home defense, it was announced there would be enough gas masks by the end of 1938 for the entire civil population of the British Isles.

Home Defenses Increased.

Home air defenses were boosted in the estimates to 123 squadrons—between 1,700 and 1,850 first-line planes—six times more than the number before the new rearmament program was begun.

An "air striking force" was included in the estimates for the first time. This designation was given raiding squadrons of fast and medium bombers being delivered to the air force in increasing numbers.

Britain's concern with wars and threats of war in the Mediterranean and the Far East was shown by increased appropriations for air defenses at Gibraltar, in Egypt and at Hongkong, along her "lifeline" of empire.

Auto Man Suicide By Monoxide Gas

James O. Jessop, 43, of 38 Kennedy street northeast, parked his car early yesterday in a wooded section off the Addison-Chapel road near Beaver Heights, Md., and committed suicide by inhaling monoxide gas fumes.

Jessop's body, slumped in the front seat of his car, was discovered by William Randall, colored, of Seat Pleasant, Md.

According to Prince Georges County Police Officers Williac Gray and Roscoe Sines, a hose had been attached to the exhaust pipe and run through the rear window of the car.

A certificate of suicide was issued by Acting Coroner Henry H. O'Neill of Decatur Heights. Mrs. Jessop, who identified her husband's body, said she could give nor eason for his act. He was employed as an automobile salesman.

Mail Must Go Through, But Late—With Regrets

Hartford, Conn., March 2 (AP).—A druggist, whose store was used as a Christmas postal station, today found in the basement a plump sack with several hundred pieces of mail, overlooked since last December.

Postmaster William J. Rankin assigned a crew of workers to prepare letters to express with each piece of mail the department's apologies for the more than two months' tardiness.

Victim of Train Is Ruled Suicide

A verdict of suicide in the death of Jesse H. Hedges, Chevy Chase real estate dealer, was issued last night by Acting Coroner George S. Phillips after a hearing at Hyattsville, Md.

Hedges was killed by a Baltimore & Ohio express train at the Sunnyside Md., grade crossing near Beltsville February 9.

Phillips said he had a written statement from Charles C. Frasth, engineer, in which Hedges is said to have "pulled his overcoat over his head and walked onto the tracks in the path of the approaching train."

Coast Guard Chief To Report Slaying Of Virginia Whale

Norfolk, Va., March 2 (AP).—Capt. T. G. Crapster, head of the Norfolk division of the Coast Guard, said today he would make a complete report to Washington on Coast Guardsman Dan Yeomans' whale-shooting incident several days ago.

Yeomans, connected with the Cape Lookout station, saw the whale, a 50-foot humpback specimen, hard aground off Lookout Light, and shot it to end its misery. Whales, however, are protected by international law.

Meanwhile two Beaufort, N. C., men had the dead whale towed there and placed on exhibition. It cost them $120 for towage and they took in about $140 in admission fees.

A warm sun, however, caused Beaufort noses to point upwind and the business venture ended. The whale then was towed out to sea and cast adrift.

Secret Police Assume Charge Of Niemoeller

Congregation Shocked to Find Militant Cleric Still a Prisoner.

By the United Press.

Berlin, March 2.—The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, militant anti-Nazi Protestant pastor, whose secret trial before a Nazi court was ended today, has been "released into the hands of the secret police," it was announced tonight from the pulpit of his aristocratic Dahlem church.

The Rev. Ludwig Mueller, who replaced Niemoeller after the fiery pastor's arrest last July 1 on charges of sedition, said the convicted confessional leader was held at the Alexanderplatz police headquarters.

Congregation Shocked.

Officials of the Alexanderplatz Station refused to discuss the announcement, which shocked the large congregation gathered to give prayerful thanks for the "release" of the former U-boat commander, who openly opposed Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's regime in its efforts to "Nazify" the Protestant Church.

It had been reported that the gaunt pastor, although sentenced to seven months' imprisonment in a fortress for "endangering public peace," had been set free after three weeks of supposedly secret testimony. He already had been held for eight months in a cell in Berlin's Moabit Prison.

There were rumors that he was preparing to leave Berlin on a "vacation."

His Fate Uncertain.

Because official quarters refused to discuss his whereabouts, it was uncertain whether he had been rearrested or remained a prisoner of the government in "protective custody."

Telephone calls to his home were unanswered.

German law provides for "vorbeugungshaft"—preventive arrest—to protect both the prisoner and the public from him.

The court found him guilty of violating the criminal code, which provides that "any clergyman or minister of religion who during the exercise of his functions in public, addressing a crowd or speaking in a church or any other place, endangers public peace is punishable with prison or detention in a fortress up to two years."

He was fined $200 on the new charge and $600 for two violations of President Hindenburg's February 28, 1933, decree, issued the day after the Reichstag fire for "the protection of the people and the state," and sentenced to seven months' imprisonment in a fortress.

Beer Drivers Held Window-Breakers

Reverberations of the beer drivers strike of three weeks ago were heard in Police Court yesterday, when two members of the Beer and Soda Drivers Union were found guilty of breaking a restaurant window at Eleventh and M streets northwest.

Louis Courembis, proprietor of the restaurant, testified that striking drivers picketed his establishment February 12. When he refused to heed their request to buy no more beer of a certain brand, the defendants, Henry L. Myers, business agent of the union, and Ernest V. De Francis, a driver, hurled a brick through his window, he said.

Defense witnesses said the brick was thrown by an unidentified colored man, not in the picket line.

Slum Clearance In D. C. Discussed

A two-year program for District slum clearance was discussed yesterday by the Alley Dwelling Authority.

The program included the use of $1,000,000 District fund promised by President Roosevelt under the $500,000,000 allottment under the Wagner act.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the authority, stated that previous estimates of the organization called for an expenditure of $7,300,000 over a period of two years to clean up Washington slums.

Hazen pointed out, however, that should more funds be required, he would request additional allottments from the United States Housing Authority.

50,000 Chinese Slain in Rout, Say Invaders

Demoralized Defenders Flee to Yellow River; Dead Strew Fields.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, March 2.—Japanese boasted today that fleeing Chinese troops suffered at least 50,000 casualties in demoralized retreat through Shansi Province.

The slaughter continued unabated, Japanese communiques said as they mercilessly drove Chinese forces toward the Yellow River.

Advance of the Japanese army was so rapid it was necessary to use airplanes to supply forward elements with food. Motor, animal and train transport lagged far in the rear, the Japanese said.

The snow-blanketed, frozen battlefields between Lingshih and Linfen, along the railway running north and south through the heart of Shansi, were said to be littered with Chinese corpses.

The Chinese, while admitting the loss of more than ten districts in central Shansi in the last two weeks, denied their retreat was disorganized. They declared the Japanese were paying a heavy price for victories. It was asserted that 1,000 Japanese were killed in a single engagement near Lingshih.

In northern Honan Province the Chinese said they were making advances on Taokow and Sunhsien after recapturing Hwohsien. These operations were intended to outflank the Japanese driving toward the Yellow River along the Peiping-Hankow Railway.

The Chinese also said they recaptured Changyuan in southern Hopeh in a surprise attack.

From Canton came a Chinese report that a fleet of 41 Japanese planes bombed the eastern outskirts of Canton, including Tienho and Paiayun airdromes.

Successful Japanese operations in Shansi Province, at the extreme western flank of the sprawling battle line paralleling the Lunghai Railway, were striking directly at the railway itself, just across the Yellow River, which forms the southern boundary of the province.

Japanese advances in the vast central China theater of war had been stalled all along the 400-mile line to the east, and efforts to cross the Yellow opposite Kaifeng had been frustrated by the subbornly fighting Chinese. So the Japanese swung wide to the west in the present flanking move.

Reports from Hankow said Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the Chinese military leader, had been replaced as head of the Chinese air force by her brother, T. V. Soong, a Harvard-educated Chinese.

Konoye Denies Mobilization Bill Is Fascistic

Measure Does Not Copy That of Germany, Premier Says.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, March 2.—Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye declared today it would be "premature" to brand the proposed national mobilization bill as fascistic, because the Japanese national policy is so remote from those of Italy and Germany.

The Premier ran into a barrage of questions about the measure, which members of the Diet have bitterly opposed on the contention it is dictatorial, fascistic and of such nature as to deprive the people of their constitutional rights.

"Questions have been asked as to whether the bill was an imitation of a similar bill," Konoye said. "Germany's statute operates constantly, while the projected Japanese legislation would be enforced only in wartime."

The bill would give the government a tight grip on Japan's economic life, even to the extent of being able to "expropriate" subjects of the empire and cause them to be engaged in a general mobilization of business.

One Diet member told the premier the people were "struck with terror" when they learned provisions of the bill. He added that "unrest now is prevailing throughout Japan."

Another government backer of the measure, Maj. Gen. Isamu Yokoyama, preyed on the island empire's fears of air raids in an effort to force acceptance of the measure on reluctant Diet members.

S. C. House Asks Delay In Ban on Heavy Trucks

Columbia, S. C., March 2 (AP).—The House of Representatives adopted a resolution today requesting the State highway department to delay, for the present, enforcement of the South Carolina law limiting to 20,000 pounds the gross weight of trucks using its highways. A similar resoultion passed the Senate.

Leader Warns Austrian Nazis To Keep Order

Interior Minister Doubts Fanatics Will Stage March on Vienna.

By the Associated Press.

Graz, Austria, March 2.—Stern orders to maintain discipline were imposed upon Styria's turbulent Nazis today by Dr. Arthur von Seyss-Inquart, the Austrian minister of the interior.

After conferring throughout the day with one group of Nazis after another, the minister, who is a friend of Chancellor Hitler, said he did not believe there would be a Nazi "putsch" or a march on Vienna.

Nazi leaders, meanwhile, made demands that Austria modify her relations with the Vatican.

To Demand Discipline.

"I am not going to putsch myself," Seyss-Inquart said. "On the contrary, I will demand that all National Socialists maintain the strictest discipline.

"I have found overwhelming enthusiasm is Styria Province and I also know by now that my orders will be obeyed."

At the same time, he gratned the Nazis permission to wear swastika emlems in schools and public offices.

Seyss-Inquart, whose appointment to the Austrian cabinent last month was approved by Germany's chancellor, was sent here by Chancellor Schuschnigg to ease the tension created by ambitious Nazi efforts to extend their influence through Austria, especially in government offices.

Compromise Sought.

In his capacity as an official both friendly to Hitler and a member of the Austrian government, he undertook to work out a compromise which would prevent an open breach between the Nazis and other Austrians, who are determined to maintain the country's independence.

Seyss-Inquart, welcomed by 20,000 wildly cheering Nazis when he arrived last night, said the Styrian Nazi spirit would give a fine example to other provinces.

2,000 Shout "Heil Hitler."

He believed the "Heil Hitler" greeting used by the Nazis would be tolerated by authorities. He added, however, that he knew Austrians well enough to know they would go back to the old Alpine greeting, "Gruess Gott." Nearly 2,000 men and women shouted "Heil Hitler" at him when he left his hotel.

Despite his optimism that the Nazis would maintain discipline, it was apparent the situation still remained dangerous, due to the Nazi strength in Graz and Styria Province.

It was learned that 3,000 Fatherland Front rallies planned for the immediate future would omit Styria.

Paris Labor Code Passage Near as Chamber Yields

Paris, March 2 (AP).—Passage of the government's labor code appeared certain tonight as the Chamber of Deputies bowed to the Senate's objections to two of the three disputed points.

After four days of bitter wrangling, which threatened to cause the resignation of Premier Camille Chautemps' government, the lower house gave up its demands that agricultural workers be included in the code.

This concessoin was made after the government promised to seek passage of a separate bill for those workers before April 15. The chamber also agreed to make optional instead of obligatory the code's provisions for revising wages when living costs increased 10 per cent.

Row Over Spain Perils British Peace Proposal

Committee Is Split Over Withdrawal of Alien Fighting Men.

By the Associated Press.

London, March 2.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's "realistic" plan to bargain with Italy faced possible disaster tonight through a rapidly developing row within the nonintervention committee over withdrawal of foreign fighters from Spain.

Great Britain, France, Russia, Germany and Italy, after bickering through to a semblance of agreement on the minimum number of volunteers to be evacuated, are split on a vital part of the British-drawn plan—re-establishment of nonintervention control of Spanish frontiers and ports.

Failure to reach an agreement with Spain would leave Premier Mussolini of Italy with a foothold in the Iberian Peninsular through the presence of his blackshirts with Gen. Francisco Franco's rebels.

Observers agreed Chamberlain's move toward any comprensive "Mediterranean appeasement" he must fail under such conditions.

Chamberlain assured the House of Commons February 20 that he had impressed upon Count Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to London, "that the British government regarded settlement of the Spanish question as an essential feature of any agreement at which we must arrive."

Britain, France and Russia stand by the unanimously-approved nonintervention resolution of November 4, 1937, that Spanish border ports be closed "immediately before" actual withdrawals from Spain. A demand by Italy that control begin when the commissions arrive in Spain to check up on the number of foreigners probably would mean the borders would be closed months before the actual withdrawals.

Duce, Officials File Past Bier Of D'Annunzio

State Funeral Postponed to Allow Throngs to Pay Tribute.

By the Associated Press.

Gardone Riviera, Italy, March 2.—Gabriele d'Annunzio, whose genius and daring Italians revered although his mysticism sometimes puzzled them, today received in death the tribute Italy reserves for her immortals.

Premier Mussolini headed the high personages who paid homage at the bier of the warrior-poet, who lay in state in his Villa Vittoriale.

D'Annunzio died last night and a state funeral was fixed for tomorrow, but after Il Duce conferred with members of the family it was announced it probably would be postponed until Saturday or Sunday to accommodate the crowds wishing to view the body.

Hundreds of shuffling feet murmured a requiem for the dynamic spirit which found expression in bold exploits, ardent love, fierce oratory, feverish opposition and writing.

D'Annunzia's body was clad in the uniform of a general of aviation and draped with a blood-stained flag which once covered the body of one of his officers killed in the march on Fiume in 1919.

After the funeral services it will be carried to the forecastle deck of the destroyer whose prow stands on the "Sacred Hill" of the estate.

It will remain there one night and then be placed beside his mother in the marble tomb already prepared at the top of the hill in d'Annunzio's private cemetery.

CIO Leader Denied Re-entry Into U. S.

Vancouver, British Columbia, March 2 (AP).—Harold Pritchett, 33, Canadian president of the C. I. O.-Affiliated International Woodwookers of America, today said he had been denied re-entry into the United States by an exanıming board of the United States Department of Immigration.

Pritchett said he was barred on the ground of "undesirability." He said he would appeal immediately to Secretary of Labor Perkins and to the head of the American Immigration Department at Washington. The labor leader returned to Vancouver Monday night from Seattle because United States authorities had refused to extend his visitor's permit.

Exterminator Fumes Kill Memphis Child, 7

Memphis, Tenn., March 2 (AP).—Winburn H. Ellis, 7-year-old schoolboy, was found dead at his home today, apparently from fumes created by employes of an exterminating company, who had fumigated the house. The child had been instructed by his parents to stay at school for lunch because of the work, but returned home and climbed through an unlocked window.

Walsh Begins Civil Service Fight in Senate

rules independent of aproval by any elective officer, President or Congress?"

"I submit," he said, "that if we wish to insure public confidence in our civil service system, we are more likely to achieve this under a commission of worthy and qualified appointees functioning with adequate authority and adepuate appropriations, than we are by turning the entire system over to the control of a single individual.

Walsh will continue his fight for commission control of personnel today. He may be followed by Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, who will ask that Congress place definite checks on the President's powers to reorganize, transfer and merge Federal agencies.

Second of the three pivotal amendments around which the Senate's reorganization fight is centering, Wheeler will propose that executive reorganization orders of the President not only be submitted to Congress but that each be affirmatively enacted into law by both houses before they go into effect.

The third bitter fight, to prevent abolition of the present General Accounting Office set-up, will be led by Senator Harry Flood Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, who stated the opposition's opening case on Tuesday. Byrd's amendment would continue the present Comptroller General's office as a check on spending, with powers intact. The Byrnes bill now before the Senate would separate the functions, assigning the Comptroller's day-by-day control powers to the Budget Director, and creating an "Auditor General" responsible to Congress to post-audit funds.

Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach (Democrat), of Washington, took the floor yesterday in defense of the Administration's auditing and accounting recommendations. He charged the office of Comptroller General has been "absolutely useless."

"The Comptroller General doesn't represent Congress and doesn't do Congress the slightest semblance of good," insisted Schwellenbach, who backed up arguments previously presented by Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina.

The Washington Senator contended "sound principles" of bookkeeping call for separation of powers of current accounting and post auditing. He said the States, in reorganizing their accounting and auditing procedure, had uniformly followed lines proposed in the Administration bill. He declared the Brookings Institute, which opposed the Administration reorganization plan, recommended division of control and audit functions in "every instance" where State governments have made the change.

831,000 Jobs Affected.

Leading the fight for maintenance of the present Civil Service Commission. Senator Walsh told the Senate that the proposed one-man civil service control should be closely scrutinized, because it affects "the future status and future welfare and future rights of 831,000 employes."

Walsh said that if "independence from control of the Chief Executive" is desirable, it could be accomplished by giving the present Civil Service Commissioners 15-year tenure, and making them removable only for cause.

"The fact of the matter is," Walsh said, "that the provisions of the pending bill for a 15-year term for the civil service administrator does not in reality guarantee permanency of tenure or independence of executive control. It is purely a mirage."

The Massachusetts Senator asked: "What do we lose if we abolish the board of three and put in its place a single administrator?"

"We lose first of all," he said, "the bi-partisanship. We lose, second, the judgment of three persons, reached after deliberation and discussion, and substitute therefor the judgment of one man. The Civil Service Commission is not just an administrative body but is legislative, in the promulgation of regulations; judicial, in the rating of papers, and has some executive and administrative functions as well. . . . When you come to a body to serve all of the Government it seems better procedure to have a commission."

Bill to Lighten Business Taxes Ready in House

Taxes

a noncommittee Democrat, Representative Emanuel Celler, of New York, declared the entire bill "completely misses the opportunity" to provide tax relief. He said the undivided profits tax should be repealed outright, the penalty tax eliminated, and the capital gains tax eased.

"Business gets small comfort from the measure, although hungering for some real word of cheer and encouragement," said Celler. "Credit must be given the committee for skillful advocacy of its proposals and for its outstanding technical presentation of new and far-reaching complexities."

Leaders Confident.

Despite scattered Democratic criticism of general features of the bill, reflected in the Celler statement, House leaders were confident they could maintain undivided profits tax and capital gains revision sections of their bill virtually in tact. The real fight for further modification of these sections will come in the Senate. House approval of penalty taxes on "closely held" companies was less certain. Up to the last minute, the Ways and Means Committee was almost evenly divided on this special tax, and House sentiment against it is widespread.

Defending the penalty levy, Chairman Doughton, in his majority report to the House yesterday, contended it would affect "not more than 300 to 600 corporations."

Doughton said that section 102 of the present law, designed to prevent "improper" accumulation of surpluses as a means of escaping individual taxation, "has generally been ineffective." He said it has been difficult to prove "intent to avoid surtaxes."

Doughton said the penalty actually would operate to affect only corporations capitalized at more than $1,000,000 and which do not distribute more than 57.6 per cent of their net income.

McCormack and Lamneck replied, in their minority statement, that the penalty "could potentially affect all closely held corporations." They said an estimate of even 1,000 corporations "seems much too low."

The Democratic committee dissenters pointed out the great bulk of corporations would receive substantial relief from the undivided profits tax levy, but the "closely held" companies would have to pay in addition a 20 per cent tax on all "Title 1-B" net earnings.

These two Ways and Means committeemen proposed instead that section 102 of the present law, aimed specifically at use of the corporate form for tax avoidance, be "strengthened."

Their amendment would remove from the present law the necessity that the Government prove "purpose to avoid surtax upon shareholders."

Would Maintain Revenue.

Opening debate today with an explanation of general features of the bill, Chairman Doughton will tell the House the measure will maintain Federal revenue at present levels, and at the same time remove tax inequities, equalize the tax burden and stimulate business activities.

Undivided profits tax modification proposed in the bill would first exempt corporations earning $25,000 and less from the surplus levy, and impose instead rates graduated from 12½ to 16 per cent. Corporations earning in excess of $25,000 would be taxed at rates ranging from 16 to 20 per cent, decreasing in proportion to dividends paid out.

Changes in the capital gains tax are designed to provide a smoother and more gradual step-down of the percentage of gain or loss taken into account for tax purposes, according to the length of time an asset has been held.

Distinguishing "speculative transactions from investment transactions," maximum relief would be given on property held for five years.

Board Rescinds All U. S. Grants To Oklahoma

Secure

on investigations of each application.

Failure to establish and maintain a personnel policy.

Incomplete and false statements of eligibility found in files.

Failure of the State commission to achieve efficient administration through "failure to utilize its authority and its appropriations."

In its order the board stated:

"The auditor of the Social Security Board, in an audit of old-age assistance payments in 46 of 77 counties, covering the periods from April 1 to July 31, 1936, and from September 1, 1936, to June 30, 1937, has questioned payments to 19,183 recipients, amounting to a total of $685,121.

"Payments for old age assistance in all the 77 counties from July 1, 1937, to February, 1938, remain to be audited. No audits have as yet been contemplated of payments by the State of Oklahoma under the plans for aid to the blind and aid to dependent children.

"Such records as have been audited reveal a great number of payments over long periods of time to deceased persons, to persons under age, to persons who did not meet the State's requirements as to need, and to persons whose age or need was undetermined."

Charges Not Denied.

During the public hearings officials of the State welfare commission made no attempt to deny charges brought by board auditors, but in admitting them declared they had been handicapped by numerous difficulties.

Political interference was admitted to have seriously hampered efficient administration.

The board order continued:

"The board has recognized the difficulties of setting up large-scale public assistance administrations quickly, and has accordingly endeavored to give every reasonable form of co-operation to State agencies charged with such responsibilities.

"The board cannot, however, overlook such flagrant misuse of public funds as is involved in the distribution, in Oklahoma, month after month, of public assistance checks to persons who are not in need, to persons who admittedly are under the minimum age of 65, and to deceased persons.

Need Held Great.

"In Oklahoma, as in other States throughout the United States, the need of public assistance funds for food, shelter, clothing, and other necessities of life for persons with insufficient resources of their own is so great as to make any wasteful use of public assistance funds a matter of grave concern to the State and the Nation.

"The widespread and long-continued disregard of the essential elements of efficient and public administration by the Oklahoma State Commission cannot be minimized; nor can it be excused by the various difficulties which have confronted the commission."

Approximately $600,000 in Federal funds will be denied Oklahoma in March. Estimates based on reports of past months show that Oklahoma will need $1,316,100 in the month to care for 106,100 cases.

Of this amount $1,042,000 will be needed for 69,000 old-age pensions; $238,800 for 35,000 dependent children, and $35,300 for 2,100 blind. Ordinarily the Federal grant is half the total need for old-age pensions and aid to the blind, and one-third for aid to children.

State Can Carry on Alone.

In its order the Security Board states that the State will have on hand or will collect in a special sales tax a total of $2,500,000 available for carrying on the assistance with its own funds, and $172,500 for administrative expenses. This sum is sufficient to carry the State for two months without additional Federal funds.

Since April, 1936, when old-age pensions went into effect, the State has received $9,505,788.31 from the Federal government.

"In addition to the audit, the Social Security Board in November and December, 1937, conducted a study in 19 counties. A high proportion of the cases reinvestigated in this survey indicated that the recipients were not eligible for grants at the time they were first put on the rolls by the State commission and that the records based upon the State's first investigation of those recipients who were ineligible were inadequate or false.

"Furthermore, the State commission, using its own special investigation staff in a recent sample survey of about 10 per cent of the old-age assistance recipients in McCurtain, Tulsa, and Okfuskee counties, found that approximately a third of the number of persons reinvestigated were ineligible for grants from the time they were first put on the rolls.

"Moreover, the State found it necessary, upon reinvestigation, to cancel, suspend, decrease or increase the grants in 86 per cent of the cases reinvestigated in these counties.

"The results of this reinvestigation, when compared with the State's records by the board's auditor, show that these changes can be accounted for only on the basis of inadequate first investigation, false records of first investigations, or changed circumstances of recipients.

Increase Expected.

"On the basis of further reinvestigations, substantial increases may be expected in the number and total volume of payments questioned by the Social Security Board's auditors.

"The Social Security Board has granted a total of more than $9,500,000 to the State of Oklahoma to match the State's own expenditures for aid to the needy under the three plans approved by the board.

"Although it is impossible to determine now the total number or amount of unwarranted payments already made by the State, the experience of the auditors of the Social Security Board to date would indicate that the aggregate may run into several million dollars, about half of which will constitute obligations of the State of Oklahoma to the Federal Government."

Airliner Missing With Nine Persons

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

way to the region in which the transport plane might have made a forced landing or crashed.

[Officials at Bolling Field last night said Lieut. Graves had "waited around" most of the day in the hope of receiving some report about his brother or the missing plane, but left the Army terminal for Dayton in the afternoon, when no word was forthcoming.—Editor's note.]

Search leaders here considered the scar clew important, pointing out it was in a direct line with the plane's flight as reported last night by Mrs. C. G. Landry, wife of a power company official, who said she saw the ship at 9:30 p. m. Apparently Mrs. Landry was the last person to sight the craft.

Leaders of the hunt, some of them privately pessimistic over the fate of the missing plane's occupants, prepared to widen the search tomorrow from the ground and the air.

Because a storm was coming in from the South, the plane headed toward Los Angeles instead of Las Vegas, Nev., on its regular course. It met the storm over the Tehachapi Mountains, natural dividing line between northern and southern California.

Pilot Graves, receiving directions to hunt an emergency landing, turned back toward the north.

Apparently the plane hovered over the Fresno area an hour or more, then began making widening circles as the storm crowded it gradually eastward, into the craggy peaks of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, only a few miles from the ordinarily safe and warm valley.

Many persons reported sighting a plane, presumably the distressed ship, east of Fresno. A highway crew at Shaver Lake reported hearing a "loud crash" and though it might be a clew to the plane's fate.

Aboard the luxurious $105,000 skyliner as passengers were Tracy Dirlam and Mary Lou Dirlam, Stanford University students; Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Walts, of San Francisco; Victor Krause, of Lincoln, Nebr., and H. N. Salisbury, TWA pilot on leave.

The crew consisted of Graves, First Officer C. W. Wallace, Tucson, Ariz., and Stewardess Martha M. Wilson, Philadelphia.

More than 5 feet of snow lay on the ground at Huntington Lake, but it was melting rapidly under the assault of a torrential rain which flooded sections of southern California. Ordinarily snow remains on the ground at that altitude—about 5,000 feet—until May.

Although searchers had only the last report of Pilot Graves, at 9:28 p. m., that he was turning back for an emergency landing, they inclined to the belief the storm soon crowded the plane off its radio beam and into an area of many jagged peaks.

Baby Penguins' Arrival Is Timed By Necromancy

The eggs of Mollie and Moe, the Zoo's penguin pair who have been valiantly sitting for the past month, will hatch sometime between 7:30 and 7:45 p. m. next Monday, it was announced officially yesterday by Station WJSV.

Receiving no satisfaction from ornithologists, who could say only that it takes at least 30 days for the eggs to break out with baby penguins, the radio people consulted a palmist, three crystal gazers and the seventh son of a seventh son.

The consensus was written on a piece of paper, brewed in oolong-howlong tea and the leaves read by an albino clairvoyant in the light of a full moon. Immediately upon determining thus that Mollie and Moe would achieve parenthood next Monday night, WJSV scheduled a 15-minute broadcast of the proceedings.

In a postscript to editors, the station's special events department said:

"If the eggs are hatched before 7:30 p. m. Monday, March 7, we've been double-crossed."

District

way department testing plant be reopened was adopted.

Kennedy had offered the reorganization study amendment on the House floor. He also had called the attention of the sub-committee to the fact that the District was paying the Bureau of Standards more to test its paving material than it would cost to operate the closed District testing laboratory.

Supply Bill Ready.

The District supply bill probably will be reported today or tomorrow following approval by the full Appropriations Committee and may be passed by the Senate before the end of the week.

Chairman Collins, of the House sub-committee on District appropriations, is expected to make a fight for restoration of the highway projects eliminated by the Senate sub-committee, and compromises probably will be made by both Senate and House managers before the bill is sent to the White House.

Collins sponsored the Thomas Circle underpass and the K street overpass as traffic alleviation measures, while the Dupont Circle underpass was recommended by the Budget Bureau.

The estimated costs are Dupont, $480,000; Thomas, $530,000; and K street, $320,000.

The Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge was approved by the Budget Bureau but rejected by the House sub-committee.

Senator Thomas had previously indicated he was going to cut out the underpasses and overpasses without writing in new projects, but he subsequently agreed to the new items, as otherwise a large surplus would accumulate in the highway fund. Even now the fund will have a substantial surplus.

The Massachusetts avenue-Rock Creek Parkway Bridge is one of the proposals in the five-year program of the higway department, but it has not been suggested openly before for the 1939 bill.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, was called upon for an estimate by the Senate sub-committee after it had been decided to eliminate Dupont and Thomas Circle underpasses.

The narrow tunnel under Massachusetts avenue along Rock Creek Parkway has long been a traffic hazard. Capt. Whitehurst said it would cost more to widen the tunnel than to build a bridge, which would be somewhat similar to the P Street Bridge over Rock Creek Parkway.

Problem Increased.

While the total of the District bill appropriations may be reduced in conference, the Senate recommendations increase the problem of the House sub-committe on fiscal relations in drafting a new tax bill.

Whereas the House sub-committee anticipated a deficit of only $2,000,000, the Senate bill would necessitate the raising of twice that amount and the relief problem is still unsettled. If additional funds are allowed in the general deficiency bill, following the special investigation, the amount must be added to the deficit and the new tax burden.

Chairman Nichols of the House sub-committee said yesterday that while the committee members are working on the tax bill, it probably will not be ready for reporting to the full House District Committee before next week.

The sub-committee is ready, however, to recommend some sort of income tax and probably a $1.60 realty rate and a beer tax, allowing the business privilege levy to expire at the end the current fiscal year.

Crime Classes to Open For 32 D. C. Detectives

Another step toward greater efficiency for the Metropolitan Police was taken yesterday when Maj. Ernest W. Brown announced formation of classes in criminal procedure for 32 precinct detectives.

The classes, to be held weekly under the direction of Inspector Edward J. Kelly, will cover preparation of cases for court trial, criminal law proceedings and scientific policing methods.

TVA Chairman Blames Aides For Strike, Invites an Inquiry

Morgan

was a "vindication" for the board of directors of the agency.

Most of the Morgan statement was devoted to a recital, with quotation of letters and documents, of his attempts to resist the Berry marble claims which he said "seemed to be an effort to defraud the government." He charged Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan with entering, in his absence, "into a friendly agreement with Maj. Berry to determine the value of the marble, which by that time was mostly under water and inaccessible, without any inquiry as to whether there was evidence of bad faith."

"I vigorously and repeatedly protested this agreement, holding that it seemed to give color of propriety and legitimacy to what appeared to me to be an effort to defraud the Government," the TVA chairman asserted.

Leases Held Worthless.

Only his repeated protests and an appeal to Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes forced the abandonment of "this friendly 'conciliation agreement'" and brought about condemnation proceedings in court, Morgan contended. The condemnation proceedings resulted in a decision on Tuesday by a three-member Federal commission that the Berry marble leases were "commercially worthless" and without value.

Senator Berry, Tennessee Democrat, yesterday declined to comment on the findings of the Federal commission, asserting he was leaving for Knoxville to confer with his attorneys. Senator Berry and his associates had contended the marble under lands flooded by the TVA project had a value of $5,000,000 or more, according to Associated Press dispatches.

Chairman Morgan said he had withheld comment regarding the Berry marble claim, despite the fact that his testimony in that case had been assailed by Harcourt Morgan, Lilienthal and Berry, until the commissioners had rendered their decision.

He pointed out, incidentally, that under the law T. V. A. commissioners handling a condemnation case were restricted to an examination of the value of the land to be condemned. Under that limitation and because the T. V. A. legal staff "did not initiate formal court proceedings charging fraud," Morgan said, "the commission properly confined its decision to the question of the value of leases condemned, with no reference of bad faith."

The TVA chairman said he first learned of the seriousness of the Berry marble claims in June, 1936, when the agency's geologists, marble experts and others reported to him "the claims were for millions of dollars, that the leases were without commercial value, and that the claims seemed to be an effort to defraud the Government."

On June 17, 1936, he said, he laid these facts before his two colleagues in a confidental memorandum, which also alleged that the leases were secured after the construction of the Norris Dam had become an active possibility and "when it appeared, therefore, that the properties would be flooded, with the result that the Government would have to acquire them."

Was President's Adviser.

He urged in this memorandum that no settlement be made until the propriety of the claims could be determined and that "the President should be informed of the existing situation, so that he may take any action or make any investigation he thinks necessary to assure himself as to the facts."

Whether this latter proposal was carried out Chairman Morgan did not reveal. At that time Berry was co-ordinator of industrial co-operation and as such an adviser to the President. He also was a leading figure in Labor's Non-Partisan League, which ardently supported the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt in 1936.

"About a month later, on July 10, 1936," Chairman Morgan continued, "during my absence and without notice to me or to my office, Dr. H. A. Morgan and Mr. Lilienthal, the other two members of the board, took the case out of the hands of the TVA staff, which handles such matters, and made an 'agreement of conciliation' under which Dr. (John W.) Finch, Director of the United States Bureau of Mines and a marble expert, would be asked to carry on friendly negotiations to arrive at the value of the marble. The 'agreement' was somewhat vaguely worded, but I think it is clear that was the intent."

"At the meeting of the TVA Board on my return, I protested verbally against this 'agreement.' Since TVA geologists, consulting geologists and expert operators, heretofore mentioned, had stated in their reports that the marble was valueless and the deposits were not unique, but were similar to deposits existing for more than a hundred miles in the region, the chief question involved, in my opinion, was not the value of these claims, but the question of an effort to 'hold up' the Government."

The T. V. A. chairman said that on August 8, 1936, he wrote to Secretary Ickes asking that he defer the loan of Dr. Finch to serve as conciliator under this agreement "until certain matters which were disturbing to me could be taken up directly with Senator Berry and the T. V. A. Board." Secretary Ickes, he said, agreed to this delay.

Asked 10 Questions.

Chairman Morgan said he then wrote Berry, pointing out that since both held responsible positions in the Roosevelt Administration, he believed the marble claims should be fully understood and all information freely exchanged so that no reasonable criticism could be made against any of the parties. He propounded 10 questions regarding the origin of the claims and Berry's relation to them.

"Maj. Berry refused to furnish this information, though my request was repeated again and again during the course of more than six months," the chairman asserted.

The chairman also contended that a record of the "conciliation agreement" made at the July 10 meeting was "omitted from the board minutes of that date" and that at a meeting on September 15, 1936, he protested orally and in detail against the agreement.

Included in Minutes.

"The majority of the board (Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan) took action to include in the minutes of the meeting of July 10, which minutes had not yet been prepared, a record of the making of such 'agreement.'"

He said the minutes containing this record were not actually prepared for signature of members until October or November and that when they were, he filed a written objection to the action, holding it invalid.

The controversy over this agreement continued until February 24, 1937, when the full TVA board met with Berry. Again the latter declined to supply the information requested by the chairman. Morgan said that on that occasion he took the view that "a determination of the propriety of the claims should precede any arbitration as to their physical value, and that until such question of propriety was faced, any negotiations as to physical value would imply a waiving of questions which should not be waived."

Ickes Refused Help.

Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan, however, overruled him, the chairman said, directing him to write Secretary Ickes requesting the loan of Dr. Finch. The chairman did so, but included in his letter to Ickes copies of correspondence and documents bearing on the controversy. Ickes refused to lend Dr. Finch and the "conciliation agreement" was abandoned and condemnation proceedings were decided on and filed May 18, 1937.

Discussing his opposition to the "conciliation agreement," Chairman Morgan held "wholly untenable" the proposition that this arrangement interposed no hindrance in pressing the issue of bad faith.

"From the standpoint of the TVA board," Morgan continued, "this friendly 'agreement' seemed either to surrender the right to search for evidence of bad faith, or else it 'double-crossed' Maj. Berry. To carry on freindly negotiations, presumably on the basis of mutual confidence and regard, and at the same time have the TVA attorneys search for evidence of past bad faith on the part of Maj. Berry and his associates, the use of which evidence would be to nullify any conclusions reached in such negotiations, would seem to be beneath the dignity and self-respect of Government. Openly expressed doubt as to the good faith of the claims was a more appropriate attitude toward Maj. Berry."

Bad Faith "Charged."

Morgan said that in the presence of TVA staff members Lilienthal "said that he had read reports of several TVA staff members expressing the opinion that the claims were in bad faith, and he vehemently criticized such statements of TVA staff members, saying that he would tolerate no more charges of bad faith against Maj. Berry."

"A few minutes later," Morgan said of Lilienthal, "he withdrew his remarks, but very distinctly left the impression that any TVA staff member who should suggest bad faith in the matter would be taking a personal risk in doing so. His attitude was one of vigorous opposition to my insitence that Maj. Berry, as a citizen and as an official of the national Government, was under a moral obligation to disclose the facts which would bear on the good faith of his claims."

The Local Relief Inquiry.

There is every reason to be gratified by the decision of the Senate sub-committee on District Appropriations to sponsor a thoroughgoing study of the local relief system. The inquiry will cover such subjects as the extent of unemployment, the adequacy of relief grants and the character of relief administration. The terms of reference, the latitude to be given the expert placed in charge of the investigation in the selection of aides, and the assistance already offered by the Social Security Board and the WPA should all commend the proposal to Congress and make the eventual findings authoritative.

Since relief and unemployment problems are intimately related, it is to be assumed that the United States Employment Service and its District agencies will also be called upon for advice. With all these sources of information handy, the task assigned the investigators would appear to be largely that of bringing together relevant data that should have been assembled long ago.

The habit of legislating without first acquiring information essential for intelligent action is a Congressional failing of long standing, not limited to any single subject. Such procedure, however, may be particularly disastrous in dealing with distressed human beings. Perhaps the co-operation between Congress and administrative agencies in planning systematically to determine the extent and character of local relief needs will encourage better co-operation in the solution of other municipal problems which confront Washington.

A Gallant Counterattack.

There is excellent recommendation for the strenuous life in the almost miraculous turn in the illness of Gen. John J. Pershing. Subjected to a seemingly fatal combination of heart and kidney ailments, the 77-year-old soldier has fought his way back to at least temporary recovery where many another physique would have rapidly capitulated. Much of this happy turn in the tide can doubtless be attributed to the general's many years of active field duty. But more than tough physique must lie behind the amazing tenacity which he has shown. Extraordinary and instinctive will power, no surprise to those who have followed his remarkable military record, helps to explain the present rally.

Of course, medical skill has also played its part in the struggle, waged in a Tucson sanitarium, on which the eyes of a grateful Nation have been focused. The case may even stand as an effective rebuttal for those who argue against artificially prolonging the lives of those for whom hope has been abandoned. Had it not been for the injections and other resuscitations administered to Gen. Pershing, he would almost certainly be dead today. As it is, while the natural will to optimism must of course be curbed, the report that he can now take solid foods suggests strongly that he is not yet ready to "cross the river and rest in the shade."

False Economy.

In restoring to Washington's 1939 budget the appropriations for the Children's Receiving Home and the National Training School for Girls, the Senate District sub-committee has acted with careful judgment.

Funds for the maintenance of the Children's Home were withheld by the House on the argument that "there has been little or no improvement in conditions at that institution." The explanation was offered that Congress has ignored all recommendations of the Board of Public Welfare for improvement funds. But the House persisted in its stand, convinced that "the children could be advantageously transferred to the House of Detention of the Police Department."

In this conviction, the House reversed its attitude of 1929. It was then enthusiastic for protecting minors from the possibly demoralizing influences of the detention home. The Children's Home was thus established. There, children could be assured specialized treatment. In addition, they could be divided as to sex, race and reason for detention—some being delinquent, others merely without shelter. A return to the detention home would end all this. Moreover, the transfer would require additional maintenance and personnel funds for the detention home and these have not been provided.

In the case of the National Training School for Girls, the House cited the decreased population of the institution and high per capita costs in omitting its appropriation. In so doing, it overlooked the fact that some $225,000 worth of repairs and construction were ordered at the school last year. This temporarily reduced the facilities of the school, though overhead expenses remained generally constant. With the work finished, the roster has risen from 35 to 55. Soon 90 will find room there. Wholly aside from legal objections, transfer of this number to Lorton as proposed by the House would be impossible. Lorton's women's quarters are filled virtually to capacity.

In its zeal for economy, the House has the full support of the community. However, it would be false economy to mix minors, some of them with no charge but dependency against them, with adult criminals. The Senate sub-committee has recognized this. It may be hoped that Congress as a whole will concur.

The Purpose Of Taxation.

In spite of a radical modification of the undistributed profits tax the bill reported out of the Ways and Means Committee still retains this levy in principle, although in practice it is greatly reduced and limited in application to larger corporations. On the other hand, a new penalty tax would be levied on the undistributed earnings of business enterprises owned by families or a few individuals.

While the much-criticized capital gains tax would become less rigorous under the terms of the House bill, the rates would still be so high as to be a deterrent to enterprise and a check upon capital transactions. While some relief has been accorded, it is still far from adequate and there remains the unfortunate emphasis upon the employment of taxes as a regulatory weapon, with inadequate regard for their effect upon business activity and capital accumulation.

In his very striking testimony before the Senate unemployment committee Bernard M. Baruch pointed out that we have not approached our tax problem by asking "how we can get the greatest possible encouragement to production and business activity." Instead, as he says, "we have approached it recently with what seems like a precisely reverse purpose." Mr. Baruch hammered his point home by emphasizing that he agreed in principle with the undistributed profits tax, insofar as it is levied to prevent tax avoidance or unproductive accumulation of capital. But these evils, as he says, can be attacked "without paralyzing the expansion of old business and the creation of new industries."

Unfortunately the proposed extra levies on closely-held corporations threaten to penalize legitimate and socially desirable reinvestment of earnings, even while ostensibly aimed at tax avoidance. In the words of the dissenting minority of the Ways and Means Committee, such a tax would impose "an arbitrary, unwarranted, discriminatory and oppressive burden on legitimate labor-employing business enterprises."

In other words the new tax bill, like so much of our recent tax legislation, employs the power to tax in order to discipline or control. The result is thoroughly unsatisfactory from the viewpoint of the tax collector as well as from that of the reformer, who is relying upon a crude and bungling device for achieving his ulterior objectives.

Broadly speaking, the rule of taxation for revenue only is an excellent guide to follow. Taxes levied for revenue are designed to interfere as little as possible with individual and corporate enterprise. They do not dry up the sources of revenue. When taxes are imposed for such purposes as equalization of incomes, or with a view to breaking up certain types of business, revenue considerations become subordinate, often forgotten, considerations. Penalty taxes of this sort discourage capital accumulation and destroy the incentive to embark on new enterprises. Furthermore, it makes for muddled thinking and irresponsible legislation to mix taxation with reform.

The House bill not only includes a new kind of penalty tax on undistributed profits but also provides a very inadequate modification of the capital gains tax. It makes no attempt to reduce the excessively high surtaxes on individual income in the upper brackets or to modify estate duties which are demonstrably deterring investment in productive enterprise.

If the Administration really wants "maximum revenue and maximum recovery," it must do a great deal more to lighten those penalty taxes which are now operating to check recovery and to create a dangerous condition of chronic unemployment.

Good Bad Dreams.

Now it appears that every little Briton with the price of admission will have the opportunity to see "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." We join the well-nigh universal applause which has followed this change of heart on the part of the British board of film censors.

The original decision of the board to certify Mr. Disney's film as suitable "for adults only," on the ground that certain sequences are likely to provoke fright and engender bad dreams, was open to obvious objections. It must have occurred to the censors on second thought that one fright more or less cannot matter very much to children who live in a world where the very department stores have counters of baby-size gas masks and billions are being spent for guns, battleships and planes.

Or take the matter of bad dreams. On sober reflection the censors must have realized that these have a certain value in themselves and that it is perhaps wrong to go out of the way to discourage them. Maybe the censors remembered, or were told, the touching little story about the poor widow, who could not afford to let her child see the circus. Therefore she thoughtfully fed him pickles, plum cake and clotted cream so he might enjoy the wild animals while he slept.

Another advantage of bad dreams is that sooner or later you wake up and realize that they are no more than bad dreams. There is nothing better calculated to make a man satisfied with his usual environment than a good nightmare.

How fortunate, for instance, if certain matters now disturbing the mind of Mr. Neville Chamberlain should turn out to be only dreams. Think, if you can, of Mr. Chamberlain tossing in the prime ministerial bed as he wrestles in imagination with divers improbable phantoms until finally he is thrown and throttled by something in a black shirt. Whereupon:

> . . . he frights and wakes,
> And being thus frightened . . .

opens his eyes long enough to get his bearings and then rolls over and sleeps again, this time, of course, quite soundly and serenely.

We leave it to you whether or not Mr. Chamberlain would enjoy his kippers at breakfast the next morning.

The Cost Of Isolation.

Under the Vinson bill the Government would be empowered to spend $1,171,000,000 for the upbuilding of the American fleet. This is a staggering sum, even in these days of inflated budgets. But, as the tide is setting, the burden of armaments, which the people of the United States will be called upon to bear, seems more likely to increase than to diminish.

Indeed, Senator Pittman, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, suggests expansion in the American naval construction program even beyond the limits provided in the Vinson bill. In his opinion, "the almost total absence of plans for peace" makes advisable naval expenditure of some $600,000,000 additional to that already proposed.

"Our Government," he says, "must be prepared to win if we are imposed upon by any government or group of governments." The last three words are significant. They emphasize the fact that refusal to join in collective action for peace does not immunize a nation against those who may believe in collective aggression.

Senator Pittman's point is well taken. If an isolated nation is successfully to defend itself against an aggressor or combination of aggressors it must be their equal in armed strength. Isolation implies the impossibility of looking to any other power or powers to join in the defense of threatened national interests. The isolated power must face the penalties as well as the advantages of a lonely position. Isolation may be a virtue, but present developments indicate that it can also be an extremely expensive one.

There are those who argue, with a logic that baffles understanding, that the United States should not only follow the policy of isolation, but should simultaneously refuse to build up its defense machinery. Far more convincing is the point made by the important Committee for Concerted Peace Efforts, in its current letter to the House Naval Affairs Committee. There it is pointed out that the only alternative to expanding armaments is a policy of world co-operation "to secure respect for treaties, to stop aggression, to provide security, to build the institutions of peace and to remove the causes of war."

"As one of the strongest and most favored nations," the committee concludes, "this country has a responsibility not only to co-operate but to give leadership to this policy of co-operation."

"We're just on the dawn of a new and great era of prosperity!" shouts an optimist. Oh, all right; but please don't wake us again until the sun comes up.

Another thing this country could do in the interest of peace would be to outlaw the Big Apple, which is manifestly a blood brother of the war dance.

"For exchange: Portable typewriter for .38-caliber revolver."—Classified ad. The best of luck to you, brother; hope you make some of those editors eat a batch of rejection slips.

"The National Labor Relations Board will continue to function indefinitely," declares an Administration official. The same as it has been functioning, eh?

Contribution To 'Orderly Processes.'

From the New York Post.

In the wake of a proposal to spend $140,000,000 on two battleships to protect our $130,000,000 investment in China, Secretary of State Hull chose to renounce the notion that America was interested in protecting trade. Said he:

"There is a broader and much more fundamental interest—which is, that orderly processes in international relationships be maintained."

Well, let's see how we are contributing to maintenance of those orderly processes.

Yesterday 6,000 tons of finished steel were loaded on the Japanese motorship Atlantic Maru, docked at a pier in Philadelphia. The Atlantic Maru is one of the largest Japanese freighters afloat. Its cargo was one of the largest to leave that port for Japan in many years.

And the steel is to be used for building warships—

In other words, while we are now preparing to spend more than $1,000,000,000 for expanding our Navy we send steel to help arm the nation our naval-building program is supposed to overawe.

This may be a contribution to "orderly processes."

But if it is, Heaven help Uncle Sam when his own arms are turned against him.

As Others See Us.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: That great Scotsman, Bobbie Burns, set forth in his verse for all time the advantage of seeing ourselves as others see us. Such a viewpoint is that of the following extract from the London Sphere, which may give some of us food for thought:

The United States contains 6 per cent of the world's area and 7 per cent of its population. It normally consumes 48 per cent of the world's coffee, 53 per cent of its tin, 56 per cent of its rubber, 21 per cent of its sugar, 72 per cent of its silk, 36 per cent of its coal, 42 per cent of its pig iron, 47 per cent of its copper and 69 per cent of its crude petroleum.

The United States operates 60 per cent of the world's telephone and telegraph facilities, owns 80 per cent of the motor cars in use, operates 33 per cent of the railroads. It produces 70 per cent of the oil, 60 per cent of the wheat and cotton, 50 per cent of the copper and pig iron and 40 per cent of the lead and coal output of the globe.

The United States possesses almost $11,000,000,000 in gold, or nearly half of the world's monetary metal. It has two-thirds of civilization's banking resources. The purchasing power of the population is greater than that of the 500,000,000 people in Europe or the more than a billion Asiatics.

Responsible leadership which cannot translate such a bulging economy into assured prosperity is destitute of capacity. But pompous statesmen, looking over the estate, solemnly declare that the methods by which it was created are all wrong, ought to be abandoned, must be discarded, that the time has come to substitute political management for individual initiative and supervision.

There is only one way to characterize that proposal—it is just plain damfoolishness.

Sherman Letters Sought.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the Library of Congress, at Washington, D. C., is a collection of Sherman papers; but it is sadly lacking in letters written by the late John Sherman. Since he had thousands of correspondents scattered over the United States, many of his letters probably have been preserved in private hands. It is desired to borrow such letters, so that copies may be added to the collection permanently housed in the library. Loans of letters are particularly desired at this time, because a biography of Senator Sherman is under preparation at the library.

John Sherman was an important figure, and anyone who helps to preserve his letters contributes definitely to our national history.

It is hoped that all those who have letters signed by Sherman may be moved to send copies of them, accurately transcribed, to the Library of Congress for my "attention." If originals are sent, they will be copied and returned immediately, or added to the preserved collection, according to the wish of the sender. This service to history and to the memory of Senator Sherman will be highly valued by historians. The project has the warm sympathy and cooperation of many members of the Sherman family, including Mr. P. Tecumseh Sherman, of New York City, and Mr. Henry S. Sherman, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Two Criticisms Of The Farm Act.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I thought the high water mark of legislative insanity had been reached when the national labor relations law was passed, but an examination of the "agricultural adjustment act of 1938," commonly referred to as the "farm bill," convinces me that there is no limit to the incompetency of the Congress.

This law makes a pamphlet of 52 pages, and is so complicated and involved that no one is capable of understanding it, a fact which was admitted by some Senators who voted for it. Because of its complications, absurdities and tyrannies it will break down when its enforcement is attempted. It far outdoes in collectivism and regimentation anything attempted by the Nazis in Germany or the Bolsheviks in Russia.

Could anyone have believed before the advent of the New Deal that such a law was possible in America? It rips the ship of state from stem to stern, and from starboard to port, and makes a mockery of the Constitution. It will turn loose upon the farmers such a horde of investigators, supervisors, snoopers and provocateurs that the seven plagues of Egypt would be a welcome substitute to the farmers.

If the farmers of America are not dead to all love of liberty, to their own future welfare, and to the preservation of our institutions, this law, when comprehended by them, as it will be when enforcement is attempted, will produce an explosion that will shake the country from center to circumference, drive the Communists out of Congress, and the executive departments of the Government, and may yet bring about a reaction that will save our liberties and our institutions from destruction.

A. S. L.

Washington, Feb. 28.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At a recent meeting of the Montgomery Farmers' Club, held at Sandy Spring, Md., the new farm bill just passed by Congress was earnestly discussed.

This organization of farmers, with 60 years of monthly meetings behind them, is fairly representative of two other local farmers' clubs—one nearly ready to celebrate a century of activity, which it is believed makes it the oldest organization of its kind in existence.

After an hour's discussion it was quite apparent that there was no one present who would wish to stand sponsor for this latest agricultural legislation. While all realize that agriculture is in urgent need of assistance, they were not at all certain that this new enactment is what is needed.

This little band of American farmers do not want public money for killing pigs or plowing under corn or cotton. Not a man among them would ask a handout from his Government. On the other hand they want to be able literally "to hoe their own row" and not be regimented and regulated out of a liberty of action and conscience born of a close relationship with Mother Nature.

The new bill, while it seems to regulate only five or six of our main crops, and this by a two-thirds vote of the farmers affected, is so ambiguous and involved, while its regulatory measures, under the direction and pleasure of the Secretary of Agriculture, seem so uncertain, that no one can tell whether it bodes good or evil for agriculture.

What will a farmer plant who is forced to curtail his corn crop? Or he who is required to sow less wheat? Suppose a farmer should raise more than his allowance of corn or wheat and feeds these to chickens or hogs, will he be allowed to sell the chickens or hogs?

With all this before them it would seem that the only thing left for the farmers to do, as much as they dislike the idea, is to walk up to the public crib and get theirs while it is yet available. But much rather would they have the privileges taken away from the few.

With extra high tariffs, subsidies and concessions abolished, everyone could start from scratch; then agriculture, industry and labor would soon find their level

It was felt that without trusts and monopolies, and with wise laws fairly and impartially administered, no one need want for work in a land of vast possibilities, and no one should go hungry in the midst of plenty.

R. BENTLEY THOMAS.
Sandy Spring, Md., Feb. 28.

Both Were Right.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that the sensation of the London cabinet crisis has subsided, it may be well for the American public to get a "peep behind the scenes" as regards the peace at any price policy of Great Britain.

In the recent crisis Eden was right and Chamberlain was right. Eden was right in demanding more loyalty and co-operation in the Italian negotiations and in insisting that there should be some reliable prospects of international good faith as a basis to the conversations. Anthony Eden is idolized generally in Europe, but detested and despised in Italy.

I assume Chamberlain and the cabinet realized this position. Despite the humiliation Great Britain had suffered, despite the flagrant breaches of international agreement, and despite the rapidly increasing military strength of Great Britain, Chamberlain with his practical businesslike brain saw that the alternative to a rapprochement with Italy was war with all its tragic consequences. He decided to play the dual role of foreign secretary and prime minister pro tem. in the hope that the progress of the parleys would be more speedy and more certain of fruition.

Then, again, in the mind of the prime minister were undoubtedly the signs of an approaching recession in trade and also the artificial factor in Great Britain's prosperity. Great Britain at the moment is being stimulated by a big housing program and spending $5,000,000 a day on armaments. The time is fast approaching when that form of stimulus will no longer be available, and an expansion of British overseas trade will be necessary if serious trade depression is to be avoided.

In making peace with Germany and Italy, Chamberlain saw that we should ont only open the channels of trade with these two countries, but that confidence and credit would be created in all the European countries upon which England depends so much for her trade.

In the minds of the cabinet also at this moment is the fervent hope of a satisfactory conclusion of the proposed trade agreement with America with all its potentialities for expanding world trade, prosperity and peace. An European and possibly a World War would sabotage the proposed Anglo-American trade agreement and bring about a repetition of world trade restriction and paralysis at a time when there are promising prospects of a restoration of world trade.

Visitor's Reactions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The enjoyment of visiting your beautiful city with its many wide, tree-lined streets is marred only by the pronounced lack of cleanliness on streets, about civic and private buildings. Even the grounds about the Public Library are an eyesore to a newcomer accustomed to clean streets and clean buildings. Why not put some of the vagrants, whom your police have rounded up, to work cleaning things up?

Since arriving here from the Pacific Coast ten days ago I have been "tackled" by over a dozen beggars—all well dressed. The last one was accompanied by a woman wearing a fine fur coat. Surely there must be some remedy for this deplorable condition existing in the busiest part of the city. It is very likely, of course, that I look too much like a Californian as yet, but I assure you I am assiduously practicing a first-class Washington poker face—apparently your most effective local defense against nuisances of all sorts.

Best Wishes.

She saw the two pickets when she got to the corner. They were walking up and down in front of the chain store with hands in their pockets and coat collars turned up, grabbing their hats now and then to keep them on or to push the brim back up when the wind blew it down over their eyes. She walked closer to the store and stood with her black leather shopping bag rolled up under her arm (her purse was inside it), and moved the glasses a little way down her nose; but even then she could not read more than a word or two at a time as the men's chests or backs swam into her sight for a second before they started toward the other end of the store. So it took her a few minutes to read all the words and piece them together:

THIS STORE IS UNFAIR TO ORGANIZED LABOR.

She didn't know what the initials in small letters stood for, but she knew the men were striking, and she thought how hard it must be not only for them to go up and down for hours in a cold wind that she coluld hardly walk through, but for their families when they got no pay. Because she had never forgotten that time (Lord, it must be 20 years ago!) when her Joe had been out two months with the carpenters, only that was in the summer and not as bad as if it had been cold weather; but even then she had had to argue with the grocer about credit and tell the landlord he would just have to wait till Joe went back to work.

So the next time one of the pickets walked close enough to her, she touched him on the shoulder lightly, rather timidly, and he stopped and smiled when he saw how little and old she was, dressed all in black with her eyes wet from the wind and her gloved hand shaking a little as she let it drop. He had to bend over sidewise to hear her.

"What are you striking for, young man? Don't they pay you enough?"

"No, ma'am. All we want is a little more money to live on and a little more time to be at home with our families."

"Oh, you have to work long hours too?"

"Yes, ma'am. Twelve hours or more some days, and you know that's too long."

"I reckon it is," she said. "You know, my husband (Lord 'a' mercy on his soul!) was in a strike once. They wanted more pay and shorter hours, too. I don't suppose you remember it, though. It must 'a been almost before you were born."

"Well, I guess you know how it is, then."

"'Deed I do, and I wish I could help you in some way."

"You are helping us. If we had more people like you on our side we'd win with no trouble at all."

"I wish you all the luck in the world," young man."

He said, "Thank you, ma'am," and marched on. She walked slowly, close to the store window. Then she stopped, looking in the window, and said aloud, "My that cauliflower looks good. It's been a long time since I had any, too, so I guess I'll get a head."

The vegetable-and-fruit stand was just inside the door, with trays of tomatoes, carrots, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, string beans, apples, oranges, grapefruit and bananas. She walked around it handling some of them, looking at them carefully, until a boy hurried over to wait on her. But she said, "I think I'll get some meat, first. Do you have a good kidney?"

"Yes, ma'am. They just came in this morning." He ran behind the counter and showed her three kidneys before she took one. Then he weighed it and wrapped it up, but she made him put an extra piece of paper around it to keep the blood from soaking through into her shopping bag. "I don't know what's come over these clerks," she mumbled. "You'd think they'd know enough to put kidneys in one a them little trays. She went back to the vegetable stand and took a bunch of carrots and a bunch of celery before she remembered the cauliflower. "Oh, yes," she said to the boy, "how much is that cauliflower in the window?"

"Twenty cents apiece," the boy said. "Could I give you a head or two?"

"I want to pick it out." While she was inspecting it she looked through the window as a picket went by, holding his hat. The wind caught the cardboard sign over his chest and threw it up against his face. He was the one she had talked to in the street. "Those poor men," she said. "I wish I could do something for them."

She watched him pull his sign down and straighten it out while she felt a head of cauliflower. The boy looked at her and opened his mouth. Then she smiled, gave him the cauliflower, and walked over to the apple tray. She was more careful there than she had been with the meat and vegetables, making sure that the two apples she bought were perfect.

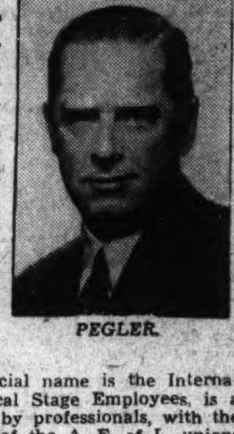
Hollywood Labor: Finis.

Los Angeles

IF YOU ARE BORED with this little series of serious essays on the labor problem of Hollywood you have nothing on me, because for some reason it doesn't jell, and, after today, to hell with it! I hate to throw down any story, most of all one of my own, but I doubt that the Writers' Union will grow enough muscle to impose a closed shop and an indirect but effective form of censorship, and it seems unlikely that the alliance of stagehands, gaffers and other black-gang will ever take over the beautiful dilettante laborites of the Actors Union and cut a 10 per cent slice right off the top of those $200,000 and $400,000 salaries.



PEGLER.

The Alliance, whose official name is the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, is a tough, practical outfit, led by professionals, with the characteristic ruthlessness of the A. F. of L. unions toward those who are excluded from membership and can't get jobs because they have no union cards. But George Brown, the president, has raised the rates of pay about 25 per cent in the last few years, and therefore is strong with the membership, in addition to which he is no man to stand for monkey business in the ranks.

* * * *

Democracy is a nice word, and nobody loves to use it more than the ideology guys on the butchers' paper magazines, but everybody with any realism knows that many union members have long since come to the point of trading in their democratic rights for substantial results in the way of pay, hours and conditions. This enables union leaders to levy income taxes and special assessments at their own discretion, but they are nice judges of pressure and do not bear down with sufficient force to smash their own organizations.

Union strength, on the other hand, permits loafers to stall on the job under union protection, in the hope of throwing the work into overtime, and tends to gum up the works and stretch the task by forbidding one man to handle both the dustpan and the broom. Under strong unionism in the studios a man gets $1.21 an hour for throwing a switch to light a lamp, thanks in large part to Mr. Brown. Are you expecting him to get up in meeting and dispute the wisdom of the executives?

* * * *

EVERY NOW AND AGAIN there appears in print some crack from the Alliance about how nice it would be if the actors were absorbed into one great, happy family under Mr. Brown, and whenever that happens the actors think of their income taxes, agents' commissions and the expense of keeping up with the Joneses and scream defiance. Apparently, however, the Alliance is just ribbing the actors for the pleasure of seeing union amateurs display their amateurism, because the move has never been made.

Mr. Brown knows where his strength is. He is strongest in the projection rooms of the movie theaters all over the country, where he controls the movie operators, and he can and probably will act much tougher with the producers than he has up to date.

The Alliance is working under a five-year contract with the producers, which still has three years to go, but is adjustable every year in minor respects. This agreement comes up for such minor adjustments in New York in April, but there seems to be no alarm.

* * * *

MR. BROWN will get what he wants provided he doesn't demand jurisdiction over the actors, who can't be delivered by the producers, anyway, although he might toss off some remarks about the proposition just to make the actors realize that life is very real and earnest in the union business and no mere matter of parlor ideals and painless sympathies.

The writers' yearnings are still denied, and the rival organization, known as a house union, holds a long whip in the contention that the greatest writer on earth might be barred from the screen for adhering to his principles, while incredibly awful hacks prepared the drama of the U. S. A. They take themselves too seriously, but that is a common failing in Hollywood, where people live under gas on incomes that can't be matched outside the world of dreams.

The Once Over

Extra! Horse Racing May Turn Honest!

Horse racing in America is showing incredible signs of turning over a new leaf and going straight.

* * * *

Evils so glaring that even the horses must have known about 'em, and which have been protected and encouraged by racing associations for years are beginning to get a little serious attention from within.

* * * *

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt startled the racing moguls recently by coming out openly against the ancient and dishonorable tradition permitting owners to bamboozle the public by entering horses "just for the exercise."

* * * *

In almost every race on a racing card horses are run purely for conditioning or merely for the purpose of waiting for a long price, and one of the curious spectacles at our best tracks is the frenzied rush of the smart betters and their agents to find out which owners are really trying. But out in the grandstand Emil P. Glutz, representing the rank and file of the cash customers, deprived of any such illuminating data, assumes the race is honest and that it is safe to bet on any horse permitted to run.

* * * *

The higher-ups of racing have defended the tradition to a man, Mr. Vanderbilt causing a new high for the raised eyebrow movement when he declared it thoroughly dishonest and urged that horses not trying be excluded from the betting. Nothing like this proposal that the public be given an even break has so startled the biggies of American racing whose reaction has been limited to a harsh "Tut! Tut!"

* * * *

Mr. Vanderbilt says that horse owners who wish to school their horses should school them in schooling races especially designated for that purpose and held in the morning, and asks that all owners be compelled to state when they are or are not trying in a race held for the edification of the cash customers. (Cries of "Treason!" "Hear! Hear!" and "What's to become of the old slogan "Never give a sucker an even break!"?)

* * * *

The opposition is based on many grounds, the chief of which is that while it might be easy to make the horses turn honest some of the owners have been nefarious for so many years that nothing could reform 'em.

* * * *

Nevertheless there are signs of better days in the racing world. Every few days now the associations issue some such statement as this: "The further entry of the horse Dippy Denny has been refused by the stewards except when accompanied by a veterinarian's certificate of soundness, following his poor showing in recent races."

* * * *

Imagine the name being elevated to the point where any performance by any horse is sufficiently bad to arouse a steward!

* * * *

Things may reach a stage any day now where a ban will be put on an owner who has whispered out of the side of his mouth for so many years that every time he hears a leaking tire he thinks it the cue for a new conspiracy to take the trusting public for a ride.

No More Debt Worries.

Hitler's Goal

Dodd's "Secret Testimony" Amply Confirmed By Nazi Utterances And Publications; Chamberlain's Intentions Scored.

By S. Miles Bouton.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

WILLIAM E. DODD, former Ambassador to Germany, has given "secret testimony" before the House Foreign Affairs Committee revealing "an alleged plan by which, he said, Germany and Italy may attempt to gain complete control of Danubian Europe and the Mediterranean."

Dr. Dodd is quoted as saying that he had seen maps in Berlin which outlined the domain which Germany wants. "This territory," he said, "purportedly includes the Netherlands, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia and the Polish Corridor, in addition to whatever could be obtained through the Nazifying of Austria and the Balkan states." German school children were being taught that it is Germany's right to control these nations, and Mussolini had his eyes on Spain, Egypt and Palestine. He is further reported:

"Il Duce is particularly anxious to gain control of southern Spain and extend his domain across the Straits of Gibraltar into Spanish Morocco as a check against British domination of the Mediterranean."

Plans Long Grasped By Observers Of Nazis.

IF THIS BE "secret testimony," and if "purportedly" must be used in speaking of a Nazi map including the territory named for conquest, then a large part of the reporting done from and about Germany in the last five years has made little impression on a good many people. But it is unlikely that Mr. Dodd felt that he was disclosing anything startlingly new, despite the fact that it may very well have been new to the foreign affairs committee. It should long since have become a matter of common knowledge to all students of the European situation that the plans and the map described exist. French Tunis should be added to Mussolini's demands, also. And there is a Fascist map of "Universal Rome," which includes all the Empire of the Caesars—and more.

What is back of the fact that these "secret disclosures" may have astonished the Congressmen and other persons is the unwillingness and even inability of peoples of pacific lands to believe that any nation can in the twentieth century openly and seriously plan conquests by aggression on the lines followed by Alexander the Great and Napoleon I. They do not believe it, will not credit it.

A similar situation exists in Great Britain. Anthony Eden knows what is coming. Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and other members of Nancy Astor's "Cliveden set" do not believe it. Hence Mr. Eden is thrown to the Nazi and Fascist wolves, and Mr. Chamberlain moves along the road of those good intentions that pave the way to hell.

In all the nine years following their abortive uprising of November 9, 1923, in Munich, the Nazis proclaimed that when they came to power the Jewish and Marxist press would be confiscated and its property seized. Germans outside the party regarded this as an empty threat, made for campaigning purposes. Nowhere was the sense of justice more keenly developed than in the German Empire, and the independence of the courts had been preserved under the republic.

Hitler's Other Threats Carried To Fulfillment.

ONE OF the first moves of the Nazis, come to power, was to make good their threat. Even the personal property of Marxist editors was confiscated.

Long before Adolf Hitler came to power he declared that "heads would roll" when he came. The great majority of the Germans regarded this also as an empty threat.

Far more than a thousand heads have "rolled" in the five bloody years of his reign—almost as many as Soviet Russia has to its discredit in the same period—and each week increases the number.

In the same manner one threat, one announcement, after another has been made good. Germany was to be rearmed. It has been done. The Versailles Treaty was to be torn up. It has been done. The lost territories were to be regained. Danzig is already, in effect, a part of Germany; Austria will soon be a part. Then comes Czechoslovakia.

There has been a consistency about Hitler's actions, a consequence, which ought to be a warning to the rest of the world. But Mr. Chamberlain and his advisers obviously do not realize it.

Why not let Germany expand? ask these persons who will not or cannot understand the meaning of what has happened. Why not let Germany take Austria, which is German and originally wanted to become a part of the republic? It should, of course, have become such part. That it was not permitted to do so was one of the hundreds of criminal blunders perpetrated by the allies. Now it is too late.

A government headed by a Gustav Stresemann would in all probability now see Austria as a part of the Republic, and colonies would follow. But today the loss of Austria's independence is but another step in a plan which menaces all eastern and southern Europe, and which, if carried out in full, will create an aggressive, powerful, militaristic state which teaches its children that war is a noble thing and that Germany has a "historical mission" to dominate the world.

Nazi Writer Gives Precise Description.

FURTHER LIGHT on the Nazis' aims, if any were needed, is given by a book by Gustav Paul, entitled "Race and State in the Northeast Space" (or Room), recently published in Munich by a Nazi publishing house. (There are none but Nazi publishing houses). The book's aim is to demonstrate that this "Northeast Space" is, historically and racially, German territory. It is bounded on the west by the Elbe, Sudete Mountains and Carpathians, on the north by the Baltic Sea, and on the east by the twenty-eighth or thirtieth meridian of longitude. It is roughly comprehended in a triangle drawn from Luebeck eastward to Leningrad, thence south to the mouth of the Danube in the Black Sea, and thence back to Luebeck.

This triangle would include the three Baltic states, a slice of western Russia including Odessa, all of Poland, part of Rumania and Czechoslovakia. Austria and Hungary are, of course, regarded as already in Germany's orbit.

Paul declares naturally that the entire civilization and culture in this "Northeastern Space" is of German origin. Even Poland, he says, was created by the Normans, "that is, men of the Nordic race, who came from the Baltic territory."

The book, only one of scores setting up the claim that almost everything in Europe is Germanic, closes with this paragraph:

"The greatness of our leader's policy is the fact that it was not first developed after he came to power, but its basic principles are already contained in his 'Mein Kampf,' which appeared in 1925. Here we find the proud sentence which stood as motto over the great Berlin Exposition of 1933:

"'We stop the eternal trek of the Germans toward the west and south in Europe, and direct their gaze toward the land of the east.'"

Awakening Of Duce Might Block Program.

THE ONLY THING that could keep Mr. Chamberlain's policy of trying to kill a dragon with kind words from utter disaster would be, it seems to me, a realization by Mussolini that the effectuating of Hitler's policy would mean the eventual disappearance of Italy from the scene as a real power.

In addition to what Il Duce must know about Nazi plans, there have recently been happenings which should have warned him. Before Hitler came to power a constant propaganda was kept up in Germany for the return of the South Tyrol, that ancient Germanic province which another criminal blunder of the Wise Men of 1919 handed over to Italy, despite the fact that there was but a handful of Italians and other Latin elements among the population. With Hitler's advent, that propaganda stopped abruptly—the result, of course, of a far-sighted order.

But in January the "Union for Germans Abroad," a Nazified propaganda organization, resumed the demands for the return of South Tyrol, and posted in Munich placards calling on the Germans "not to be deceived by Italian lying propaganda." This is strong language in the circumstances.

There comes to me now a supplement to the January number of Wille und Macht, a Nazi magazine. It was, of course, printed in December. It contains a sharp attack on Italian Senator Tolomei because of his efforts in Italianizing the South Tyrolese. Tolomei was the chief target for such attacks under the republic. That they are now resumed is significant, to say the least.

The Rome-Berlin axis may be all that Mussolini thinks it is. If he keeps on thinking so, he will be taken for a ride—but that will be too late to help Mr. Chamberlain.

Mutiny In Graz

By

Barnet Nover.

Schuschnigg Vs. The Nazis.

GRAZ, city of 150,000, is the capital of Styria, after Vienna the most populous province in Austria. In Styria are to be found Austria's principal deposits of high-grade ore and an important concentration of heavy industry.

The control of these mines and industries is, for the most part, not in Austrian but in German hands. This is a circumstance which helps explain why Styria is and for the past five years at least has been the most pro-Nazi region in Austria.

Heavy industry in Germany has never had reason to regret the support it gave Hitler before he came into power. The rearmament program which the Fuehrer has pushed so earnestly has produced handsome dividends for the munitions makers of the Reich. And their affiliates in Austria have had no reason to complain of Hitler, either. So they, too, have not been averse to helping the Nazi cause.

In Styria, the Alpin Montan and other important metallurgical concerns, have regularly diverted part of the large profits earned by them to finance the Nazi movement.

* * * *

BUT EVEN BEFORE Styria became Nazi it was already Fascist. It was one of the first provinces to develop a Heimwehr, not the so-called Home Defense Corps whose principal purpose was to destroy the Socialists and transform Austria into a totalitarian state—on Italian lines. The patron of this movement in Styria was the provincial governor, Dr. Anton Rintelen, who has just been released after being jailed in 1934 for complicity in the plot that led to the assassination of Dollfuss.

When Prince Rudiger von Starhemberg, Hitler's associate in the beer-hall putsch of 1923, became leader of the Heimwehr in 1931, Styria was the scene of a revolt headed by Waldemar Pfriemer which came within an ace of succeeding. And in the years following the murder of Dollfuss, when the Nazi movement was driven underground, Styria remained a hotbed of Hitlerism.

* * * *

THE BERCHTESGADEN meeting of Hitler and Schuschnigg and the Autsrian chancellor's reluctant capitulation to the Fuehrer in the matter of cabinet reorganization at Vienna brought the Nazis out in the open everywhere in Austria. But in Styria the Nazi challenge to Schuschnigg is the most formidable he has yet encountered.

Schuschnigg himself has made it clear that he proposes to obey the Austro-German agreement of July 11, 1936 with its Berchtesgaden amendments to the letter, but to go no further than that. In other words, while prepared to be lenient to the Nazis, even to the extent of turning over key positions in the government to them, he does not propose to abdicate in their favor.

But the Nazis think otherwise. They feel sure that Hitler is behind them. Did he not in his speech of February 20 assume a moral protectorate over the 10,000,000 Germans of Austria and Czechoslovakia? Did he not carefully refrain from reasserting his 1936 declaration pledging to respect Austria's independence? So with their aims supported by so powerful a patron the Austrian Nazis are not willing to go slow. They want Anschluss, in fact if not in name, to come soon.

* * * *

NOW AS BEFORE Schuschnigg would have little to worry about if he could deal with the Styrian situation purely as a local phenomenon. But it is the tragedy of his and Austria's position that he cannot.

When he sent troops to Graz to prevent a threatened Nazi demonstration in that city he knew that to employ these troops against the Nazis meant civil war and that civil war might provide Hitler with the opportunity to seek to end the Austrian question by force majeure. Indeed Gen. Goering in blunt and brutal fashion indicated that very possibility in his speech of Tuesday. Said Goering:

"When the Fuehrer, in his Reichstag speech, submitted his proud accounting and employed the proud words that we would no longer tolerate that 10,000,000 German national comrades should be oppressed beyond our borders, then you know as soldiers of the air force, that if it must be, you must back these words of the Fuehrer to the last."

* * * *

UNWILLING to use force to suppress the Nazi movement in Styria, Schuschnigg has had to use moral suasion. He sent his new minister of the interior, Dr. Seyss-Inquart, to Graz.

Seyss-Inquart is Schuschnigg's close friend. He is also a devout Catholic. But he is also, surprisingly enough, a friend of Hitler's. Moreover his appointment as interior minister was the direct consequence of his pro-Nazi leanings.

Seyss-Inquart received an ovation from the Styrian Nazis in a parade they staged despite the government ban on such demonstrations. His own orders to the Brown Shirts to cease and desist fell on deaf ears. Insofar as he had any authority at all, that authority came from the willingness of the Nazi leaders to obey him.

Thus at Graz mutiny has been the order of the day. And it is not at all unlikely that the battle for the body and soul of Austria that has been raging for years may be won and lost in that Styrian city.

* * * *

WHO WILL BE the winner in this fight remains to be seen. So far as the people of Austria as a whole are concerned, the popularity of Schuschnigg's course of trying to prevent the Nazification of his country is unquestionable. But the Austrians alone may not be able to decide their own fate.

Were it not for German support and, as suggested by one writer—the New York Times correspondent, G. E. Gedye—German direction, the Graz mutiny might not have taken place. Certainly it could easily be put down. Graz is thus the answer to Schuschnigg's speech of a week ago even as that speech was the answer to Hitler's Reichstag pronunciamento.

In this battle of polemics Hitler overwhelmingly has the upper hand, and will continue to have unless Austria can rally outside support in her behalf. But that may be precisely why Goering has seen fit to talk in bellicose terms of an air expedition to be sent to "defend" the seven million "German national comrades" of Austria. Again and again such a threat of force has worked. Goering's speech is a warning to France and Italy that the sword of Damocles again hangs over their heads.

Accidents And Manners

By J. P. McEvoy.

Agility Supplants Civility.

IT DOESN'T MATTER so much if you are walking down the street and you are rude enough to push someone aside; but if you are rude enough to push him aside with a 3-ton motor going 60 miles an hour, you'll kill him.

You can elbow your way through a crowd, if you are impolite, and do no damage at all. But when you elbow your way through traffic with your bad manners stepped up a hundred horsepower, you're bound to do a lot of damage to a lot of innocent people.

For every accident caused by high speeding, there are a thousand caused by low breeding. Is it coincidence that the nation which leads in fatalities lags in formalities? The American may not be the most uncivil citizen on two feet, but he is certainly the prize terror on four wheels.

Today we put a premium on agility rather than civility. Each year our manners become cruder as our gasoline becomes more refined. Wide roads won't prevent accidents, so long as they continue to fill up with narrow people. Good brakes on cars are no protection against bad breaks in behavior.

The growing problem of motorcar fatalities will not be solved around the drafting board, but around the family table. Then we can have a monster under the hood, because there will be a gentleman at the wheel.

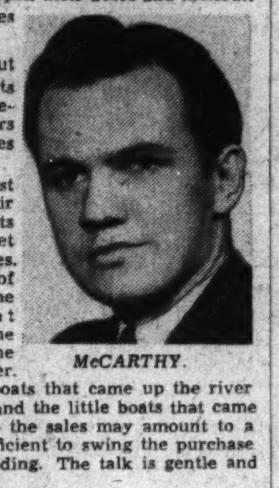
Spring Along The Waterfront.

IT WAS nice yesterday. The breeze off the Potomac was mild. And Water street was celebrating in its own way.

The fish dealers threw open their doors and the fruit dealers put their wares back on the sidewalk.

And when the stout women in black cloth coats walked up and down before the stands the dealers inquired, "Nice vegetables . . . lady?"



McCARTHY.

And the fish dealers just stood there, letting the air run through their markets and carry into the street the savor of their wares.

But the real romance of Water street and the Washington waterfront was to be found behind the red brick cubicles on the street, down by the water.

There were the little boats that came up the river from the Eastern Shore and the little boats that came up from Norfolk. There the sales may amount to a dime, but the talk is sufficient to swing the purchase of the Empire State Building. The talk is gentle and slow.

"Hello, pop," says the man on the 50-foot Virginia Estelle.

"Hi, boy," says Pop.

"How much the shad today?" says Pop, leaning over the side of the wharf and examining the fish.

"Too much, Pop," the salesman says. "The price is high today."

Pop spits into the river, hears the price and agrees. There's no high pressure.

* * * *

"POP, how about the pretty girls you said you'd bring down to the boat?" said the guy in the cabin of the Virginia Estelle. He was the one who took in the money for the fish sold.

"I was just talkin'," said Pop, not at all abashed, and he pulled his sweater down over his stout tummy. "I was just talkin'. How much are these trout?"

That's the way the sales go on, hour after hour, along the waterfront. Nobody's in a hurry. They'd rather know what happened to Pop's promise to bring a pretty girl along with him than—the number of fish he wants.

There isn't any of the sharp-tongued bargaining of the average market place. There's just a bunch of guys in small boats, that came up the river from Crisfield, Md., on the Eastern Shore, or from Norfolk. They want to sell fish. But there's no strain.

They come up on Wednesday, their boats loaded with oysters, shad, trout and porgies. If sales are good they go back in a day or two. At worst they go back Saturday.

"We don't catch these fish ourselves," said one of the men on the Virginia Estelle. "We buy them up around Crisfield and bring 'em up the river in 15 hours. We sleep on the boats. Sure, go in and look around."

The Virginia Estelle is a typical fish boat. It carries half a dozen varieties of fish in the hold from the Eastern Shore. While in Washington, the three-man crew sleeps on board.

The boat is a dirty white and motorized, although built for sailing, too. And there's an old iron stove up in the forepart, where the steering is done.

Down below there's the cabin, and there are three good sized bunks, covered with patchwork quilts such as those in style 50 years ago. Back of the cabin is a little oil stove in what serves as the galley.

Though it was mid-afternoon when I was down there, they had fish frying on the stove.

"Mess o' trout," said the fellow in blue overalls who was watching them anxiously.

And when you smell the frying fish and hear the soft voices out in front and the closing of unhurried deals and the grateful "thank you" after the sales, it isn't hard to believe that life is pleasant aboard the Virginia Estelle as it plows up the river from the Eastern Shore.

* * * *

"SALT WATER oysters, mister?" said the red-headed guy on the Seaman's Pride.

"Just looking," I told him.

And the Seaman's Pride was something to look at. It was a 40-footer, steered from the rear and capable of carrying 225 bushels of oysters. But it had no cabin for the pilot, and it's sleeping space was smaller than a dog house, under the bow of the boat.

Business was slow, according to the fellow in the blue overalls, but he didn't seem to worry.

But nobody seems to worry down along the waterfront. They stand there, try ancient salesmanship by polite suggestion, and then turn away and watch the sun glinting off the Potomac.

The fish boats that come up the river may not be modern-day business. And there may be an element of heartbreak for their crew on the days when sales are bad. But there's a rich, old fashioned touch of romance in their coming.

Sleek trucks from down the Rappahannock draw up to the fish houses along Water street. And they make the journey, with their fish, in a lot less time. But tenaciously hanging on are the fish boats that come up the Potomac in 8 to 15 hours.

And their crews are polite and diffident. They like to talk to the customers. And they name their boats with glamorous names like Virginia Estelle, or proud names like Seaman's Pride, and call each other "Captain."

And while the boats aren't really in line with modern-day business, there's something lovely about them for all their stench of fish. And yesterday, when spring came back to Washington, it was probably glad to find them still tied up along the Water street wharves.

Senate Gets Bill To Limit Bank Holding Firms

Measure by Two Ex-Chiefs of Treasury Is Backed by Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

An Administration-backed bill for tight Government controls on bank-holding companies reached the Senate yesterday under sponsorship of Senators Glass (Democrat), Virginia, and McAdoo (Democrat), California.

The bill would prevent creation of any additional bank-holding companies, would prohibit existing companies from acquiring control of additional banks and would impose numerous restrictions on their operations.

Senate leaders said the measure had the full backing of the Administration. Glass submitted it to President Roosevelt Tuesday.

King Leads Opposition.

The bill was expected to encounter opposition from some conservative Senators. Senator King (Democrat), Utah, voiced immediate protest.

Glass said the bill would bring under regulation 50 holding companies which control 500 banks with assets of $8,000,000,000.

Such banks would be forbidden to make loans in the future to affiliated institutions, to purchase securities from affliates or to make loans secured by stock affiliates.

FDIC Placed in Charge.

They would be required to collect existing loans of such charcater within three years.

All bank-holding companies and their subsidiaries would be subect to regular investigation.

Further, banks could not make dividend payments to companies which acquired bank stock in violation of the act, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation could dismiss from insurance any bank violating the act. The program would be admisintered by the FDIC.

Roosevelt Called 'Loafer' by G.O.P. Member of House

By the Associated Press.

Representative Rich (Republican), Pennsylvania, threw the House into an uproar yesterday by shouting at the top of his lungs that President Roosevelt never had done a day's work in his life.

Democrats snapped back, with Representative McCormack (Democrat), Massachusetts, asserting it was "very unwise, highly improper and decidedly unethical for anyone to attack or impugn the President of the United States."

Rich asked about the President's autographing campaign books sold by the Democratic National Committee for $250.

"Did he get any money from that?" McCormack barked.

Representative Hoffman (Republican), Michigan, lambasted the sale of tickets at $100 apiece for Democratic dinners.

"You sold them to those boys and girls in the departments," he said. "Coercion, that's what it was. You know those boys and girls had to buy those tickets or lose their jobs. You sold them on the installment plan—$25 down."

Travelers Aid to Meet.

The annual meeting of the Travelers Aid Society will be held at 12:30 p. m. March 8 at Barker Hall, Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

UPWARD of 1,600 midnight-shift employes of the Social Security Board in Baltimore have gone on a 5-day, 35-hour week—for which Local 17, U. F. W. A., takes credit . . . "This is the first time that a 35-hour week has been achieved for Government employes solely as a result of union activity," commented Marion R. Malone, the local president . . . All the unions have been contending that night workers are deserving of special consideration, and the activity on behalf of those in the Candler Building had been pressed over months.

HUMOR AS HEARD at the testimonial banquet to Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines: From Representative Griswold—"A man in public life must be like a Christmas tree, giving something all the time" . . . From Senator Pat Harrison—"One of the most difficult things I know is to climb a rail fence leaning toward you, to kiss a girl leaning from you and to make a speech with only 40 days for preparation" . . . From Senator McCarran—"The local police force is under the civil service; one candidate for a job was asked this question on examination: 'What would you do to disperse a mob?' The candidate answered: 'I would pass the hat.'" .. ..

PIERCE M. RICE, chairman of I. D. R. A. Activities, is downright riled at the boys who Big Apple and otherwise cavort in hard-soled shoes on the nice, slick floor of the Activities Space.

"It is amazing that persons with sufficient intelligence to hold down a Government job should be so lacking in the fundamentals of propriety and sportsmanship as to damage property of others," says he in the forthcoming (but delayed issue) of the I. D. R. A. News.

But Editor Barrett assumes, in an appended paragraph, his usual conciliatory course: "In extenuation, those half dozen who were observed romping about with heavy shoes the other Saturday afternoon may not have been I. D. R. A. members. They may not have been Interior employes. At least we hope not."

AND WHILE ON the subject of Interior: When constabulary duties are to be done, it is refreshing to think of the tact, politeness, even graciousness that was shown by the seargeant of the guard when he performed constabulary duties upon us this week. Being haled to the guard room, along with a photographer, for having taken pictures without formal permission, the sergeant displayed such Emily Post manners as actually to make the incident memorably enjoyable. We recommend him, forthwith, not only for commendation from his superiors but for a high post in the State Department.

WONDER WHY the chiefs are so skittish about taking pictures in there? So far as we know, Interior doesn't own a single secret document on the Panama Canal or the West Coast defenses. But, of course, one might get some inside information, and photographs of the newer Indian adobe huts, the plans of which, we understand, Hitler is just wild to have.

IN OFF-HOURS: An "Artist and Model Soiree" will be flung by Local 12, U. F. W. A., at the Hayloft, 1326 Massachusetts avenue, Saturday night, starting at 9, Miss Helen Schnetzler writes us. Wear a costume, if you like . . . D. C. Post 17, Irish War Veterans, writes in: "The grand ballroom of the Willard Hotel will be the principal place of real carnival atmosphere on March 17. Styled the St. Patrick's Day ball. Irish war veterans of Washington promise those attending this gala event a really enjoyable evening." The hours are 9:30 to 2; Happy Walker's Orchestra plays . . . The annual dinner-dance of Fetracom, social club of the FTC, will be held in the Italian garden, Mayflower Hotel, Saturday evening. Following the dinner, which will be served at 7 o'clock, a program will be presented by Fetracom members. Dancing begins at 10, to Johnny Slaughter's Orchestra. Tickets may be obtained at the FTC from Miles J. Furnas, Helen M. Drawbaugh, Margaret Byrne, Genevieve G. Meehan, Virginia Howse, Marie L. Gordon, Geneva Yeager and Margaret F. Harden.

ADD INTERESTING PEOPLE Who Come to Town: John W. Spencer, assistant regional forester, Region 2, Rocky Mountain area. He has cleared up an interesting point, viz.—how the Government obtains such an accurate census of its big game. It had seemed to us an incredibly difficult task, to count the buffalo, elk, deer, coyote, etc., by the head. They do it often by airplane, flying low above the areas where the game congregates, and leaning from the cockpit, start counting . . . And something else: We had thought that skiing was the pastime of the sports; Spencer relates as how the most hardened and cynical old-timers on the ranges have taken to ski, not so much for fun as utility . . . And you should watch those old-timers make the curves and make the leaps for the dear old Forest Service.

THE WORK of the national parks in preserving and maintaining the Civil War battlefields in Virginia—how the fields have been made accessible and how American history is taught on the ground—were discussed last night by Branch Spaulding, co-ordinating superintendent of the Virginia Military Parks, in the Interior Auditorium . . . His lecture was illustrated . . . The Civil Service Commission announces examinations as follows: Marketing specialist, and principal, senior, associate and assistant marketing specialists, $2,600 to $5,000, Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Associate agronomist and superintendent, $3,200; assistant agronomist (sugar beet investigation), $2,600; assistant plant physiologist (sugar beet investigations), $2,600; Bureau of Plant Industry. Junior veterinarian, $2,000, Bureau of Animal Industry. The closing date is March 28.

Dr. Tuve Outlines System He Uses In Atom Smashing

Smashing of the atom which led to discovery of the third basic physical force known in the universe was described Tuesday by Dr. Merle A. Tuve, of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism, Carnegie Institution of Washington.

This force, discovered two years ago by Dr. Tuve and his associates, is known as "supergravitation." It is the inconceivably strong force which binds together parts of the nuclei of atoms. Without this tremendous force, which would make feathers weigh tons if it worked as gravity, the entire universe might be only a dead sea of hydrogen gas.

The 10-year program of smashing atoms by forces as great as 1,000,000 volts has shown that the parts of all atoms are not only similar but identical, he said. The force which has been discovered is the one which binds these atom parts together in varying combinations to form the multitude of different chemical elements.

U. S. Approves Bid For 4 Cargo Ships

The Maritime Commission announced yesterday that it had approved a bid by the Tampa, Fla., Shipbuilding & Engineering Co., for the construction of four Diesel-type, single screw, steel cargo vessels.

The Tampa firm bid $1,815,663 for each of the four vessels, or a total of $7,262,652 for the group.

The Maritime Commission had asked bids on 12 such cargo vessels, and the bids submitted by all except two firms were so high that Joseph P. Kennedy, formerly chairman of the commission, told President Roosevelt that the whole program of rehabilitating the merchant marine was endangered.

The Lunts Shun Capital Again In Offering Comedy Premiere

'The Sea Gull' Is to Be Seen First in Baltimore; Ethel Barrymore Coming in New Play Soon; Notes and Gossip of Theater.

IT is that eminent veteran of the theater, Howard Herrick, long identified with the better things of the playhouse, who drops a line to the effect that it now can be definitely stated that the Theater Guild will present the Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne production of Chekhov's comedy of "The Sea Gull" at Ford's Theater, in Baltimore, for four nights beginning Wednesday, March 16, with matinees on Thursday and Saturday.

BELL.

This will be a first time on any stage of the Lunts' performance in the play and will mark the first time they ever have appeared in Baltimore twice in a single season.

From Baltimore the company will go direct to New York, opening in the Shubert Theater on March 31, where the stars will alternate the new work—for them—with "Amphitryon 38" for the remainder of the season.

The version of the Chekhov drama to be used is a translation by Stark Young, novelist and drama critic. Robert Milton will be the director and Robert Edmond Jones will be responsible for the stage settings.

Miss Fontanne will be seen in the role of Irina and Mr. Lunt as Trigorin. As is always the case, the Lunts have surrounded themselves with a distinguished cast of players, many of whom have appeared with them during the past several seasons. Foremost among these brilliant artists will be Richard Whorf and Sydney Greenstreet. Among the new additions to the company may be mentioned Margaret Webster, in the role of Masha; John Barclay, as Dr. Dorn; Harold Moffet, who will be the Shamarov; Ute Hagen, as Nina, and C. Z. Whitehead, as Medvedenko. Edith King, who has been with the Lunts all season, will play Pauline.

Although announced as one of the bookings for the new Theater Guild season in Washington, it seems that once again these celebrated stars have chosen to ignore the Capital as a likely opening spot for one of their major undertakings. Last year, it may be recalled, "Amphitryon" was expected to be a Washington fall opening, but was accorded its first presentation in San Francisco in midsummer, instead.

How come all this?

* * * *

However, there is some more cheerful news on tap. For the week of Monday, March 14, Ethel Barrymore will return to the stage of the National Theater in "Whiteoaks," a new vehicle in which she now is meeting with handsome success in Canada, notably Montreal and Toronto. The play was adapted from the popular series of novels from the pen of Mazo de Larouche and in it, of all things, Miss Barrymore appears as a grandmother!

* * * *

What is colloquially referred to as the "social whirl" has taken on the dizzying velocity of a high-geared merry-go-round.

The whole thing started with that stuck-in-the-mud banquet engagement out at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Muto, in Belle Haven, Va., a week ago Tuesday night—where we arrived for a 7 o'clock repast at about nine. Then came the Sunday night spaghetti supper, tossed by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur de Titta, in their apartment at Wardman, Sunday night. And this Tuesday night there was that recherche gathering of the clans in the Blue Room of the Shoreham, at which Ruth Barnard and J. Gardiner Moore were joint hosts.

The Shoreham joust had a very elegant genesis. It was supposed to be dedicated to the contemplation of a series of motion pictures in a "nickelodeon" series, after which the major house managers in the downtown area were expected to write criticisms of the five local drama critics. That would have been something to read! But owing to mechanical and other difficulties the motion pictures never came off. But the drama desks did. They were there in four-fifths of their maximum strength—or weakness.

During the course of the evening, that incorrigible young mischief-maker, Barnee, called upon the members of the so-called Fourth Estate to step out on the floor and into the face of that terrorizing "mike" and make themselves heard. Mr. Carmody, of the Star, and Miss Hillyer, of the News, contented themselves with taking bows at the table—which was the smart thing to do. The other two of us fell for the abominable business.

Betty Hynes, of course, made the best speech and was immediately pestered with "mash notes" from all over the floor. Your reporter stumbled around awhile in compliment to Barnett Breeskin and galloped back to his chair heavily enveloped in a deep and penetrating silence—except that some deluded soul, somehow, seemed to be unable to keep his palms from smacking together.

It was, nevertheless, a grand evening and Mr. Moore and Miss Barnard are among the Capital's most gracious and most generous hosts. If you don't believe it, go out there sometime.

* * * *

And that reminds me. While "Over the Coffee" yesterday morning, my esteemed next door neighbor on the third floor of The Post, Harlan Miller, seems to have dunked the wrong doughnut! His lamentable vacancy of the usual J. F. T. O'Connor ringside table at the Shoreham was a little on the side of the premature. "Jeftie" was there Tuesday night, in company with "Jock" McLean, son of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh (Hope Diamond) McLean, and his familiar benignity was beaming all over the place. I know this because Mr. O'Connor's table was one of the first places I stopped to say "hello" to him and "Jock," whom I also have known since he was only just up to here.

* * * *

And there is another thing. The names of J. F. T. O'Connor and Elissa Landi, star of the stage and screen, have been linked romantically since a time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary.

Personally, I think this is a lot of the business that is affectionately known as the old hooey. I happen to know the thoroughly poised and aristocratic Miss Landi and I happen, too, to know "Jeftie" O'Connor. He, I believe, is the screen star's legal adviser. She, I also suspect, is his very good and admiring friend. Beyond that, I have grave doubts as to the chatelaine of the next Governor's residence in California, Mr. Miller to a speculative contrary, notwithstanding.

And I hope "Jeftie" is the next Governor. He has made a splendid comptroller and I like his smile, his friendliness and his ability to get down to earth from a high place and be one of "the gang."

And, if I have spoken out of turn, I am sorry, genuflecting, bowing in low obeisance and all that sort of thing. So there.

Anxious-Inquiry Note.

Would this be spring—or merely a hangover?

A Composer Does a Bit of Recuperating!

Good Will Is Object of New Movie Drive

World-wide good will for Hollywood is the objective of a movement launched this week under the title, "Paramount on Parade Around the World," by Paramount Pictures, Inc.

Plans for the concerted drive were revealed by Adolph Zukor to nearly 100 representatives of the foreign press who assembled at the studio.

Zukor said that the campaign would last for 13 weeks, from February 27 until May 28, and announced player-captains would sponsor the exploitation in practically every country in the world.

The player-captains are: Fred MacMurray and Ray Milland for Great Britain and Ireland; Claudette Colbert for France; Isa Miranda for Italy; Franciska Gaal and Olympe Bradna for central Europe; Tito Guizar for Central America; Dorothy Lamour for the continent of Asia; W. C. Felds for Australia, Harold Lloyd for the four Scandinavian countries, and Gladys Swarthout and Georges Rigaud for South America.

During the campaign Paramount products will be exploited through a special reel of greetings to all countries, with Fred MacMurray as master of ceremonies and the other player-captains taking the bows. Official picture will be "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," with Claudette Colbert and Gary Cooper, a comedy having a European background.

Other pictures will receive attention during this time, including "Stolen Heaven," with a Viennese background, starring Olympe Bradna and Gene Raymond; "Romance in the Dark," laid in Budapest, with Gladys Swarthout, John Boles and John Barrymore; "Tropic Holiday," with a Latin-American locale, and "Professor, Beware!" the latest Harold Loyd comedy.

Family Rife.

Alice Brady, Guy Kibbee, Lucille Ball and Frank Milan comprise the rapacious and selfish family who cause all the trouble in "The Joy of Living," the new Irene Dunne-Douglas Fairbanks, jr., vehicle.

Harmonious Love.

A hectic romance between a "musical cop" and a secretary with musical ambitions, is the basis of a thrilling drama of the underworld, "Night Spot." Allan Lane and Joan Woodbury have the leading roles.

Vice President's Kin Is Film Find

So sensational is the news story around tiny 5-year-old Janet Chapman, a new child star 18 days after she had faced a camera for the first time, that another promising child actress in Janet's film has been overlooked.

The picture, "Little Lady Luck," is bringing to light two child stars instead of one.

Blonde Peggy Ann Garner, a relative of the vice president, is the other tot hailed by Director John Farrow as a future child star. She plays a small part in the film but, unlike Janet, has a professional background. She is also 5 and hails from Washington, D. C., where her father is a prominent lawyer.

Warner Brothers, producers of "Little Lady Luck," have signed Janet, but Peggy Ann has been signed by another studio.

Glorified.

For the first time in motion picture history, the American milkman is glorified in "Maid's Night Out," a fast-moving romantic comedy with Joan Fontaine and Allan Lane.

Sprains Thumb.

Ann Sheridan is nursing a sprained thumb suffered while playing ping-pong with Edward Norris, her husband.

Voice Is Seat Of Sex Appeal States Pundit

If you think the "thrill appeal" of your favorite movie star results from the divine curve of her legs, the sheen of her hair, or the luster of her eyes, you are wrong.

What excites you is the resonant quality of the voice, those soft notes that plunge into the depths of your consciousness, and come to grips with the basic urges of your emotional life.

Such was the confidential advice recently of Dr. Funston Neibuhr, Honolulu psychologist, visiting in Hollywood, en route to an Eastern university to study with Dr. Knight Dunlap, a colleague.

Dr. Neibuhr was a guest at Paramount studio, where Gladys Swarthout was recording her last song with John Boles for "Romance in the Dark."

The psychologist's observations on the voice were occasioned by the fact that Miss Swarthout was recently designated in a poll of 10 leading male stars as having more "thrill appeal" than any voice on the screen.

"Voices as a factor in stimulating the responses that account for the vast popularity of the movie people are generally overlooked," Dr. Neibuhr said. "I believe that Havelock Ellis has covered that ground pretty thoroughly.

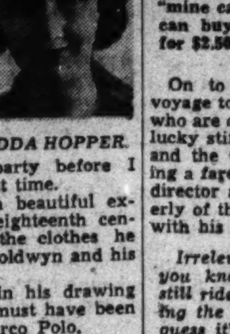
"The voice makes the most subtle of all appeals to the senses. It can't be analyzed, measured, and reduced to a geometric theorem like the curve of the leg or the lines of the profile, for example. But by the same token, it strikes much more deeply into the subconsciousness and the maze of emotions lodged there.

"After the voice as an excitement factor, I would place the hair. Next to the voice, it is the most feminine thing about a woman."

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., March 2.—Dinner at 8 with Omar Kiam in his new home. Goldwyn's great dress designer was entertaining for his house guest, Pierre Dutel, from New York. Pierre is a leading decorator and writes on the subject for House and Garden. When all white decoration was the vogue, Pierre changed his apartment to black. In stunning inky surroundings, he gave me a swell party before I sailed for Europe last time.



HEDDA HOPPER.

Omar's house is a beautiful example of dignified eighteenth century elegance—like the clothes he whips up for Mrs. Goldwyn and his studio's stars.

There's a screen in his drawing room, so antique it must have been brought back by Marco Polo.

Candles were the only light in the smoky-blue dining room—flattering us into a state of complete well-being. Baby calla lilies were clustered in bunches on the table. In between, birds about to take flight, made of bone, gave us ideas of winging to distant lands. Goodness, I'm turning poetic, but that's how the setting made one feel.

Among Omar's guests was Mrs. Sigmund Romberg. The composer's wife wore the Carnegie best seller, that dress designed for Sun Valley—formal, sleek fabric skirt and sweater top. Hers was bright green above, fuchsia below. Her jewelry, a diamond and emerald necklace, and fringed diamond earrings made to fit the lobes of her ears. Swank—very.

Rommy told a story I loved. A tailor opened a bank account using two crosses for his signature. Later a check came in with three crosses. When the bank teller called up to verify this, the tailor said, "Yes, dat's mine. Since my wife moved us to a pent house on Park Avenue, she insists I have a middle name."

Paul Flato who makes nuts, bolts and screws out of solid gold, had a "showing," in the best Hollywood maner. All our modern-minded celebrities are wearing this famous jeweler's novel creations. F'rinstance, a gold foot with ruby toes; miniature panties set with diamonds and sapphires; hands making the deaf and dumb language signs of your initials; cactus trees with their jagged ends tipped with diamonds. You've heard of screwball comedies? Well, this is screwball jewelry.

But, it isn't every day you can get a glass of champagne free while looking at things like these. Crowded into a space no bigger than a good-sized closet, were the great, near great and ordinary people like myself. And Eddy Duchin, playing as only Eddy can, at a piano the size of a folding chair.

I noticed an ornament on the hat of Mrs. Potts, of the Long Island Potts. It was a red enameled hand holding a black daisy with a diamond in its center. I thought it ought to be in the collection. "Hm-mm," sez Mrs. Potts, "mine came from Cartier—but you can buy imitations in the shops for $2.50." (I did.)

On to "La Conga" to say bon voyage to Mr. and Mrs. Tay Garnett who are off on another world cruise, lucky stiffs. Here the Gene Townes and the Graham Bakers were giving a farewell party for the popular director and his wife. Ralph, formerly of the "Troc," welcomed guests with his winning smile.

Irrelevant observation: Did you know that the Fairbankses still ride in the Rolls Royce bearing the crest of Lord Ashley? I guess it's hard to give up one of those pretty things once you've had it.

'Brother Rat' Makes Second Visit Next Week

Comedy Returns to National to Vie With Ace Films; Other New Bills

George Abbott's production of "Brother Rat," seen earlier in the season at the National Theater, will return to that playhouse next Monday night for a repeat engagement at popular prices. Written by John Monks, jr., and Fred F. Finklehoffe, the comedy deals with life at V. M. I., the nearby military institution of learning that evidently long has been underestimated as a fountainhead of laughter. Included in the cast are Eddie Bracken, Jean McCoy, Reese Alsop, Clare Hazel, Gary Merrill, James Gillis, Robert Scott, Richard Jones, Mary Ellis Perry, Mary Rolfe, Walter Fenner, Hollis Mitchell, Burke O'Connell, Anne Franklin, John Foster, Lyle Bettger, Frederick de Wilde and Juan Root. There will be the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Constance Bennett, Brian Aherne and Billie Burke are the foremost members of the cast in "Merrily We Live," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen comedy, to be presented as chief feature of the photoplay bill for the week beginning tomorrow at Loew's Capitol Theater. It another of those "goofy" items to which the cinema has so largely run of late. Also, it is done in M-G-M's best manner—which is a very excellent manner, indeed. The supporting cast is one of judicious selection. On the stage at the Capitol next week the living entertainment will be provided by "Red" Skelton and his "Streamlined Revue," enlisting the services of a considerable number of specialty artists.

"Love, Honor and Behave," co-featuring Wayne Morris and Priscilla Dean, will be the chief screen feature of the bill for the week beginning tomorrow at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater. It is a comedy of young married life, in which subordinate roles are played by John Litel, Thomas Mitchell, Dick Foran, Mona Barrie and Stanley Logan. The stage bill for the new week will be featured by the "Battle of Swing," to be participated in by Don Bestor and his famous orchestra and Rita Rio, wielding her baton over her celebrated all-girl group of instrumentalists. In addition to the two orchestras, the stage bill also will present Phillips and Kohl, Edna Janis and the Marcy Brothers and Beatrice.

The agile sprite of the ice, Sonja Henie, Olympic fancy-figure skating champion, and Don Ameche, will be seen in the costellar roles of "Happy Landing," a new Twentieth-Century-Fox production, on the screen of Loew's Palace Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. This is said to be Miss Henie's most impressive vehicle to date and to mark the finest collaborative efforts of her and Ameche in producing highly diverting celluloid entertainment. The bill will be augmented, as usual, by short screen subjects and a new issue of the "News of the Day."

Still bowling the customers over by the sheer charm of its fantasy, the beauty of its Technicolor photography and the humor of its conception, Walt Disney's first feature-length production in cartoon form, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," will begin its fourth consecutive week at RKO-Keith's Theater tomorrow. In addition to the major feature, the bill also will include a new release of the "March of Time." The program will be rounded out by short-reel subjects and the Pathe News.

"Gold Is Where You Find It," the Warner Brothers' Technicolor production of a vital drama of the early days of California's development, will be presented for a repeat downtown engagement as chief screen attraction at the Metropolitan Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The principal roles in this engrossing subject are played by George Brent, Olivia de Haviland and Claude Rains, with a sterling cast in support.

"The Baroness and the Butler," co-starring William Powell and Annabella, will be offered for the second time on F street as major screen feature of the new week's bill at Loew's Columbia Theater, beginning tomorrow. Helen Westley, Henry Stephenson, Joseph Schildkraut and Nigel Bruce lead the excellent supporting cast. The bill will be completed by the customary short-reel subjects and a new release of the "News of the Day."

The short subjects announced as features of the new bill at the Trans-Lux Theater, beginning tomorrow, include "The Land of the Kangaroo," a travelogue in natural color and relating, as goes without saying, to Australia; a "Screen Snapshots" release, featuring many cinema celebrities; a pictorial review and a Walt Disney cartoon comedy. The bill, of course, will be founded on the extended newsreel coverage of the world.

So great has been the first week's success of the engagement of "Peter the First" at the Little Theater that that subject will be continued at the Ninth street miniature theater for a second week, beginning Sunday. The foreign cast assembled by Amkino for this impressive subject acquits itself with supreme credit in a story of the emergence of Russia from the days of savagery into a world power. The short subjects also will be held over, with a newsreel substituted for the old.

At the Gayety Theater next week, beginning with the regular Sunday matinee performance, the new attraction will be a novel burlesque production that will serve to return the Princess Nadja to a local stage after two years of world touring. Another featured feminine artiste will be the exotic Evelyn Whitney. The comedy end of the entertainment will be intrusted to Raynor and Briscoe, two of the better Broadway comics, assisted by Harry Evanson.

Love Flowers.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, March 2.

LIBERTY: Bobbs-Merrill paid advance royalties for the publication rites to George Seldes' new book, "You Can't Do That." The completed manuscript was submitted to the publisher's attorneys, who objected to the phrase, "If we want to be free, we must fight." "This is seditious and treasonable," the attorneys declared, and so Seldes returned the advance royalties, and took the manuscript to Modern Age, which will publish it . . . There were no question marks around the "seditious and treasonable" phrase, "If we want to be free, we must fight." It was uttered more than 160 years ago by a gentleman who followed it with: "Give me liberty or give me death" . . . His name was Patrick Henry.

REVOLT: A young movie extra walked into a Hollywood drug store Friday, entered the phone-booth, dialed a number, and said: "This is Baldwin. When is the Revolution? . . . When? . . . Tuesday morning at 8? Okay" . . . He hung up, stepped from the booth—right into the arms of two Los Angeles policemen, members of the Red Squad . . . He was kept in jail for 24 hours despite his explanation. M-G-M finally arranged for Baldwin's release. He had been working in Norma Shearer's new film, "Marie Antoinette." His phone call had been made to Central Casting Bureau, and he was to have been employed in the big Revolution scene.

AMBITION: Frank Craven's son, who is appearing with the star as the juvenile lead in "Our Town," is elated at the success of this, his first Broadway show. "But I'm glad for you, Dad," the boy said. "After all these years—you're still a star" . . . "Just take it easy, boy," the veteran advised. "I remember when I got my first Broadway starring role, and rushed to your grandmother, who was dying. 'It's nice, but take it easy,' she said. 'And don't worry about me. When I was a young girl, I wanted only three things—a fur coat, a diamond ring and $1,000 cash in the bank. Well, I've had them all.' "

CHALLENGE: Some weeks ago Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City issued a defy to the C. I. O., and warned Morris L. Ernst, counsel for the union, that if Ernst steps foot in Jersey City "his friends won't see him for a long, long while" . . . Next week Mr. Ernst will make a speech about labor. He will speak in Jersey City.

LAMENT: When "Save Me the Waltz" opened at the National Theater in Washington, Speaker Bankhead went to see his son-in-law, John Emery, who portrays the role of the dictator . . . Bankhead heard the audience applaud Emery's performance, went backstage and heard the congratulations being offered . . . He departed, gloomily—studying the sign over the door, "Stage Entrance" . . . "What's the matter?" Tallulah asked her father . . . "Oh," lamented the frustrated Speaker of the House, gazing dreamily at the aisle that leads to the stage, "I wish I'd had one whack at it!"

• • • •

DEFEAT: District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey has been opposing the bill repealing blue-ribbon juries . . . "blue-ribbon juries should be repealed," a visitor argued. "They always convict" . . . "Not always," Dewey replied. "Take the case of Charles E. Mitchell, who was head of the National City Bank" . . . "Ah," the other returned, "but Mitchell was a blue-ribbon defendant."

ROMANCE: Last year Janett Olcott, daughter of Mrs. Chauncey Olcott, eloped with William Kavanaugh, at the same time that Alex Wallser, jr., eloped with Charmion Kineon . . . They decided, at each anniversary, to hold celebration at the Ambassador, to invite two other couples and urge them to wed . . . As a result, last week M. Paul Gooding and Gladys Edlind eloped to Harmon. The other socialite couple, Richard Cluett and Janet Ogden, changed their minds at the last minute, and went to their respective homes. When they arrived, they found telegrams from Mr. and Mrs. Gooding. The message was, "Fraidy cats, scared cats, fraidy cats."

Furniture Mussed As Mickey Trains

Mickey Rooney and his football team have gone in for night football practice, much to the distress of Mickey's mother.

Mrs. Rooney returned home to find the whole living room minus furniture. It was late, and no one was in the empty room. The furniture that had been in the living room had been moved and crowded into the dining room.

Next morning Mrs. Rooney asked her young son what had happened—to find that the boy actor and his team members had "cleared the room for night football practice!"

"We won't hurt a thing," Mickey pleaded to his mother. "We are not practicing kicks, just tackles and passes."

This Microphone Is Almost Human

The machine-gun microphone, latest innovation in the production of motion pictures, was introduced last week in the recording of sound for "Tip-Off Girls," directed by Louis King.

The new "mike" is almost human in its action. It picks a single voice out of a crowd when pointed at one designated person in a gathering of people.

The new invention is being tried by Paramount in scoring music for pictures. It is able to pick out a single instrument of an orchestra.

The contraption has small cylindrical tubes about the size of a lead pencil, and is about five feet long.

Tuneless Band Will Be Heard In New Picture

By Frederick C. Othman.

United Press Correspondent.

Holywood, March 2.—The world's most expensive orchestra, earning about $5,000 an hour, demonstrated with some of the saddest squeaks outside a cattery today that it couldn't play a lick.

The sign on the big bass drum said it was "Alexander's Rag Time Band," which also is the title of a new movie under production at Twentieth Century-Fox.

Tyrone Power, who spent months learning how to hold his fiddle, but never could get the hang of producing even the simplest tune, was violinist and leader.

Don Ameche, who looked soulful as his fingers slid along the soundless keyboard, was pianist. Jack Haley, who manufactured more unrhythmic noise than a rock crusher, was the drummer, while Chick Chandler, who couldn't even make a good "oomp," was the trombonist.

Alice Faye, looking stunning in a 1916 suit of tailored blue and a brown hat without a brim, was the vocal accompanist. She really can sing, but she got no chance when the power caterwauling instrumentalists started making inroads on the eardrums of the bystanders.

Another Movie Trick.

You, fortunately, will not be inflicted with all this auricular torture when the picture is released. On the screen the band will be playing well a new number by Irving Berlin, entitled "Now It Can Be Told."

The explanation is based on another one of those movie tricks. The members of the rag time band, necessarily, are the main characters of the movie designed to present a cavalcade of Berlin's music.

Power, Ameche, Haley and Chandler turned out to be surprisingly unmusical. They don't even sing in their bath tubs. Director Henry King thus was presented with the problem of making them look like musicians.

He hired a real violinist to give Power fiddle-holding instructions. Other experts went to work on the rest of the cast. The orchestra looks as if it is playing.

When the scene is completed, a real orchestra will dub in the sound track and nobody will be the wiser, except those studio technicians who have developed chronic earaches.

Tone Deaf Orchestra.

This tone deaf orchestra is only one of the wonders now on display at Fox. On an adjoining sound stage, in fact, science comes to the aid of comedy with what Director David Butler hopes will be a new kind of laugh. It had better be funny, else the California Institute of Technology is going to be disappointed.

The picture is "Kentucky Moonshine," and the comics involved are the three Ritz brothers, in chin whiskers. They're supposed to be feuding mountaineers, caught dead to rights by the warring Hatfields, and so scared that their hair stands on end.

Many a time before a movie actor's hair has so stood. It was done with an invisible comb.

Director Butler, however, borrowed a static electricity generator from California Tech. The Ritzes stand on metal plates, the scientist in the rear throws a switch and their hair goes straight up.

"The idea is," Butler explained, "that with this machine we can make their hair stand up and lie down and wiggle in between, to express varying degrees of fright. We hope it brings the laughs, because it was considerable trouble and expense."

"And," added Harry Ritz, "it tickles. When the current's on, it feels like feathers sliding across your chest."

'Antoinette' Gowns Weigh 1,768 Pounds

Norma Shearer, who is 5 feet 3 inches tall, and weighs 110 pounds, wears 34 contumes in "Marie Antoinette" aggregating 1,768 pounds, or approximately 17 times her own weight.

"At no time in history," said Adrian, "has woman's dress been so elaborate as during Antoinette's time. The heaviest of Miss Shearer's costumes, a court dress, weighs 108 pounds, and the lightest, 37 pounds. The average is 52 pounds.

It required several weeks of wearing the gowns in scenes of the picture before Miss Shearer became accustomed to them.

"At first," the star declared, "the gowns were tiring and awkward to walk in. But it is surprising how quickly one can become accustomed to inconvenience in dress. I can carry them without being conscious of the weight."

Scientist.

The success of Pete Smith's "Romance of Radium" has caused the commentator-star to go scientific with a vengeance. His next picture in this serious vein will be "Anesthesia." Pete also is having extensive research conducted on the X-ray, to be incorporated into a picture called "Romance of X-ray."

Director Acts.

E. Mason Hopper, director of 350 motion pictures and author of more than 400 scripts, has been selected by Director W. S. Van Dyke 2d to play the role of a French nobleman in "Marie Antoinette," co-starring Norma Shearer and Tyrone Power. Hopper began his stage career at the age of 14 in stock. His first picture was "Mr. Wise," filmed for Essanay, in 1911.

First Family Picture

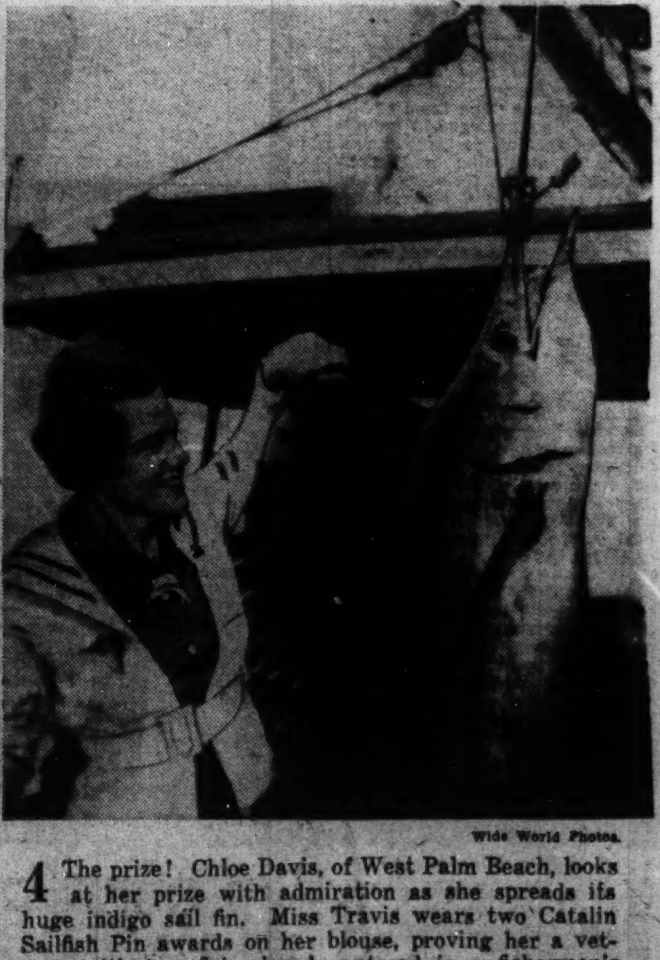
2 The strike! Seven feet of indigo and silver sailfish lashes the water and air in an attempt to throw the lure plainly seen in its mouth. The game fight this fish puts up usually ends in freedom. The battle is punctuated by a dozen or so leaps. Fish under 7½ feet are freed . . .

3 The catch! The fight is over but the memory will linger on in the mind of the captor for many a moon. The fisherman hauls in the huge fish with the lure firmly fastened in its mouth. This specimen will be mounted, but most are rewarded with their freedom for their gameness. The feathered lure attracts the fish from the depths and the "ballyhoo" makes him take hold . . .



Wide World Photos.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

"Is It Possible to Acquire Wit and Humor?" Asks Girl Who Finds Herself Tongue-Tied in Company.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I should like to know if it is possible to acquire wit and humor. Coming from a large family, I have worked ever since my marriage, in order to help rear and educate younger sisters and a brother. I blame this for making me rather serious-minded; in fact, to such an extent that I never know when a person is joking. I am a moderately intelligent person, fairly well read and consequently can discourse after a fashion on any topic of the day, but when it comes to joking and light conversation I am simply at a loss.

When one goes to a dinner and sits next to a person one knows only slightly, one cannot launch into a discussion of the political situation in Europe, or the Chino-Japanese war. Therefore, what does one talk about? For some reason, if I happen to drop into a friend's house and find a party in progress, I fit in fine; but if I am invited in advance, and particularly if the party tends to be at all formal, I get tongue-tied and cannot think of a thing to say.

* * * *

What can I do, or what can I redd, to get my mind on the lighter sides of life? In listening to various radio programs, many of which are generally considered funny, my reaction is that they are clever, but not funny.

My second question is this: what is the proper thing to say to a person bereaved? When friends of mine lose loved ones, naturally I go to see them, but I shrink from going because whatever I find to say seems so inane. And this in spite of the fact I am sincerely sorry for their loss I shall very much appreciate any suggestions. ANXIOUS.

* * * *

What to Believe.

DEAR ANXIOUS: Wit implies swift perception of the incongruous, a talent for felicitious expression, the ability to see and to phrase things in a refreshingly unexpected and amusing way; whereas humor implies broader human sympathy, which also discerns the incongruous, but in a more kindly way. Where wit stresses the comic in situations, humor sees the pathos and the tragedy as well. Whether these attributes of personality—one of the mind, the other of the heart—can be "acquired" is problematic. However, one need not be highly educated in order to possess either, but one must, of course, be congenitally intelligent. To be witty, one must have what is known as a "quick mind," and to be humorous, one must have the "understanding heart."

* * * *

For the naturally shy person, I would recommend the cultivation of a humorous turn of mind and conversation, for the reason that unassailable poise and consummate self-possession are usually concomitant with spontaneous wit. Humor, you understand, does not necessarily presuppose the utterance of clever remarks, but only the revelation of a kindly, sympathetic, understanding appraisal of human nature in all its aspects—and this understanding you surely have already. One who has been a member of a large family, and who has continued, after marriage, to contribute to the rearing and education of younger brothers and sisters, necessarily knows a great deal about the homely, endearing side of life.

* * * *

Therefore, instead of discussing such remote phenomena of existence as the cause and cure of "the political situation in Europe or the Chino-Japanese war," when you find yourself seated next to a virtually unknown dinner partner, why not engage him in more personal conversation. One can sometimes turn the conversation to childhood reminiscences, as, for instance, whether the party of the second part was a member of a large family, or an only child; whether he grew up in village, metropolis or countryside; whether he traveled much or only yearned to travel; whether he liked the mountains or the sea; whether he was athletic or bookish; how he happened, eventually, to choose the career or profession or trade or business in which he is now engaged; what satisfactions he finds in it.

* * * *

One can turn easily from such talk to the inevitable discussion of the youth of today, wherein it differs from the youth of your day, whether it is more conservative or less, and so on. You can compare tastes in literature, in poetry, in music, in painting. One doesn't promote conversation by the blunt-questioning method, but rather by touching lightly on this or that aspect of one's own life or thought, in such a manner as to provoke comment; or by discussing, with equal lightness of touch, the life of some person in fiction or biography or one whose life, as a public figure, is a more or less open book. One can discuss such feminine fads as diet, exercise and fashions, since men love to go on record as being for or against such vanity-inspired pursuits. One can discuss the movies, the theater, Dale Carnegie's theories and writings, the pronounced trend of humankind today toward a revival of interest in religion and spiritual matters, and so on and so on, ad infinitum.

* * * *

Somewhere along the line, if you yourself show a flexible and inquiring interest in all matters which touch the life of the average person, you are bound to strike a responsive chord in the breast of your dinner partner, and then you can let him do most of the talking; but not all of it. A good listener isn't one who laps up the other's utterances without protest or comment; but one who shows, by his remarks of an affirmative or questioning or challenging nature, that he really is following, with lively and vigorous interest, the other's trend of thought.

* * * *

Good conversation is usually based on one person's really sympathetic, intelligent interest in another person's point of view. Always make your conversational partner feel that you are genuinely interested in him, as a person, and in what he has to say. Your responsibility is not so much to entertain him as to encouraging him in entertaining himself, and no conversation is more interesting, to the average person, than conversation which centers upon himself, his life, his exploits, his thoughts, his aspirations. However, it is well to remember that everybody, man or woman, reacts almost instinctively against the direct-question approach. So much has been said and written about persons liking to talk about themselves that the direct question seems too obvious bait.

* * * *

It isn't what one reads, but how one reacts to experience—intellectual as well as social—which marks one gay or grave in conversational interchange. Never worry a topic to death. Learn to drop one thread of thought, not too abruptly, for another which some remark which your vis-a-vis brings to mind. This is known as "keeping the ball rolling."

* * * *

Now, as to what to say to a person bereaved: That is so intimate, so individual an offering of self, that it can hardly be reduced to formula. It should be said quite spontaneously, even if awkwardly. It must come straight from the heart. To have meaning, to register, it must reflect a real emotional sharing of the other's burden of sorrow. It can be communicated in a wordless embrace; or in a sentence such as, "Oh, Jane! I am so terribly sorry. If only there was something I could do." Or it can be registered in action, such as coming in, with a quiet word of sympathy, and immediately taking some painful or burdensome task or detail off her shoulders. Or it can be registered, by some and to some, through bringing a matter-of-fact, philosophical acceptance of the mystery of death to the situation; in other words, no commiserating, no emotion, but rather the suggestion, in conversation and conduct, that life goes on; that it must and will. Benjamin Franklin in Needlepoint

This remarkable needlepoint portrait of Benjamin Franklin was made in 1850-51 at Lowell, Mass., by Mrs. Crosby K. Haines. It was loaned by the New Hampshire Historical Society for the exhibition arranged by the United States Sesqui-Centennial Commission at the Corcoran Gallery of Art. Note the detail in the picture including the view through the window.

Ancient Craft of Needlepoint Revived by Washington Women

Social Leaders Often Carry Frames With Them to Dinners and Receptions; Franklin Portrait in Corcoran Exhibit Stimulated Interest.

By Vylla Poe Wilson.

THE SHARP gleam of a needle-point needle on fabric rivals the click of knitting needles in brightly colored wool nowadays when busy Washington women spend an evening at home or rather together to chat. For the women who like to keep their hands busy even in their leisure hours have welcomed enthusiastically the revival of the ancient art of needlepoint work.

Among the Washington devotees of the needlepoint craft are Mrs. George Barnett, widow of the wartime commandant of the United States Marine Corps; Mrs. Newbold Noyes, daughter of Mrs. Barnett; Mrs. Mark Bristol, wife of Rear Admiral Bristol; Mrs. Walter Denegre and Mrs. Charles Sanderson, wife of Col. Sanderson, of the United States Marine Corps, and many other social leaders. It is no unusual sight now to see women in evening dress or smart afternoon costumes arriving for a dinner or luncheon with a needlepoint frame ready to carry on their art if there is a musical program or if they intend to listen to an important speech over the radio. The embroidery frame has replaced the old spinning wheel which used to stand in the corner of many of the drawing rooms of Washington when the Federal city was young.

Mrs. Noyes Efficient.

Of the group of women of smart society who have essayed the art of needlepoint few are as efficient as Mrs. Noyes, whose adeptness with fine needlework has been a matter of wonder to her friends since her early girlhood. Her small hands have wrought such lovely pieces of embroidery, including needlepoint, that they have been compared with museum pieces. During the reconstruction after the World War in France, Mrs. Noyes lived for some years in the town of Pau. She went among the peasant women teaching them to develop their finely knitted garments in the colors and styles that would sell, and thus aided in the rehabilitation of many Pau village families.

In the reception room of the late Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock are a number of chairs covered with petit needlepoint, the work of Mrs. Fahnestock.

When Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Minister to Norway, left Washington she listed as one of her achievements the completion of covers in needlepoint for the seats of her dining room chairs. Mrs. Harriman has carried on this work since she has been Minister, and Washington people who have visited her in the legation there report that she is engaged on a needlepoint panel with a design of the scenery she can see from her drawing room window.

Mrs. Coolidge Expert.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge's granddaughter probably will treasure with much pride the needlepoint cushion with a picture of the White House as the chief motif that Mrs. Coolidge made when she was First Lady.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, jr., was known for her needlework of all kinds when she lived in Washington as wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Consequently her friends have learned with great interest of the series of panels she is now engaged on with the design, "The Roamings of a Roosevelt," depicting her husband on his world travels especially as a hunter and explorer.

When the needlepoint workers speak of their art as Bayeux work some of them know that the name is derived from the Bayeux tapestry now preserved in the public library of Bayeux, France, a marvelous specimen of early medieval embroidery. This, like many other of the early tapestries done with the needle, resembles the sampler work which every well-behaved American child of olden days used to be taught. In fact, the cross-stitch work on these samplers was the practice ground of the fine needlepoint treasured in American families and which has been revived by the American women of today.

Wife of William.

The famous Bayeux tapestry is of colored woolen thread on white canvas or linen cloth. Tradition says it was the work of Matilda, wife of William the Conqueror. Many of the most treasured pieces of needlepoint in this country depict portraits of men and women of history. One such piece is the portrait of Benjamin Franklin worked in Lowell, Mass., by Mrs. Crosby K. Haines, in 1850-1851, considered a fine specimen of portraiture in needlework. This picture was in the recent exhibition at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, an exhibition of portraits of the signers and deputies to the convention of 1787 and signers of the Declaration of Independence. It was lent by the New Hampshire Historical Society.

Great impetus has been given to the revival of needlepoint work through the modernization of the art by Mrs. Georgia Brown Harbeson, of New York. Mrs. Harbeson is an artist who has turned to the art of needlepoint. She has had the co-operation of chemists, painters, and manufacturers who have assisted her in developing a new palette of colors for needlepoint workers. For the last 15 years Mrs. Harbeson's "needle paintings" have been exhibited in leading galleries.

The GENTLER SEX

How to Wear Evening Dress.

Having read for the eleventh time that American women did not know how to wear evening dress, I decided to do something about it. Especially since a large party was in the offing.

I first put the question to a stylist.

"To wear evening dress? Oh, it is very simple!" she exclaimed. "The whole thing is to have the RIGHT dress."

"I shall never have the right dress," I stated firmly.

"Oh, now, that is no attitude to take. We have it right here in the store—YOUR dress, a perfectly enchanting little French importation——"

"How much is it?"

"It has been marked down to $198.75——"

"Wait! Tell me how to wear the WRONG evening dress."

"We-l-l, I suppose if milady has exactly the right foundation——"

"Milady hasn't."

"Well, then, the right accessories. After all, the whole thing in evening dress is the accent. All that you need to do is to dramatize yourself with, say, a jeweled fan, an antique lace scarf, an exotic handbag, a diamond tiara, a striking scarf, a cape of sables or silvers, any smart interpretation of the romantic mood——"

This was getting me nowhere—except to a bankruptcy court. I sought out a physical culturist.

"To wear evening dress? It is quite simple," she assured me. "It is entirely a matter of posture, of coordinating the muscles of your diaphragm and building up the proper control of your midriff. You can wear any type of evening dress and look distingue with—let us say, the Balinese carriage."

"The Balinese?"

"Yes. Always imagine yourself walking about the ball or banquet room with something on your head—say, a bucket of hot soup. Another thing, you must make the right entrance."

"How is that done?"

"Also by co-ordinating the diaphragm muscles. We will assume, however, that you have done this, also stretched the midriff and built up the pectoral muscles and the lower abdominal tendons. You are now ready to enter the ballroom. You pause at the door, draw a deep breath, then slowly advance on the balls of the feet, the chest leading, with an imaginary line dropping from the chin through——"

I gave it up and sought a personality expert.

"It's all a matter of mind," he declared. "The big thing is to forget . . . to forget that YOU are YOU."

"Who am I then?"

"Well—say that you are wearing a romantic eighteenth-century dress. Then you are, say, Pompadour, Du Barry——"

"Just a minute—I was reared a Methodist."

"What I mean is that you must entirely forget yourself, forget that you even have on a dress——"

"But I haven't that type of mind either."

"You misunderstand. All that I am asking you to do is to be yourself."

"But you just told me to be somebody else."

"The whole point is that you must be your real self—the real YOU."

"Who is the real me?"

"Let's put it another way. The thing I want you to do is to put on your Evening Personality. I want you to forget—well, that you have ever been interested in a cause."

"I have NEVER been interested in a cause."

"Well, I want you to forget that you have any serious interests in life whatever. Forget your home duties, your club, your bills, your business — well, even your pay check."

"I can NEVER forget my pay check."

"Then, Madam, it is absolutely impossible for you ever to wear evening dress successfully."

* * * *

As a last refuge I turned to the "man in the street." With pencil poised, I barged boldly up to the first stranger I met. "How do you—I mean how do I—that is, how does any woman wear evening dress?" I inquired. "That is, with ease?"

He did not even ponder. "By putting a couple of Martinis under her belt," he replied.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, March 2.

ALICE HUGHES.

WITH THE American theater in its present precarious spot, beween the devil radio and the deep, blue talkies, it offers a very sketchy career indeed for our pretty girls who like to dress up and playshow—especially for cash money. If, after a couple of years of patient struggle, they get a part with even one line like "Oh, girls, here comes the Dook now!" they look on it as a career and send a rush wire to mother back home

So you can imagine my pleased astonishment when I recently ran into a young lady so frantically busy on stage and air that she barely gets a little sleep, let alone fun. The girl is Alice Frost, daughter of the late Rev. John A. Frost, of Minneapolis, who wanted his chick to have no part of show business. He shunted her into a touring Chautauqua troupe, but she crossed him by turning up on Broadway with a part in "Green Grow the Lilacs." Since then there have been some ups, but more downs, as is the lot of most young players these days.

But now? Alice often meets herself coming out of stage doors! She appears on four radio programs, including "Big Sister" and "The Shadow." Right now she's playing in "Julius Caesar" and "The Shoemaker's Holiday" on Broadway and rehearsing in "Dear Abigail." That's no career—that's a sentence!

* * * *

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—As predicted the Press Photographers' annual shindig the other night was our favorite brawl of the year. Thousands turned up, including hundreds of lovely young stenographers in their party dresses, and the spouse and I reveled in meeting old friends of the newspaper and show worlds that we usually see but once a year. The entertainment was huge and fairly rowdy, with Lope Valez doing her wild clowning. Strangely or not, the biggest smash was recorded by blonde English Evelyn Laye, who sang a straight ballad and brought down the jammed ballroom. So even we night-buzzards have our serious moments!

The famous dime store connected with the fame and fortune of Barbara Hutton, etc., has just opened the doors of its most beautiful store, on Fifth avenue itself. It's a lavish modern emporium and will certainly do more than its bit to keep Barbara sheltered and fed as a Danish countess and citizen.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By Ida Jean Kain.

VITAMINS have gone collegiate and freshmen are striking for more orange juice and less macaroni. The co-eds complain that college menus lack vitamins and are too high in the starchy foods that increase weight.

We are in sympathy with these strikers, for without vitamins it is impossible to keep that schoolgirl complexion. We have all been educated to an appreciation of the value of fruit juice in the diet. Scurvy is practically non-existent in this country, but many other undesirable symptoms result from a deficiency of Vitamin C—namely, sallow skin, muddy complexion, aches and pains, lack of energy and premature tooth decay.

What concerns us is the amount of the Vitamin C—rich foods needed in the daily diet for positive health. Investigation has shown that a small quantity of fruit juice furnishes the day's requirement. Specifically you should have three and one-half ounces, or approximately one-half glass, of fresh orange or grapefruit juice; 12 ounces, or one and one-half glasses of tomato juice; or, one eight-ounce glass of pineapple juice.

The newer methods of canning preserve Vitamin C and we can rely on canned tomatoes, pineapple and grapefruit as well as the canned fresh fruit. However, it should be used immediately. Do not prepare orange juice the night before using.

Somewhat less rich in Vitamin C are Northern Spy and Baldwin apples, according to the scientists at the New York agricultural experiment station, who go on to claim that apples "are rich in the quality that helps to keep skin healthy and complexions radiant." Their research disclosed that the Spy is two-thirds as rich in Vitamin C as tomatoes. It is better to eat skin and all, as peeling the apple slightly decreases the vitamin content.

Cooking affects the vitamin content of the apple, and applesauce was found to contain only two-thirds as much Vitamin C as fresh apples. Baking reduces Vitamin C to one-fourth its original value, and apple pie contains only 20 per cent as much C as the fresh apples.

Of the vegetables, raw cabbage, celery and lettuce, cooked potatoes, spinach, turnips and carrots are good sources. Vitamin C is soluble in water and it is best to cook vegetables in as little water as possible. Don't throw the vegetable water down the drain—use it in soups. Soda should not be added to vegetables, as this element is found to greatly increase the rate of destruction of the vitamins. More Deficiency Causes Muddy Complexion, Premature Tooth Decay.

Vitamin C is retained when cooking is not prolonged. Raw cabbage is an excellent source of Vitamin C, but in cooking the vegetable the Vitamin is destroyed. It is an economy to know that young vegetables are richer in Viatmin C than old vegetables.

Actually, you need only one ounce of fruit juice for the prevention of scurvy, but a diet rich in Vitamin C is conducive to more radiant health.

Society Eagerly Awaits Sultan's Arrival Today

Ruler of Muscat and Oman to Lunch With President; Secretary Hull Plans Dinner Party for Him Tonight.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

When the Sultan of Muscat and Oman—his full name is Sey Yid Said Bin Taimur—arrives in Washington this morning at 11 o'clock, several social lights will be on the fringe of the crowd to catch a glimpse of him. It has been a long time since a full-fledged "His Highness" visited the Capital, and even though nine out of ten persons probably couldn't locate Mascat and Oman on the map, a sultan is a sultan . . . and this one promises to be particularly interesting.

HOPE R. MILLER.

Across a luncheon table yesterday someone suggested that it was most thoughtful of the Sultan and the three Albanian princesses to time their visits so they wouldn't all land in the Capital the same day. On the other hand someone mentioned that if the Sultan is single—if I'm not mistaken, he is—and King Zog's sisters are reputed to be here a-hunting for husbands, it might be well if they would come on to Washington before he leaves.

Latest reports from New York have it, however, that the princesses may go to Boston before visiting here; but in case they change their plans and arrive in Washington before the Sultan leaves, his schedule is so full it is doubtful it would admit a meeting with the princesses. It is also doubtful there would be a meeting anyway. The "Zog sisters," as they are being referred to in Washington, have flatly denied in New York, that they are here to search for husbands, and their visit thus far would seem to bear out their contention they are "purely tourists."

But back to the Sultan. Advance reports have it that he is under 30, speaks flawless English and wears a white robe with a tasseled turban. Shortly after his arrival his program of partying and sightseeing will get under way. He will lunch with the President today and will be feted at a dinner for 24 guests given by Secretary of State Cordell Hull this evening.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon.

WHEN AN ENGLISHMAN drinks tea every afternoon, it's what one expects; but when he carts his own special brand 2,000 miles across the ocean with him, it's news. All the members of the British delegation here for the Anglo-American trade treaties did just that, we discovered at a tea given in their honor yesterday by the Commercial Counselor of the Embassy and Mrs. Chalkley.

If the Londoners brought tea to Washington, they expected to go back to England loaded with silk stockings. Just as Americans ask for perfume from Paris and tweeds from Scotland, so do English women long for hosiery made in this country, as it is cheaper and better. Mrs. John Sterling, the only wife to accompany the delegation, already has bought many pairs. She has really acquired more than she wanted, but she finds high-pressure American salesmanship irresistible.

DUDLEY HARMON.

MEMBERS OF THE DELEGATION are afraid we will get the impression they spend all their time over the tea cups, when, as a matter of fact, they have been working night and day with the State Department. All, including several stenographers and a messenger boy, are staying at the Willard. The delegation is headed by Arnold Overton, who was among those present yesterday. Today they will lunch with Francis B. Sayre, Assistant Secretary of State, who has had so much to do with laying the groundwork for the treaties.

Practically the entire British Embassy was present at the Chalkleys' tea. Sir Ronald Lindsay, the Ambassador, was an early arrival, and others were Keith Officer, Counselor, and Phillip Broadmead, first secretary. Miss Irene Boyle, wearing a simple black frock and a smart new spring hat, and Mrs. Noel Trentham poured tea. Others who assisted were Mrs. Frank Bohn, Mrs. John Minter, wife of a State Department official, and Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, whose husband is Commercial Counselor of the Canadian Legation. Other Canadians there were the Counselor of the Legation and Mrs. Walter Riddell and the Third Secretary and Mrs. Ronald Macdonnell.

Also invited to meet the visitors were Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, Miss Vera Bloom, Denys Smith, Robert Webster and William Dirkse van Schalkwyk, of the South African Legation, and Thomas Beale.

The former Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy, Maj. Henry Frank Heywood, is being replaced by J. P. Summerscales, who will arrive shortly. His wife is an American, and was a member of our foreign service until her marriage.

In addition to his social popularity, Mr. Hetzel is well known in professional music circles, and the civic orchestra he organized with 20 members now has 80. This group comprises both amateurs and professionals, all of whom play, not for cash, but for good-will.

In return for the pleasure he has given them in years past, a number of prominent Georgetown women are sponsoring two concerts to be given by Mr. Hetzel April 7 and 14. They will be held at 5 o'clock in the garden playhouse of the home of Mrs. Harold Walker, 1224 Thirtieth street.

Women Told Of Work in U. S. Offices

Sex No Longer a Barrier to Government Job, She Points Out.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

There are now 32 women attorneys on the legal staff of the Department of Justice in contrast to one in 1920, Miss Stella Akin, special assistant to the Attorney General, told Women of the Foreign Service yesterday at their monthly luncheon at the Admiral Club. Pointing out the tremendous strides women have made in the past few years, she emphasized the responsibility which their achievements place on them.

"Since 1933 practically every branch of the United States Government has on its staff one or more members of our sex," she said. "We should be proud of the work they have done and are now accomplishing. A great responsibility lies on the shoulders of the women of America today. You could do no better service to yourself and to your country than to accept it and so contribute to the lasting peace and happiness of the future citizens."

Miss Akin paid tribute to Mrs. Roosevelt, who addressed the group at its meeting last month as typical of the "consciousness of government which we all are seeking." Mrs. Roosevelt has led the way, she said, for women with inquiring minds to become a useful part of the citizenry.

Series of Talks Given on Departments

Miss Akin's talk was one of a series the Women of Foreign Service have heard this season from ranking women of the Government. In addition to the First Lady, they have been addressed by Representative Caroline O'Day and Miss Katharine Lenroot, of the Children's Bureau.

Yesterday Miss Akin, discussing the Department of Justice, said that she had never experienced any prejudice because of sex. "This statement is made not only with a happy feeling that we women can be 'acceptable' to our men colleagues, but also with gratification that the courts have exercised no untoward prejudice toward a woman representing the interests of the Government," she said.

She quoted the description of the Department of Justice as the largest law office in the world. The staff now comprises 8,795 persons with the chief law officer of the United States, the Attorney General, at its head. His "client," she said, is the United States and his staff the entire Department of Justice.

She compared the present building which houses the department with its library of 80,000 volumes, to the offices in 1817 when the Attorney General had "ten book presses, a press for public papers, and letter books, a map, a chart stand, a writing desk, a seat for one clerk, six chairs, two wash stands, a stone pitcher, tumblers and a water table."

Praises Vision Of Attorney General

"It is exceedingly encouraging, especially at a time when our country, and the entire world, is concerned with grave problems as to its future welfare, that the present Attorney General, Homer S. Cummings, has taken the time and has the vision to make the Department of Justice the center of law enforcement guidance for the Nation," she said.

"He has sponsored laws in an effort to make the country safer, to clear up the confusion between national and State authority over crime, and to strengthen department forces in dealing with gangsters whose criminality spreads across State borders.

"It was at his call that the first National Conference on Crime was held in Washington, focusing public attention on the need for modern weapons to fight crime, and resulting in a scientific laboratory in the department. He has always required that his staff consist of skilled workers. He has not only set higher professional standards for his own services and those of his staff, but he has opened a training school in the department for special agents to selected police officials from various States. It is worthy of note that with the enlarged business of the department, it has been conducted on a budget averaging about $15,000,000 less a year than in the three years prior to 1932."

Miss Akin was introduced by Mrs. John Carter Vincent, chairman of the committee which arranges the monthly luncheons. Other committee members are Mrs. Selden Chapin, Mrs. Lewis Clark, and Mrs. Charles Hosmer.

Among the guests yesterday were Mrs. Norman Armour, wife of the former United States Minister to Canada; Mrs. Laurence Duggan, wife of the chief of the Division of Latin American Affairs of the State Department; Mrs. George Messersmith, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, and Mrs. William R. Castle.

Next month Miss May Schnorr, of the Department of the Interior, will talk on the Boulder Dam.

Madame Chairman

ELIZABETH HANEY (Zonta name B. O. Haney), who is a representative of the Baltimore & Ohio, was all worn out when she arrived at the Zonta Club luncheon yesterday at the "Y. W."—and with good reason. She had just put safely on the train 195 first-graders from Brentwood, Cottage City and Mount Rainier, who were taken by 25 grown-ups on the annual visit made by the primary children of those towns to Union Station.

The trip to Washington is 9 minutes by train. In former years—and the trips have been conducted for the past six—only about 40 children have comprised the party. Imagine Miss Haney's surprise when the 195 arrived!

They arrived at 9:40 and were off for their homes at 12:10. Their inspection of the railroad terminal included visits to the Pullman cars, to see how berths were made up; to the diner, the mail car and to various types of engines. The youngsters will follow up their visit by writing descriptions of what they saw, drawing pictures of trains and building models of them and of the station. Miss Haney, from the experience of past years, is led to look forward to a flood of fan mail from her young friends. The letters probably will be written in the school room under "teacher's" supervision and mailed with great excitement to "the lady at the station."

Mrs. G. Louis Weller and Mrs. Earl B. McKinley are co-chairmen of the fund campaign. Team captains are Mrs. Charles W. Holmes, Mrs. Edward G. Bliss and Mrs. Wilbur H. Collier, cochairmen of one team; Mrs. John A. Reed, Mrs. Norman D. Ames and Mrs. George C. Wetherill, cochairmen, of another; Mrs. A. B. Henning, Mrs. Albert H. Lawson and Mrs. Walter A. Bloedorn. Preservation of Democracy Rests on Women, Virginia D. A. R. Is Told as Conference Opens

Delegates Will Attend Memorial Services This Afternoon.

False ideals and doctrines being inculcated in youth are the greatest menace in the world today, Mrs. William A. Becker, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, told the Virginia State Conference of the D. A. R. at its opening session last night at George Washington Masonic Temple. Contrasting conditions in this country with those she observed in Europe last summer, she urged members of the organization to direct their attention to developing in the youth of America, the rugged qualities of character which built the nation.

"The young Russians are told communism will triumph," she said, "the Germans are taught cannon are more precious than butter and the Italians are reared to despise peace and love war. In Italy I saw children not more than five years old, wearing black shirts and going through drills, and in Germany, boys of not more than 10 years, wearing placards with the inscription 'I was born to die for Germany.'"

There is no individual freedom and no freedom of the press, she told her audience. "In those countries such an organization as ours could not meet."

The future of democracy in the world rests largely with women, Mrs. Becker declared.

Her address followed a welcome by Mayor Richard L. Ruffner and response by Mrs. William J. Morton, of Charlottesville. The session was opened by Mrs. Arthur Rowbotham, of Alta Vista, State regent, who will complete her three-year term in April.

Mrs. Rowbotham paid a tribute to George Washington and introduced regents of the nine northern Virginia chapters serving as hostesses to the conference. Musical selections were played by the United States Navy Band.

Registration will continue today. About 150 delegates and alternates are attending from all sections of the State.

Today's business sessions will open with greetings from other States represented. Mrs. Rowbotham will make her report as State regent, and other State officers will speak. Earlier, officers will be guests at a breakfast.

After luncheon at the George Mason Hotel, delegates will attend a memorial service in Christ Church, dedicate a reconstructed doorway in Gadsby's Tavern and have a tea there.

Election of officers will take place Friday morning. There is keen interest in the elections in the hostess city, as Mrs. Charles Alexander Swann Sinclair, of Alexandria, is one of the two candidates for the office of State regent. She is opposed by Miss Claudine Hutter, of Lynchburg.

Election of Officers Is Slated for Friday; C. A. R. Meets.

Other officers chosen were Miss Harriett Hunter, Norfolk, treasurer; Mrs. A. S. Parsons, Alexandria, secretary; Mrs. H. R. Haar, Fairfax County, historian, and Mrs. William F. Genhermir, Roanoke, registrar.

Other junior officers elected were Adelaide Brown, Washington, secretary; Mary Lou Langhorne, Norfolk, registrar; Spottswood Walker, Martinsville, historian, and William Torreyson, Arlington, treasurer.

Mrs. William H. Pouch, of New York City, national president of the C. A. R., installed the new State organization and its officers, pending confirmation by the national board of management for the Daughters of the American Revolution, parent organization for the C. A. R.

War Profit Bill Held 'Blueprint For Fascism'

Defense

troops and naval vessels from war areas in the Orient.

The Navy is checking over thousands of small commercial craft and privately owned yachts, it was revealed in a census to determine their efficiency in emergency situations. Questionnaires have gone to owners everywhere, and arrangements made for inspections of boats of 15 or more tons.

Senator M. M. Logan (Democrat), of Kentucky, speaking in the Senate, asked swift enactment of the President's big-navy bill as "a safeguard to the United States against our subjection to the will of some foreign dictator," adding: "Japan hates Christianity and has maintained a malicious attitude toward those who believe in that doctrine. Japan is now a nation gone mad."

Paul V. McNutt, high commissioner of the Philippines, told reporters: "There is no hope for Anglo-American co-operation to solve the Far East situation. Joint action is impossible now, not because Great Britain doesn't want it, but because she can't get it."

Representative William B. Barry (Democrat), of New York, introduced a House resolution proposing a Congressional investigation to determine the extent of raw materials necessary to make this country self-sufficient for five years.

Representative Byron Scott (Democrat), of California, presented to the House Naval Affairs Committee a letter from various members of world peace organizations urging world co-operation toward disarmament to slash increasing naval expenditures.

The statement from Ingersoll came in a letter to Representative Richard Welch (Republican), California. It stated the Navy wanted the 16 proposed ships ready at all times for immediate conversion into hospital and troop ships. Only three or four of the type needed now are operating on the Pacific Coast, he said.

The Maverick-Kvale-Anderson report, expected to serve as a rallying point for peace organizations and other groups opposing defense measures, and said to have been partly prepared by Charles A. Beard, famous historian, gave the much-criticized Sheppard-May bill a spraying in acid language that topped all previous criticisms.

The minority report began:

"This bill is unnecessary, full of pretense, a draft of human beings, and a serious danger to democracy It does none of the things it says it does. It takes absolutely no 'profits out of war,' it 'equalizes burdens of war' in no manner whatsoever, it does not 'promote peace.'"

"An honest title to this bill would be: 'A bill to take democracy out of America on the declaration of war! . . . Whatever the purpose of another war, it is evident the framers of this legislation believe the prosecution of it would be impossible except by setting up in advance a dictatorship unequaled in the history of the world."

In an analysis of the measure, the report said:

"The bill has 11 sections.

"The first 10 sections surrender enormous, unlimited and arbitrary powers to the President upon declaration of war. It sets up in advance the machinery of a dictatorship."

The bill requires the conscription of every person between the ages of 21 and 31, allows the President to fix prices of everything, allows him to extend Government control to all material resources, industries, utilities, securities exchanges and services, allows him to draft into Government service all classes of industrial and business leaders, and to control radio broadcasting, exempting only newspapers, magazine and book publishers. He is permitted to shift, transfer, create or re-shuffle at will all Government agencies. Fines up to $100,000 and imprisonment up to one year are penalties for violations of Presidential orders. A final tax section merely states:

"During any war in which the United States may be engaged there shall be in effect a system of taxation which shall absorb all profits above a fair normal return to be fixed by Congress."

The report referred to the exemption of publishers as "a legislative bribe," and added: "But newspapers are subject to every other provision—registration, draft, and are hedged around in such a way as to eliminate entirely freedom of the press. Newsprint could be denied or placed at prohibitive price levels.

"Newspapers might as well note this fake sop to a protesting press and realize that a strangle-hold is put on them like all others, and that this is poisoned pap.

"This year came the war scare," the report continued, detailing the history of such legislation . . . "If anything should anger the American people it is this bill. If there is such a thing as righteous wrath and indignation, the people should have it. . . . As this report goes to press, cables from Tokyo show that even the Japanese House of Representatives has mustered the self-respect to rebel against a similar bill . . .

"We see no reason for this Congressional hara-kiri, this self-strangulation. The bill is unnecessary for two reasons: one, our natural and continental position of national defense, and two, provisions of the national defense act . . . a well-written law.

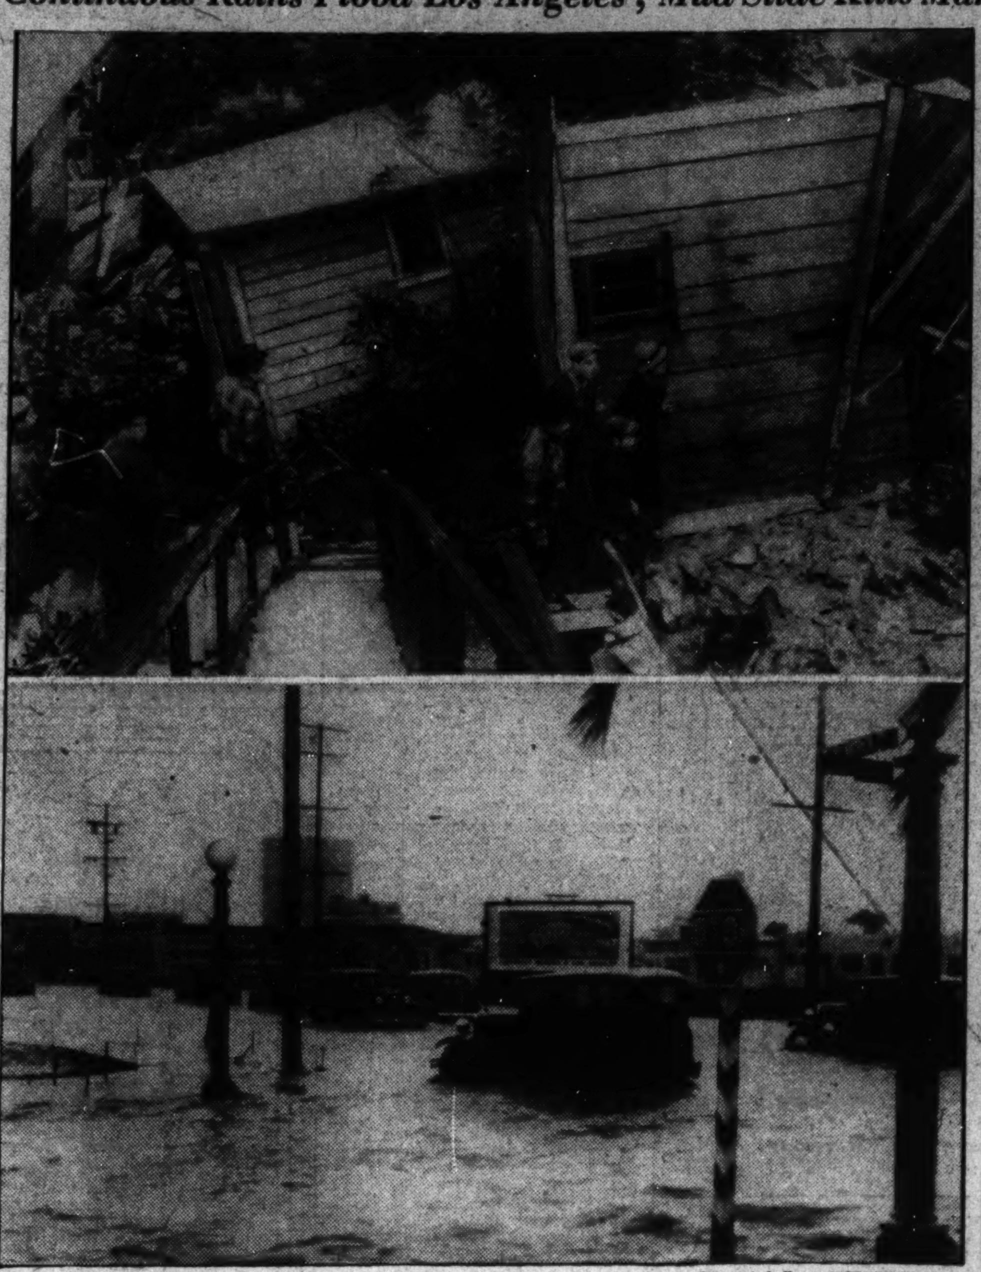
"The bill is all pretense. Its enactment would in no way assure to us that anyone would be prevented from profiteering in time of war. The real purpose shows on every page—the transfer to one man of practically all Government power.

"Why all this hurry to scramble down from the edifice of democracy built through the centuries and execute Congressional quitclaim deeds to dictatorship? What is here proposed is the abject abandonment of the duty of Congress to represent the people and preserve their liberties.

" . . . Once surrendered, such powers might never be regained . . . Upon any war, however small, an executive might choose any method—for instance, the immediate destruction of private capitalism, and every vestige of the present economic structure. There would be nothing to stop it, with the power of the armed forces backed by the unrestricted right of the draft of millions in his hands.

"The mere thought is too sickening to contemplate."

Continuous Rains Flood Los Angeles; Mud Slide Kills Man



Associated Press WIREPHOTOS.

One man was buried under mud and debris and two were rescued yesterday when cabins (upper) on the side of Elysian Park Hill in Los Angeles were carried 150 feet in a mud slide caused by torrential rain. Four days of rain, three inches in the last 24 hours, brought flood hazards to many sections of the city. The lower picture shows an intersection turned into a river.

Deaths Total 10 As Los Angeles Battles Flood

Flood

7-inch rainfall. None was identified.

Two men were swept out of their automobile after driving into the flooded stream. Jerry Myers, a railroad flagman, attempted to rescue thtem by tying a rope around his body and wading. The rope was too short and before he could get more the men were carried away.

Man Clings to Tree.

Another man was reported clinging to a tree a mile below the highway. Firemen made unsuccessful attempts to rescue him.

Fire Chief E. E. Leffen said a member of the rescue party saw the body of a woman and another man floating by.

A boy of 14 or 15 years was seen on top of an old house in the stream. Leffen shouted for the boy to leap into a tree for safety. He did so, and after clinging to the limbs for half an hour was washed away.

The sheriff's office ordered evacuation of 5,000 families in Bell Gardens, between the Los Angeles and Rio Hondo rivers. Water that swept through the streets of Santa Paula, 30 miles northwest of Los Angeles, forced evacuation of 250 families.

The Los Angeles emergency disaster council, organized for earthquake crisis, mobilized for its first duty.

Railway traffic out of Los Angeles was halted by undermined bridges and landslides. Principal highways in all directions were closed. Air service was at a standstill.

Schools and stores were closed and thousands of automobiles were stalled in flooded streets. Flood storage reservoirs were overflowing, releasing their waters into already swollen rivers.

The four-day record rainfall reached 10.48 inches in Los Angeles, making a season's total of 21.15, compared to a normal of 13.33. In the Topango Mountains nearly 6 inches fell.

Twelve thousand flood control workers were mobilized by Army engineers. They helped the Red Cross evacuate the marooned thousands.

County Supervisor Herbert C. Legg, issuing an appeal for men to join relief work, declared:

"Los Angeles County today is being faced with one of the most serious flood conditions since 1884. Most of the low sections of the county are rapidly becoming inundated and undoubtedly a great need is arising for emergency relief activities."

Deputy sheriffs were ordered on duty until further notice. Sheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz told his officers to prepare for drastic emergencies.

Supervisor Roger Jessup, chairman of the Disaster Relief Council, called a meeting of that organization this afternoon.

Four hundred homes were flooded in the Lennox area. Lifeboats were sent there from Manhattan Beach.

Floodgates of the Santa Anita Canyon Dam were thrown open when water began to fall over the spillway, and nearly 1,000 families in Arcadia and Montebello Gardens near the wash, were warned to leave or be ready to abandon their homes.

Big Tujunga Dam gates also were opened, loosing a flood which put water over bridges in the San Fernando Valley and halted traffic.

The chief danger, however, lay ahead. If the heavy rainfall continues, all checks on flood water will be rendered futile.

Hundreds of Ventura residents fled their homes as the Ventura River overflowed its banks. Flood water swept through the Venture avenue oil field, destroying thousands of dollars worth of oil equipment. It cracked the high bridge to Santa Barbara, cutting off all traffic to the north.

Breaks Over Levees.

The Los Angeles River broke through levees between Los Angeles and Glendale, flooding a large section of residences in the fashionable Riverside Rancho estates.

Farther down the river, the Southern Pacific Dayton avenue steel bridge collapsed. Other bridges on the stream were closed to traffic.

Two Southern Pacific trains were halted by floods and landslides near Santa Susanna Pass. Another of its trains was stranded at Indio with 250 passengers aboard. A Santa Fe train was halted near Oceanside by a washout.

Malibu Beach, movie colony on the Pacific Ocean, was isolated.

Clark Gable Periled.

Thousands were isolated in the canyons back of Hollywood.

Flood waters forced Leo Carillo, movie actor, out of his home in Santa Monica Canyon.

A rowboat was wrecked by an automobile on National boulevard, but the motorist rescued the boy occupant from the river street.

Clark Gable abandoned his automobile in Beverly Hills and hitchhiked a ride on a station wagon.

Hollywood, March 2 (U.P.).—Motion picture stars tonight suffered drenchings, isolation and other hardships.

Blonde Madeline Carroll, English film star, has been isolated in her Malibu Beach home since morning. Attempts to either contact or reach her failed.

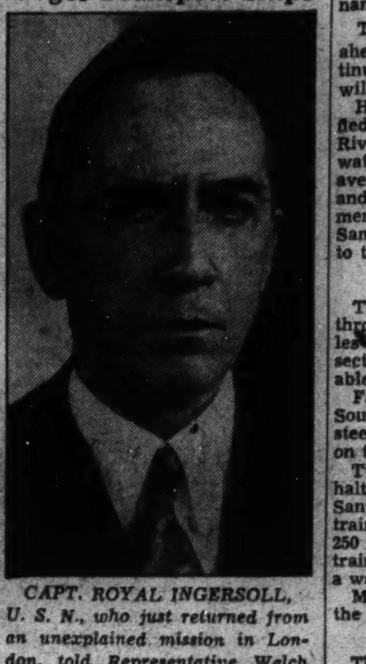
Stranded in their homes atop Lookout Mountain were Michael Whelan, Ida Lupino and Tom Rutherford.

Urges Transport Ships



CAPT. ROYAL INGERSOLL, U. S. N., who just returned from an unexplained mission in London, told Representative Welch in a letter that a fleet of 40 transport ships is needed which can be converted into troop and hospital ships.

A SUPPLEMENT OF Fashion

Leopard Trim

Deviating from the usual suit styles is this youthfully chic ensemble of black crispola, a sheer crisp worsted. It consists of a one-piece slim-fitting frock topped by a three-fourths length boxy coat featuring clever shoulder manipulation and panels of fur extending into a neat little collar. Striking and distinctive!

Fashion, the newest of the style magazines, will appear as a regular supplement to the Thursday Washington Post from now until Easter. While merchandise in the local stores and shops are now complete, they are constantly being replenished by the new arrivals from the market. Each week you will find in FASHION a comprehensive picture of all that is new and up-to-the-minute in style trends; a guide to style-correct buying.

The Bolero

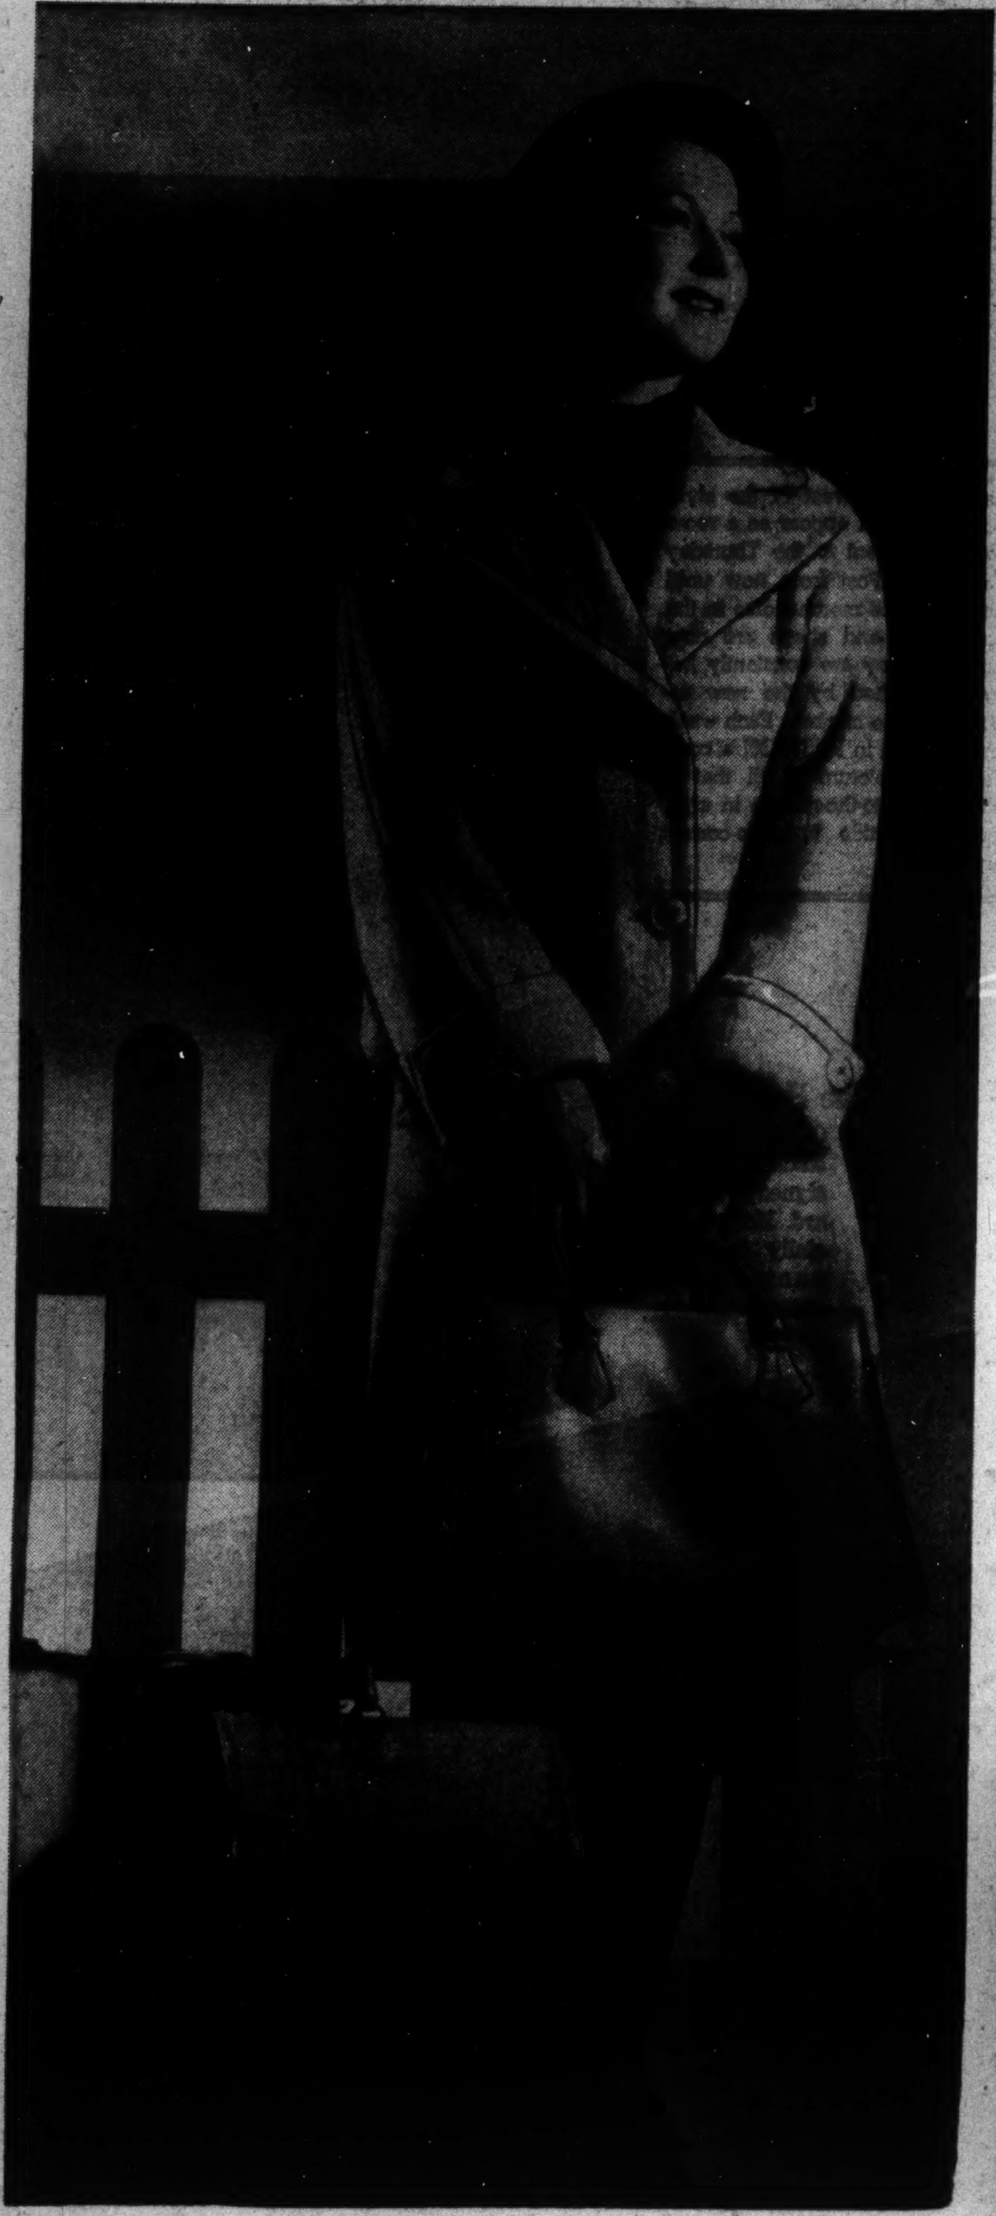
Navy Lace

Admirably suited to the lines of this smartly feminine dinner dress is the small-patterned novelty lace in navy blue. Note the wide full skirt, white pique accents, draped girdle and bodice, which give a youthful effect to the styling. The front neckline descends at back to a brief decolletage, with the pique forming a back surplice effect.

Stripes Are Popular

Navy rayon sheer frock with white vestee, and navy and white striped below-hipline boxy jacket. Blouse-brim hat by Florence Reichman is trimmed with white honeycomb pique; top-handle patent-leather handbag by David Lewis.

Bags—Gloves



Smart Luggage

The smart camel's hair coat, single-breasted in styling and in the new knee length, is an effective background for the effective "blonde" leather luggage pictured. The square case, hat box and zippered overnight case are smart as an ensemble, equally suitable carried separately.

Monograms Go Feminine

Chic And Practical

A spacious handbag, thin, practical and easily carried by the long top-handle straps; by bienan-davis. The smart shape and scroll motif flap are distinctive notes; blending beautifully with the season's costume styling. Available in black patent and soft calfskin in roseberry, Parisian blue and other new colors.

For Spectator Sports

An imported Aris glove of heavy double woven fabric which is ideally suited to the effective hand sewing used here as a decorative medium. It has a wide flare at top and may be smartly worn as shown here or crushed about the wrist. In dark, bright and light color tones.

Over the Coffee

By

Harlan Miller

After a decorous hair trim and a discreet touch of lip rouge, Mrs. Roosevelt has gone on to the third stage of beautification—just a hint of carmine on the cheeks . . .

• • • •

Lest my own eyes deceived me, I had this confirmed by several sharp-eyed girls at a White House party . . . And very handsome she looked, too, in her red dress.

• • • •

Tommy Corcoran. . . . aids Justice

In his upstairs library, Homer Cummings, the philosophic Attorney General, has the Capital's greatest collection of autographed photographs.

It includes every President and Presidential candidate for 25 years, and most of the near-greats, covers every foot of wall-space and overflows on the walls of a spacious corridor.

• • • •

One clue to the glitter of Washington life is the special entrance for the carriage trade on the north side of Constitution Hall, scene of important orations, lectures and concerts . . . The whole long side of the building is designed for limousines to roll up a short step from the doors, with an inner driveway where nine long cars can unload.

"—every inch a Duchess."

On their European jaunts, elite Washingtonians often look up the Windsors, and returning travelers report that the Duchess has modified her breezy manner and now is every inch a Duchess, regal and restrained . . . She's thinner, too, even thinner than she was.

• • • •

CAPITAL GLAMOUR: At quite a few of the 54 foreign legations and embassies, where it's the custom in the old country, servants checking wraps have a plate out for tips . . . During the social season Cabinet wives and other great ladies here hire shoppers to buy their frocks and bonnets; they're too busy to shop themselves.

• • • •

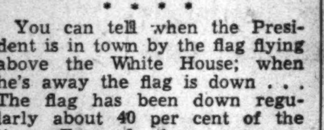
So far no enemy bombing planes have been reported over Washington; but the shell holes seem to be visible, just the same, in the Rock Creek park road between the old Pierce Mill bridge and the ford, east of the creek.

• • • •

You can tell when the President is in town by the flag flying above the White House; when he's away the flag is down . . . The flag has been down regularly about 40 per cent of the time. Formerly there was a noticeable lull during his absences, as if the ship's engines had stopped.

• • • •

It was an indiscreet female relative who revealed the secret that Tommy (White House) Corcoran, the President's man Friday, was helping Justice Black with his home work . . . She mentioned it at a tea party, and then it wasn't a secret any more. Now his nocturnal visits to the Justice's den are less frequent.



"—old European custom."

POTOMAC TRIPE: Since Senator Minton, of Indiana, played host for McNutt's scrumptious coming-out party, his pals have been kidding him by saying "Why not speak for yourself, Sherm?" . . . Of all the Republicans, Senator Vandenberg is handiest with the oral foils; he can pink a crack in New Deal armor at 30 paces—and scarcely miss a chew at his gum. . . . Army officers dressed in their capes for a White House function are occasionally mistaken for military band musicians.

Robbery Suspect Shot by Police in Break for Liberty

A colored robbery suspect was shot and wounded critically late last night when he tried to escape from Policeman John Wright, of the Seventh Precinct.

Wright said he saw the suspect, Jesse Williams, 29, trying to break into two houses on Potomac avenue, between Prospect and Thirty-third streets northwest, and then attempt to pry into a parked automobile.

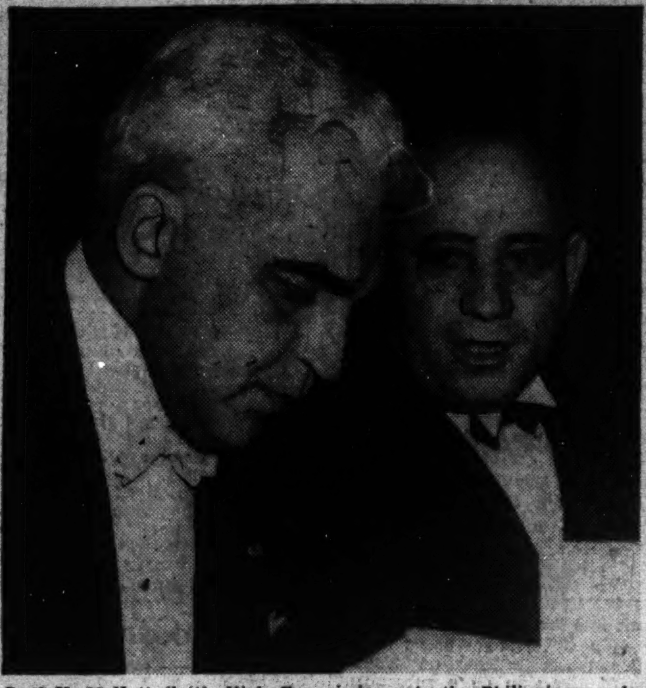
He arrested Williams and took him to a call box at Thirty-third and M streets. When the patrol arrived, Wright put Williams inside. As he got in himself, the prisoner leaped for freedom.

Calling to the fugitive to halt, Wright fired in the air. The colored man turned and reached for a weapon, Wright told his superiors.

"If you come a step nearer, I'll shoot you," Wright said the man threatened. Wright moved closer and when the fugitive did not surrender, he fired.

The bullet penetrated the colored man's hip and entered his abdomen. Physicians at Georgetown Hospital said his condition was critical. Inspector Maurice Collins was assigned to investigate.

McNutt Says Nations Can Save Freedom Only by Moral Unity



Paul V. McNutt (left), High Commissioner to the Philippines, and A. A. Pantelis, supreme counselor of the Order of Ahepa.

Paul V. McNutt, high commissioner of the Philippines, declared last night that democracy would be saved only "by moral unity among all nations which wish to keep peace and preserve liberty and standards of human decency for their children."

McNutt, speaking to 1,000 members and guests at the Order of Ahepa banquet at the Mayflower Hotel, declared "we are in the midst of a fight to save our great and precious form of government for ourselves and the world."

Pointing out that he intended no political speech, McNutt stepped from a brief reference to the New Deal directly into "the war for the preservation of democracy."

Entrance Applauded.

McNutt drew a burst of applause when he walked into the banquet hall. One member of Congress, without turning around, asked what the noise was about. His query brought answers of "McNutt," and 200 Senators and Representatives and other Government officials.

Major emphasis of many of the speakers was placed on the direct relation between modern American democracy and the ancient Athenian democracy.

Mary M. Scouris, president of the Brooklyn Chapter of the Maids of Athens, said the traditions and customs of our people were the same that America teaches its people; Hellenic thought and Hellenic traditions form a foundation on which Greek-American youth could build its place as citizens.

King Recalls Venizelos.

Representative Everett M. Dirksen, of Illinois, drew Hellenic-American bonds a degree closer with his opening statement: "I am so overwhelmed by the sheer beauty and loveliness of the ladies here tonight, and the charm and dignity of the gentlemen, that I feel no inclination to make a speech."

Senator William King, of Utah, praised the "splendid, patriotic and American" ideals of the Ahepa. He recalled a meeting with Venizelos, the late Greek statesman, and the latter's hope that as Greece was a beacon to the ancient world, America would be for the modern world.

Ambassador Mehmet Munir Ertegun (left), of Turkey, and V. I. Chebithes, supreme president of the Order of Ahepa.

he offered the second query, "Who's he?"

A moment later the Representative suggested everyone nominate a President for 1940.

McNutt, interrupted frequently by applause, spoke rapidly, raced through the spread of Democracy from the founding of the United States, and its sudden expansion after the war, to the post-war rise of dictatorship. "Thank God that the system of orderly liberty survives in the old democracies," he said.

Introduction Flowery.

He said that the old-line democracies had successfully withstood the World War, post war revolution, the financial crisis, and that now "it is not necessary to trade our democratic heritage for any mess of Fascist or Communist or Nazi potage."

"In this stage of affairs, the heart of the crisis is the will and purpose of men," he declared.

McNutt, starting his speech before a standing audience, including many Senators and Representatives, said he was "overcome" by an introduction which included the terms "tall, tan and terrific," "eloquence of Apollo," "statesmanship of Pericles," "strength and determination of Hercules," "courage of Theseus."

200 Officials Members.

Interplay of American and Greek traditions was a dominant note of the banquet, marking the sixteenth anniversary of the Order of Ahepa. Among the descendants of ancient Greece, which form the bulk of the order's membership, were almost

Other speakers included Demetrios Sicilianos, Minister from Greece; V. I. Chebithes, supreme president of the order; Estelle Eliades, of the Daughters of Penelope, and Chris J. Petrow, supreme president of the Sons of Pericles. Toastmaster was A. A. Pantelis, supreme counsellor of the order.

Anglo-U. S. Action Scouted.

Paul V. McNutt, Philippine High Commissioner, said yesterday there was no chance of any Anglo-American co-operative attempt to solve the Sino-Japanese problem.

Talking to reporters while waiting to discuss budget estimates for his office with a House Military Affairs appropriations sub-committee, McNutt said the impossibility of such co-operation was "not because Britain doesn't want it, but because she can't get it."

The situation, he said, smacked of "poetic justice" which might be traced to Britain's refusal in 1931 to join this country in protection of China's territorial rights. He added that "operation of poetic justice is often tragic."

The commissioner sought from the committee $195,160 for the 1939 fiscal year, an increase of $47,000 which he said was due principally to the necessity of remaining in rented quarters and the proposed addition of 22 employes to his staff.

1,000 Will Attend Labor Bureau Fete

Roosevelt and labor and industrial leaders, will join Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and her coworkers tonight at a dinner at the Hotel Mayflower in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the United States Department of Labor.

The speakers will be William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Joseph I. Harriman, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union; D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and United States Senator Robert F. Wagner. Secretary Perkins will preside.

D. C. Man Says Waivers On Old Taxes Are Void

Fulton R. Gordon, of Washington, asked the Board of Tax Appeals yesterday to determine whether waivers he gave the Internal Revenue Bureau on litigating income taxes running back to 1913 were valid.

The bureau is trying to collect $92,267 from Gordon, but he asserted the statute of limitations prevents collections now of the old taxes—for the years 1913 to 1933, inclusive.

Ickes Stresses New Deal Aid For Colored

Talks at Celebration of Howard U.'s 71st Anniversary.

As a benefactor to the colored race, the New Deal ranks next to the emancipation act itself, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes last night assured the students and alumni of Howard University.

"Over 70 years ago Abraham Lincoln set you free as human beings," he declared over a Nation-wide NBC hook-up on the university's seventy-first anniversary. Six years ago you cast off the political chains with which, in an excess of gratitude, you had bound yourselves for many years to the chariot wheel of one political party.

"American Negroes have at last set their feet firmly, I hope, in the path which, if they will follow it intelligently, will lead them toward that goal of physical well-being, emotional content and intellectual satisfaction to which every human being is entitled."

Cites Lack of Funds.

That more has not been accomplished for the colored man during the past five years, the Secretary declared, has been due to the fact that the Department of the Interior has been unable to impress the Bureau of the Budget and Congress with the need for larger appropriations.

As a point in question he cited the "acute financial need" of Freedmen's Hospital and the inattention paid to requests for assistance to it.

"So starved is Freedmen's Hospital for money necessary to run an institution of its kind that it is not even able to turn out nurses either in adequate numbers or with sufficient training to give to patients the care that they need," he asserted.

"This is not a racial question, it is not a political question, it is a national social question of grave importance.

"I think that no one will deny that, under the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt, more has been done along educational and social lines for the Negro by the National Administration than at any time since he was emancipated.

"This socially minded President of ours has appreciated the great gap between educational opportunities for white children and those for Negro children. He understands to what a degree the higher education of Negroes, especially along technological and professional lines, has been handicapped by lack of funds.

"Thanks to him, the last five years have seen a decided improvement in these directions."

Secretary Ickes was introduced by Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of the university, and his address followed a dramatic sketch from New York studios commemorating singing of the Howard charter by President Andrew Johnson in 1867.

All-Day Program Held.

The Charter Day dinner at which Ickes spoke followed an all-day celebration featured by a morning address by Dr. T. L. Hungate, controller of Teachers College, Columbia University, and chairman of the Howard board of trustees.

Hungate praised Howard as "the most important center among the Negro colleges for the professional training of doctors, dentists, pharmacists, lawyers," but also emphasized that "its service is sharply limited to the funds at its disposal, and many pressing needs are not met due to lack of funds."

Others who participated were Dr. D. Butler Pratt, dean emeritus of the School of Religion; Wendell Lucus, honor student of the class of 1940; F. D. Wilkinson, registrar; Julia E. Brooks, dean of women at Dunbar High School; Melville G. Curry, Mrs. Florence D. Carroll, Edward H. Lawson, George E. C. Hayes, Mrs. Dorothy Porter, William Andrews, Dr. Adolphus Walton, Maude M. Murray, Portia Bullock, Corrine Martin, Dr. Laura Killingsworth, Mrs. Alma J. Scott, Clarence Tignor, Constance C. Peters, Mrs. Blanche Burton, Dr. John S. Mitchell, Edmond R. Jacobs, Mrs. Grace H. Jacobs, Dr. Robert Jason and members of the university glee club.

Children Suffer Most in Spain, Observer Finds

U. S. Relief Agent Talks on Conditions to Raise Funds for Aid.

The Spanish civil struggle has furnished the best stage upon which the horrors of modern warfare can be dramatized and the evils of war taught, Daniel West, of the American Friends Service Committee and the Church of the Brethren, asserted last night in a lecture at Friends' Meeting House.

West has just returned from many months of nonpartisan child relief work in Spain. He spent four months in Nationalist Spain and then served in relief centers on the loyalist side.

He described the starving condition of thousands of children who are existing on rations so pinched that disease from malnutrition impends.

"The children of Spain are hungry, cold and dirty," he said last night. "The children and the women are the greatest sufferers in the war of Spaniard against Spaniard."

West's speech was made on behalf of the Nonpartisan Spanish Child Feeding Mission, supported by American church orgaizations and directed by the American Friends' service committee.

He refrained from political or military discussion in his talk and subsequent questioning.

"We are there to serve first the children of Spain, for it is the children who will determine whether any nation lives. Any national policy is insignificant as compared to the welfare of the children."

Traffic Division Forgets to Serve Warrant for Year

The traffic division never forgets, Isaac Thomas, colored, learned in Police Court yesterday.

Thomas, of 149 U street northwest, was arrested for speeding February 22, 1937, by Policeman H. L. Thompson and told to appear in court the next day, but failed to do so.

Officer Thompson made out a warrant for Thomas a few days later and succeeded in serving it a year late. Yesterday the officer and the offender kept a belated rendezvous with Traffic Court Judge Hobart Newman, who set the penalty for Thomas' tardiness at $10 or five days.

Lack of Buses Is Assailed by Citizen Group

Friendship Association Proposes Shuttle Service for Area.

A resolution condemning the lack of bus facilities in the area of Forty-fourth, Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth streets, and Brandywine, Yuma and Albemarle streets was adopted last night by the Friendship Citizens' Association, in session at the Janney School.

Shuttle bus service for this area was suggested in the resolution, copies of which were sent to the Public Utilities Commission and the Capital Transit Co.

The guest speaker was Elwood Street, director of Public Welfare, who described the working of the board and its relief problems.

Chevy Chase

The executive committee of the Chevy Chase (D. C.) Citizen's Association, in session at Woodrow Wilson High School, last night voted to reiterate its position in favor of a sales tax and a reduction of the real estate tax in the District to $1.50 per 100.

Construction of the Pennsylvania avenue bridge was favored by the executive group.

Col. Layson Atkins, chairman of the association's public utilities committee, called attention to the need of a cross-town bus on Military road.

The committee recommended that the association offer prizes for the best gardens and lawns in its area, and the matter was referred to David Wise, representative of the Merchants' Association, who said prizes would be provided. Members of the Garden Club will be the judges.

Investigation of Communist Charges Is Voted at Heated Session.

An "investigation of the organization" and postponement of approval of the objectives of the citizen's committee on fair taxation was voted last night by members of the Public School Association after an association member charged the committee with "Communistic activity."

While explaining the policy of the tax committee to members of the association at a regular meeting in the District Building, Samuel Lepkowitz was interrupted by Edna Holland, delegate from the Loyal Women of America, who questioned intentions of the committee and asked "if you are not connected with the C. I. O."

Heated words filled the board room of the District Commissioners when Miss Holland charged that the committee was "operated for Communistic gain and designed to do anything but assist the people of the District."

The tax committee is opposed to any form of taxation which is not based on "ability to pay" and recommends the passage of a District income tax bill based on Federal income tax paid.

2,000 Attend D.C. Laundry Wage Meeting

Huge Crowd of Workers Jam Halls to Name Delegates.

Labor's voice echoed through corridors of the District Building last night when nearly 2,000 laundry workers—representing almost half of the total employed in the industry here—jammed halls and stairways to nominate nine persons to represent them at the District Minimum Wage Board Conference.

Scheduled to meet in the Alcohol Beverage Control Board room, the election was finally transferred to the main corridor and double stairway of the District Building when the workers—mostly women—continued to file into the building. Several hundred of the workers left the meeting unable to withstand the jostling and heat.

Of the nine workers elected, seven were colored. Nominated to represent the power group were Ruth Medley, L. Brooks and N. Jones. For the hand laundries were Florence Smith, S. Lyons and Edna Washington. Dry cleaning establishment employes nominated Clatine Washington, Anna Patrick and Julia Cole.

Conference March 15.

Under the law, employes are permitted to nominate nine workers from which three will be selected by the board to represent employes in the nine-member conference which will recommend a minimum wage for the laundry and dry cleaning industry here. The conference is scheduled for March 15.

The large turnout of the workers, who number about 4,500, presented a marked contrast to previous elections of workers of the retail and restaurant industries. Only about 100 of the 15,000 retail workers attended their meeting and less than that number showed up for the restaurant trade, which has about 8,000 employes.

Unprepared for the huge turnout, Arthur L. Schoenfeld, labor representative of the board, directed members to make nominations by raising their hands. When more than a thousand workers obeyed, Schoenfeld divided the group into imaginary sections.

In all, 18 workers representing power plants; 12 representing hand plants and 14 from dry cleaning establishments were nominated. Five tellers, appointed by Schoenfeld, worked nearly three hours to count the ballots.

'Relative of the Boss.'

One nominee was questioned when a member shouted, "She's a relative of the boss at her company and she shouldn't have any say so for us." Board representatives decided to accept the nomination after some argument.

Enthusiastic about the response of the workers, Mrs. William Kittle, public representative of the board, declared, "I think this is the finest example of labor interest ever shown in the District."

"It is not only a brilliant display of interest of workers in their industry," she asserted, "but it shows a definite feeling of confidence of employes in the board and its work."

Revised Naval Rules Tighten Secrecy Veil

Ship and Shore Personnel Receive Warning on 'Leaks' in Plans.

By Barry Sullivan.

Revised naval regulations, stressing the need for security of naval secrets and enforcing sharply defined methods for using information pertinent to national defense, have been sent to "all ships and shore stations," it was learned yesterday.

Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, has approved new restrictions placing complete responsibility for the secrecy of important naval data squarely upon the shoulders of officers having cognizance or custody of essential naval matters.

The new orders state that responsibility for the protection of secret, confidential or restricted information "rests upon each person having knowledge or custody thereof." The changes bring up to date orders not modified in the last four years.

Win Roosevelt Sanction.

The revised regulations, issued over a month ago, received the sanction of President Roosevelt on December 31. Since promulgation of the restrictions, filed at the Navy Department as Op13C-jc, A2-1 (371104), rumors concerning greatly increased secretiveness in the national defense forces have been rampant.

The Navy defines secret data as information so important its disclosure might "endanger the national security, or cause serious injury to the interests or prestige of the Nation or any Government activity thereof."

Confidential matter if disclosed would not necessarily endanger national safety, but would injure the interests or prestige of the United States.

Restricted information is of such a nature that it must be held in "administrative privacy," or its knowledge not classified as confidential because "the benefits to be gained by a lower classification outweigh the value of security" obtained by labelling it either confidential or secret.

Orders to Officers.

The new orders direct any officer knowing of the improper use of information classified in any of the three grades of regulation "fully and immediately (to) report the facts to the chief of naval operations via his commanding officer.

The orders also point out that "an officer, by virtue of his commission alone, is not authorized to have knowledge of secret or confidential matter."

"Persons within the naval service," the regulations continue, "who receive matter originated by another government agency and designated by that agency as having any degree of 'confidentiality' shall safeguard such matter in the same manner as if it had been so designated by naval authority."

Naval officials receiving information from other Government agencies are also made responsible for classifying the material as secret, confidential or restricted "for handling in the naval service."

General Tightening.

The adoption of the new regulations is believed to be part of a general tightening up on the dissemination of information relative to national defense.

A Congressional measure recently approved by the President has placed additional restrictions upon the taking of photographs in military reservations and of ships, machinery and buildings of importance to national defense.

Naval officials pointed out yesterday that the new act "picks up" a naval regulation governing the taking of photographs and applies to all citizens of the United States.

They also explained the new restrictions controlling the use of naval information apply only to members of the naval establishment, but added that the espionage act of 1916 makes a violation by a civilian of the principles laid down in the Navy regulations punishable in peace time by a fine of $10,000, imprisonment for two years, or both. In war time violaters of the espionage act "shall be punished by death or by imprisonment for not more than 30 years."

Members of the Bethesda Presbyterian Church must have thought they had made some mistake last night. Arriving at the church for the regular midweek service, they found the interior of the building transformed into a formal garden.

The occasion for the disguise was a "garden service," planned by the pastor—the Rev. John L. Parkes—to stress the relationship between religion and the out-of-doors. His sermon, the quartet's numbers and the songs by the children's choir dealt with gardens, so he arranged for the floral decorations as an example of his theme.

The indoor garden, complete with hedge and flagstones, was installed in the chancel. Real green plants, "growing" on a carpet of artificial grass, were interspersed with colorful clumps of forsythia and azalea.

Realistic as the garden is, no amount of watering and wedding will keep it green for long, so Mr. Parkes plans to uproot it today. But he promised his congregation that some time soon they will find another garden—this time full of spring flowers—in place of the pulpit.

School Leaders Asked to Stress Self-Reliance

Indianapolis Educator Also Urges Equal Attention for Dull Children.

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 2.—The schools owe as much to dull-witted students as they do to bright ones, Dewitt S. Morgan, superintendent of schools at Indianapolis, said today, and if they don't take steps to keep children's spirit of self-reliance alive there is trouble ahead for this country.

"With a population bewildered," he told the American Association of School Administrators, "a generation of children is growing up with the idea that individuals have no chance to help themselves—and therefore no responsibility for so doing. Everyone knows that this attitude, if held by many for long, leads straight to chaos."

Even the dull-witted have a right to live and to earn an honest living, he said, and it's up to the schools to take each individual as he comes and develop to the highest point any talents he has.

Children were once an economic asset, he observed. They worked in the fields and played in the woods—and parents could control their companionship. When they grew up they could settle on the land, and from perseverance, doggedness and "the benign working of economic law" they accumulated modest fortunes at middle-age. That avenue is closed to present-day children, he said.

Children now play in a community filled with other children; they skate on the sidewalks and in the street, and their parents can't provide many chores for them. It takes all their father's ingenuity to explain the necessity for thrift and industry.

There is no land which they can take up, he said, and the only opportunity they have is to sell such personal ability as they can develop.

Is This the Reason You Are Constipated?

If you're wondering why your bowels don't work right—stop and think about what you eat. Bread, meat, eggs and potatoes. All good nourishing foods—but all concentrated, lacking in "bulk." And you need "bulk"! Some food that forms a soft, spongy mass in the bowels—helps them move.

If it's this lack of "bulk" that's causing your constipation, Kellogg's All-Bran is just what you need. It soaks up water and softens like a sponge. And this soft mass helps your bowels move. In addition, All-Bran gives you Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1. Eat this crisp crunchy cereal every day, drink plenty of water, and enjoy happier days. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Al Smith Shows Zog's Sisters Sunset From 102 Stories Up

'Happy Warrior' Asks 'Counsel' From Albania to Explain as He Extols Wonders of Manhattan Atop Empire State Building.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 2.—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith used his walking stick as a pointer today to show three Albanian princesses the splendor of the sunset from the 102d floor of the world's tallest building.

"Look at that sun goin' down over there," he boomed at the marveling sisters of Albania's King Zog.

He raised his voice, as if to make himself understood better by the Princesses Ruhije, Maxhide and Myzejen, who don't speak English. Then he uned to their interpreter, Faik Konitza, the Albanian Minister to the United States, and said: "Consul, explain to the ladies."

The wind whistled around the observation tower of the Empire State Building. The princesses' modish blue veils streamed out from their little hats, and the former Governor of New York State gripped his brown derby with one hand.

He eyed his three guests with an expression of wonder, his jaw slightly dropping when they started chattering in Albanian about the view.

"Watch the size of that train down there goin' along. It looks about the size of my foot . . . that little park is half a mile away, but it looks as if you could throw a golf ball on it . . . see that building with the clock? That's the Metropolitan Life . . .

"See there, there's a ship sailin' in . . . now we're lookin' east . . . you see the three bridges . . ."

Occasionally "Al" forgot his royal guests momentarily, in his own perennial awe at the view from the tower.

The princesses chattered softly about how small everything looked, and leaned over the parapet gingerly to see the streets.

Gas Station Man Catches 6 Sought For Stealing Car

Six persons, including a girl and a young woman, were captured by a Groveton (Va.) filling station operator last night, and turned over to Fairfax County police for investigation in connection with the theft of an automobile.

Owner of the car, a barber at Accotink, whose name police were unable to learn, notified the filling station operator, David Crockett, that his car had been stolen a short time before the auto was driven into his place for repairs.

Crockett directed his mechanic to take his time repairing the machine and called police at Fairfax. The mechanic was still at work when when the officers arrived.

Arrested on an open charge were a 13-year-old Lorton (Va.) girl, Mary Lenox, 24, also of Lorton; Grover Maddox, 24, of Alexandria; Grover Deavers, 21, of Lorton; Private Ellis Halloway, 30, of Fort Belvoir, and a 17-year-old Lorton youth.

Bridges Denied Hearing Now By Senate Unit

Commerce Committee Votes to Await Action on Alien Charge.

The Senate Commerce Committee voted unanimously yesterday to deny a hearing to Harry Bridges, militant West Coast longshoremen's leader, until the Labor Department has acted on charges he is an undesirable alien and should be deported.

Bridges, who now is organizing C. I. O. longshoremen's unions on the East Coast, "dared" the committee to call him after Joseph P. Ryan, his A. F. of L. rival, had branded him as a Communist.

More recently Lee Pressman, general counsel for the C. I. O., requested the committee to grant Bridges a hearing.

Ponders Request.

The committee pondered that request and other matters for three hours yesterday, after which Chairman Copeland made the following announcement:

"Inasmuch as the Secretary of Labor has reported to the committee that a case now is pending before that department involving Harry Bridges, this committee deems it inadvisable to seem to interfere with the jurisdiction of the department in a matter now before it, while it is under consideration, and therefore withholds action upon Mr. Bridges request to be heard until the Department of Labor has acted. The committee thereupon will hear Mr. Bridges."

Bridges came to Washington yesterday after installing the first C. I. O. longshoremen's union in Philadelphia. Awarding a charter Tuesday night to the new local, Bridges said he was little concerned with the forthcoming Senate investigation of subversive activities in maritime labor.

Fears 'Witch Hunt.'

"If they would investigate racketeering unions it would be all right," he said, "but if they're on another witch hunt we're against it.

"We are categorically opposed to an investigation by this committee in any event. We have the La Follette committee to investigate infringements of civil liberties. A union has no more right to infringe upon a liberty than an employer."

The S. S. Algic, 14 of whose crew were convicted under the mutiny statute in Baltimore last December, came into the news again yesterday when a Government board of inquiry began hearing on trouble aboard the ship on a subsequent cruise to South America.

Charges of misconduct against two Algic sailors were entered into the record despite the failure of one of the defendants to appear.

The missing man was John P. Buzzell, water tender on the Algic and ship's delegate of the C. I. O.'s National Maritime Union. Chief Engineer Henry Dismuke testified Buzzell ordered him to put a drunken man back to work and then demanded overtime pay for the man who took the intoxicated sailor's post. Other officers testified to the row that followed.

Max Lustig, attorney for Buzzell, said Buzzell was in Florida, argued that to go ahead with the trial in the defendant's absence was a violation of his constitutional rights.

The other defendant is Joseph E. Morton, second assistant engineer of the Algic, whom Buzzell accused of assault while the freighter was at sea.

Girl Student Beaten by Man In Arlington

Frances Tyler, 18, Confined to Bed With Severe Cuts to Head.

Arlington County police last night searched for a white thug who beat 18-year-old Frances Tyler, Benjamin Franklin University student, over the head with a piece of metal six blocks from her home at 3118 Key Bridge boulevard.

Miss Tyler, an honor graduate in last year's class at Arlington Hall School, was returning from her classes in Washington at the time of the attack.

She had alighted from a bus in Clarendon, at North Highland street and Wilson boulevard, and when she reached North Highland and Hancock streets, a man leaped from the shadows and grabbed her arm.

As she screamed, Miss Tyler's assailant struck her on the head and fled. The injured girl managed to make her way to her home, where police and a private physician were called.

The victim, confined to her bed yesterday with severe lacerations, said she could not identify her attacker because he fled so swiftly.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE
Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

This Morning

Wherein We Encounter 'a Baseball Fan.'

By Shirley Povich.

Orlando, Fla.

A little bantam of a man leaned idly against the fence at Tinker Field, cocked his head at an angle that permitted him to peer over his specs and let his eyes sweep the scene as 25 ball players in the uniform of the Washington Club limbered up. With hair of driven-snow whiteness and a wizened face that apparently got its start 80 years ago, he was a carbon copy of the thousands of aging folks who have chosen Florida for the sunset years of their lives.

POVICH.

You see them—the white-haired emigres from Northern climes—sitting on the park benches in every Florida town, drinking in the sun's medication. Or you'll find them playing shuffleboard or tossing quoits at the municipal parks Florida sets aside for the aging folks who have flocked in droves to the sun-bathed peninsular State in quest of the longer if not more abundant life.

Old Nats' Rooter.

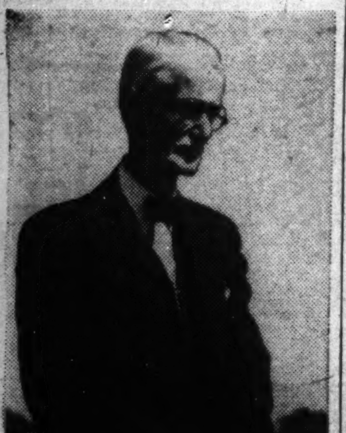
James L. Denny ambled over to Manager Bucky Harris, who was stealing a few drags from a cigarette in a corner of the Nats' dugout and friendly-like, volunteered that he had been a Washington rooter for 57 years.

Ordinarily, a big league manager who was getting his first look at his squad in action might have replied with a disinterested "So what?" but the harmlessly naive statement of the old fellow interested Harris.

"Fifty-seven years, Mister? That's a long time," said Harris. "Is that true?"

"Yep," said James L. Denny. "Been a Washington fan ever since Garfield was shot."

Whereupon this department pricked its ears. "Ever since Garfield was shot? What did Garfield have to do with it?"



DENNY AT ORLANDO.
He Saw Garfield Shot!

"Well. Garfield didn't have anything to do with it, son," said the little old gentleman apologetically. "I mean I went to Washington the year Garfield was shot and have been a Washington rooter ever since. That was 1881. I saw Garfield shot."

No?

"Yep. I did. I guess I'm the only man living now who saw President Garfield assassinated. There weren't more than a half dozen people who were there when it happened."

Mr. James L. Denny began to command a new interest. He appeared capable of having witnessed that Nation-shocking event 57 years ago. But he must have been a young man at the time.

"I was. I was only 20 years old. Born down in Winchester, Va., in 1861, two months before the Civil War fuss started. 'John Brown's Body' was my cradle song, my mother told me. The Union and Confederate soldiers were shuttling back and forth through Winchester all during the war.

"But that day in Washington when Guiteau came up to me and——"

Talked to Guiteau.

Guiteau! Why, he was the fellow who shot Garfield. What was that you were saying about Guiteau coming up to you?

"That's right, he did. I'll never forget that morning on July 2, 1881, at that old Baltimore & Ohio station in Washington. I was working there. Tending the newsstand for the Union News Co. Sold magazines and newspapers. Leslie's Illustrated Weekly, Harper's Weekly, Peterson's Magazine, another weekly book they called Peterson's magazines and a couple of others. There were only about a half dozen magazines on the newsstand those days. Now look at 'em. They've got a different magazine for every day in the year."

What was that you were saying about Guiteau?

"Oh, him? Well, as I was saying, he came up to me about 9 o'clock that morning—we handled the parcels too—and left a little package with me, saying somebody would call for it. With the package was a letter addressed to Byron S. Andrews, a Washington correspondent for the old Chicago Inter Ocean. I didn't think much about it at the time, but a half hour later Guiteau shot President Garfield twice and that letter explained why he was going to kill the President."

Why?

"Oh, that Guiteau was a religious fanatic. He filled the letter with Bible quotations that were incoherent. He tried to explain that Garfield was ruining the

Palm Beach Golfer Puts Medalist Out

Minneapolis Star Blows Up on Incoming Nine at St. Augustine.

By the Associated Press.

St. Augustine, Fla., March 2.—Mrs. Jane Cothran Jameson, of West Palm Beach, Fla., stopped Patty Bergs charge along the winter golfing circuit today by beating the Minneapolis miss, 2 and 1, in the first round of the annual Florida East coast women's tournament.

The red-haired schoolgirl had entered and won four consecutive meets and took medalist honors in yesterday's qualifying round here.

She previously won the women's tournaments at Augusta, Ga., and at Punta Gorda, Coral Gables and Ormond Beach, Fla. She had won 13 consecutive matches.

Miss Berg, who shot a 75 yesterday for medal honors, had a one up lead at the end of nine holes today but her game went to pieces on the incoming route.

Mrs. Jameson won the tenth but Patty evened things on the twelfth. Mrs. Jameson again took the lead on the fifteenth and ended the contest on the seventeenth by sinking a 20 foot putt.

Mrs. Jameson's second round opponent tomorrow will be Frances Owen of Jacksonville, former State women's champion. Miss Owen advanced by defeating Sally Guth, of Webster Grove, Mo., 4 and 3.

Dorothy Traung of San Francisco eliminated Elizabeth Wing, of Evanston, Ill., 7 and 5. Marion McDougall, of Portland, Oreg., downed Katherine MacCloskey of Pittsburgh 9 and 7, and will play Miss Traung tomorrow.

Mrs. Charles Newbold, of Wichita, Kans., defeated Mrs. E. F. Cary of Minneapolis 1 up. Her next opponent will be Laddie Irwin, of Montclair, N. J., who beat Lillian Wood, of Portland, Oreg., 6 and 4.

Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., won over Mary Morrison, of Hershey, Pa., 4 and 2, and will meet Kathryn Hemphill, of Columbia, S. C., who won a 7 and 6 victory over Virginia Norton, of Chicago.

2 D. C. Fives Accept Bids

Eastern and St. Johns to Play at Lexington.

Washington's entries in the Washington and Lee basketball tournament at Lexington, Va., Thursday were increased to two yesterday when Gene Augustefer wired acceptance of St. John's invitation.

Eastern's contingent, 10 strong, will leave Wednesday at 6 p. m. by train while the Johnnies will travel by auto, leaving early Wednesday morning.

The Eastern party will include players Lee Lusby, Russ Lombardy, Clint Quantrille, Ralph Matera, "Soup" Hancock, Cooksey and Stasuli, Manager A. H. Gregory and Coach Mike Kelly.

Just what players will make the trip for St. John's is undecided. It is certain, however, that the regulars, Joe Gallagher, Jim Giebel, Johnny Swagart, Francis Battiste and Jim Mulvihill will go along. At least three more boys will be selected from the remainder of the squad. The Johnnies will be chaperoned by Brother Eadbert, athletic director.

During their stay in Lexington, Eastern and St. John's will be housed and fed by campus fraternities of Washington and Lee University.

Only Miracle Can Push Wasdell In, Kuhel Out

And That Miracle Will Be When Rookie Sheds a Lots of Weight Off His 197-Pound Frame—2 Rookie Hurlers Report Today.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., March 2.—Developments in the vicinity of first base at Tinker Field, where the Washington ball club is being cast in the 1938 mold, have taken a definite trend in favor of the veteran Joe Kuhel. And Kuhel thus far has not even donned his first baseman's mitt.

Young Jimmy Wasdell, who was supposed to give Kuhel a furious battle for the position, is not the lean, lithe athlete who impressed Manager Bucky Harris with his long-distance hitting and fancy fielding last fall. The rookie, who flabbergasted the Nats' bosses by reporting here as a 197-pounder, 17 pounds over his 1937 weight, may have eaten himself out of a regular job.

At 197, Wasdell is not only chunky, but fat. Before he can even challenge Kuhel seriously he must strip at least 10 pounds, perhaps more, from his frame. And that will be a struggle, for Wasdell does not eat like a bird, unless you are referring to an eagle. At one point this winter, he weighed 207 pounds which, on his small frame, was much too much.

Kuhel, in contrast, reported as a trim 172-pounder, ready to step into the regular line-up tomorrow. The veteran, who in nine years with the Nats has never permitted himself to take on superfluous weight, has a distinct advantage in his battle with his rooke challenger for the job.

Shortest Man on Team.

Wasdell was quoted as an even money shot to oust Kuhel from the position this season, but that eventuality now would loom as a miracle in the light of his poundage. At first glance, Wasdell gives the impression that he is as easy to step over as walk around. He's the shortest player on the team with his 5 feet 10 inches.

Both Manager Harris and Owner Clark Griffith make no secret of their displeasure at the rookie's evident lack of condition. Wasdell represents a $20,000 investment to Griffith, the Nat's owner paying that sum to the Minneapolis club a year ago in return for the rookie's contract.

Last year, Wasdell left the impression with Harris that with a bit more seasoning he would be ready for a big league role. His fielding was better than acceptable and his long distance hitting was sorely needed by the Nats. But a 197 pound Wasdell is of utterly no use to the Washington club. His fate rests in the hands of Trainer Mike Martin and himself. Martin tomorrow will get out the rubber shirt for Wasdell.

Two Pitchers to Report.

The Nats' pitching corps will be increased by two tomorrow when a pair of young right handers from the Charlotte club will report to Manager Bucky Harris. Owen

Annual Pin Meet Opens

24,875 Enter Chicago Event Tonight.

Chicago, March 2 (AP).—The wood will begin to fly in the thirty-eighth annual American Bowling Congress tournament tomorrow night and the crashing will continue for 48 days and 48 nights.

America's longest sporting event, with the biggest number of entries in its history, comes to Chicago for the fourth time.

Forty gleaming alleys, eight more than ever used before, have been constructed in the Chicago Coliseum. Bowlers, from every State in the Union, Canada and the Hawaiian Islands, will number 24,875. There will be 4,957 teams of five men each in action before the last ball is sent down the lane on April 18. The first A. B. C. tournament, in 1901, attracted just 41 teams.

Secretary Elmer Baumgarten of Milwaukee compiled record-breaking entry lists of 17,441 in the singles event, 8,620 in the doubles. By the time the best bowlers in the business have finished the singles, doubles and team competitions, more than 180,000 games will have been rolled, an average of nearly 4,000 games each day.

Prize money of $200,000 will be distributed to the high men, from a total of $297,300 amassed in entry fees. Spectators during the seven-week contest were expected to pass the 100,000 figure.

Chicago contributed the largest number of teams to this largest of A. B. C. meets, a total of 1,626. Milwaukee, with 245, ranked second followed by Indianapolis, 151; Detroit, 117; St. Louis, 87; Cleveland, 84; Peoria, 57; Pittsurgh, 50, and Toledo, 45.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Va., March 2.—George Washington High School's cagers emerged from a 15-all half-time deadlock to defeat Roosevelt High with a well-balanced second-half offensive, 32-21, here this afternoon.

The victory left the Presidents with a record of 10 wins against a similar number of defeats, and gave them a .500 average for the first time this season.

This afternoon's contest was the final regular game for Roosevelt, leaving the Rough Riders with a season's record of eleven victories against seven defeats.

The Presidents seemed to find the visitors' defense difficult to solve during the early stages of the game, and they trailed up until the final five seconds of the half. Eddie Nowland's snowbird just as the whistle sounded brought them up even at 15-all, after they had previously trailed by a 2-point margin at the end of the first quarter.

Beginning the third quarter, the G. W. attack began to function effectively for the first time, and they left their opponents far in their wake with an offensive that accounted for 10 straight points before the Rough Riders broke the ice with a single foul shot.

Roosevelt rallied mildly and cut the lead to five points as the third period ended, but another G. W. spurt put them well out in front in the final stanza.

Eddie Nowland, George Washington's high-scoring forward, again proved to be the most consistent scorer, setting the pace for the afternoon with a total of 12 points. Ed Snyder, with an even half-dozen, was runnerup for honors.

"Hymie" Perlo and Royal, with six and four points respectively, topped Roosevelt's attack. The Rough Riders were limited to only six field goals during the game, scoring nine points from the charity line.

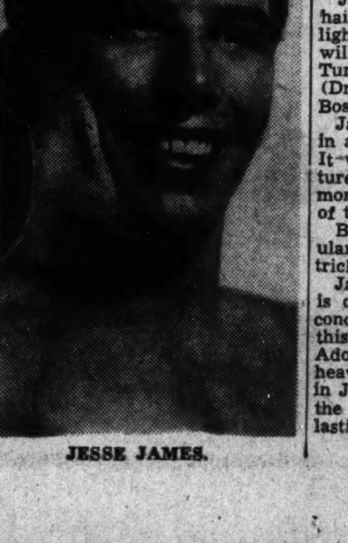
James Defends Mat Title Against Dr. Murphy



JESSE JAMES.

Jesse James, wrestledom's fair-haired boy who owns the world's light heavyweight championship, will risk his title again tonight at Turner's Arena, with Dr. John (Dropkick) Murphy, the clever Bostonian, the challenger.

James and Murphy will mix it up in a time-limit match of 1½ hours. It will be the first time-limit feature battle at the Arena in several months, previous bouts having been of the finish variety.

Both James and Murphy are popular performers, and know every trick and hold like their A. B. C's.

James, a legitimate 185-pounder, is defending his title only on the condition that Murphy scale in at this weight. It will be the Greek Adonis' second defense of his light-heavy crown in Washington. Back in January he beat Gino Martinelli, the handsome Italian, in a battle lasting an hour. Last week the

Sabin Wins In Net Play

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 2.—Continuing his quest for the first board court "triple" in three years, Wayne Sabin, of Hollywood, Calif., today stroked his way into the men's doubles semifinals of the national indoor tennis championships.

Sabin was equally impressive in doubles. Teamed with Gregory S. Mangin, who scored the last "triple" in 1935, he helped oust Morey Lewis and Paul Graebner, of Kenyon College, 6—1, 7—5, then returned to the court a few moments later, paired with Katharine Winthrop, of Boston, to defeat Virginia Nash and C. R. Grin, 6—0, 6—1.

The latter victory carried Sabin and Miss Winthrop into the quarter-finals, from where they went to the semi-finals on a default.

Frank Shields, U. S. No. 1 in 1933, and Eugene McCauliff, seeded second, got a round ahead of the field yesterday, and Bernard Coghlan, of Pacific Palisades, Calif., and Dr. John McDiarmid, of Princeton University, the No. 4 pair breezed past William Thompson and Udo Zanglein at 6—2, 6—2.

J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., veteran, and his partner, Ray Palmer, were forced to default when Palmer failed to report in time for their match.

Tommy O'Brien (right), captain and forward of George Washington University's basketball team, who completed three years of outstanding performance last night, is presented a token of appreciation from the school. Max Farrington, director of athletics, makes the award between halves of the Loyola game last night at Tech High gym.

O'Brien Hero As Colonials Take Victory

By Bob Garrison.

George Washington University's Colonials completed the most successful home season in the school's history last night when the 1938 edition rung down the curtain with an impressive 48-33 victory over Loyola University of Chicago

It was the second time in as many days the Colonials had bested "Snow Mike" Novak, 6-foot 9-inch center, and his dwarfs, and the ninth straight victory they had registered this season on the Tech High floor.

It was "Tommy O'Brien night" last night. And neither he, the university nor the 3,000 fans who witnessed the game forgot it.

Bowing out after a glorious three-year career, the Union City, N. J., lad gave the customers something to remember him by. And it is not too much to say that he will linger long in the collective memories of the Loyola players.

He Scores 13 Points.

Calmly he contributed 13 points and led the local club to the triumph it needed to virtually qualify for the invitation to the National Basketball Tournament at New York, starting March 9. Only two games, with Davis-Elkins tomorrow night in Cumberland, and Washington Jefferson, in Washington, Pa., Saturday, remain on the Colonial schedule.

O'Brien was in his glory in his farewell appearance. Besides demonstrating efficiency with his familiar set-shot by hitting the mark five times, his superb guarding held Wib Kautz, Loyola's leading scorer to two goals from the floor. Kautz, before the George Washington series, boasted an average of 16 points per contest.

There were other heroes, too. Again Bob Faris, who was the leader of the winning attack Tuesday night, when the Colonials pasted a 44-39 licking on the Windy City five, was clicking. He totaled 11 points and was joined by Jack Butterworth, who scored the same number, while holding the opposing center, the famed Mr. Novak, to 7.

Colonials Stay Ahead.

The Colonials were pressed but once, always remaining as few as five and as many as 15 points in the lead. They got off to an 8-2 lead and with O'Brien and Butterworth pacing, stayed that far ahead until the score reached 19-12.

Then Butterworth contributed three goals and Sid Silkowitz made one to close the first half with G. W. in possession of a lead that lacked but a single point of doubling the score, 27-14.

The Ramblers threatened at this point. George Hogan scored five straight points and Wib Kautz and Bill O'Brien tacked on field goals. When Novak scored his third and final goal, they trailed by five points, 30-25.

The hero at this point was one Mr. Sweeney, of the Tech maintenance department, who was called upon to repair the basket cord that Loyola had been filling with goals until it was ripped to shreds. After the delay, they never seemed to pick up the recessed scoring epidemic.

Faris Is Sensational.

Bob Faris made a sensational back-hand goal, a set shot and a snowbird on a pass from Silkowitz and O'Brien scored twice from long range while the visitors added but two goals to make the score 40-29.

At this point Reinhart entrusted the game to his substitutes. When Arnold Auerback replayed O'Brien, it was the signal for the spectators to arise and extend him one of the longest rounds of applause ever given a local basketball player.

Before the teams returned to the court after half-time intermission, Director of Athletics Max Farrington, of George Washington, presented O'Brien a medal, symbolic of appreciation for his three years of service to the team. It is the first time the school has made such an award.

Seabo Rides Columbiana To Neck Win

By the Associated Press.

Hialeah Park, Fla., March 2.—Scoring her first triumph since her success in the Widener Cup here a year ago, W. J. (Buddy) Hirsch's Columbiana today defeated six rivals in the featured grade "B" Handicap of a mile and a furlong. Hard ridden by little George Seabo, the mare got up to win by a neck from H. W. Jackson's Bulwark. B. M. Byers' Thorson, a failure in several recent efforts, displayed something approaching his best New York form to land the show, a scant half length behind.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Brush Hook, second to the Flamingo Stakes winner Lawrin in his last outing, closed fast but too late to menace the leaders. He could not keep up early and wound up fifth, beaten approximately three lengths in the role of favorite.

This contest brought out four horses named for Saturday's Widener Cup, they being Columbiana, Thorson, Brush Hook and Two Bob, which was last all the way.

Columbiana paid $9.20. Under 110 pounds, she made the fair time of 1:51 2-5.

Bulwark Makes Running.

The five-year-old daughter of Petee Wrack—Firetop, after winning last year's closing day winter classic, started once in the spring and was well beaten. She was then shelved until this winter. Her young owner started her five times at the current session and she closed resolutely in her most recent endeavor, although unable to do better than fourth.

Bulwark, Sparta and Francesco are not eligible for the Widener.

Bulwark made the running into the last furlong. He had Thorson as his chief opponent until Columbiana shot from fourth place on the inside at the turn into the stretch. Gaining steadily, the Hirsch colorbearer wore down Bulwark, which held on stubbornly before conceding victory. The improved Thorson beat Francesco by two lengths.

Third Degree, a Greentree Stable youngster that won his only previous start, put favorite players in the hole right off the reel. The colt was a strong favorite over a half dozen other juveniles in the three furlong contest but lost a photo decision to the steady going Selmalad. Unerring was third, a length and a half away. Selmalad broke fast and took a narrow lead over Third Degree, which swerved in slightly after the break. In a long, bitter drive, Selmalad lasted on the inside to return $8.10. The time was 0:34 2-5.

Although suffering bad racing luck, the favored Onrush managed to get up and take the second purse by a nose in a blanket finish. Maebob was second, with Miss Webb and the sluggish starting Count Rae right alongside in the order named. Johnny Longden made a futile try to yet through on the inside with Onrush in the early running, then came around the leaders in a powerful stretch spurt, making the grade right on the wire to pay $4.60. Maebob and Miss Webb were vital factors all the way.

Happy Code Wins.

Happy Code, under a hustling ride by the unfashionable apprentice lad L. Dupps, made a runaway affair out of the 1 mile third race. Closing at $21 for $2, the Happy Argo filly rushed into an unbeatable lead and coasted to the finish line with four lengths to spare. Vassar came from a position with the leaders to gain second money by a half length, while the highly fancied Magicienne barely edged Oddesa Frank out of the show position.

In one of the most spirited and exciting duels witnessed at the meeting, Sunphantom, a $13.60 for $2 shot, outlasted Sorceress, the second choice, to gain a neck victory in the six furlong fourth event. Johnny Longden was astride the winner for a double. Sachem, beaten a length and a half for the place, had a half length margin over Great Haste, the favorite, for third money.

Sunphantom put Great Haste away early, then was joined by Sorceress. The latter stuck her head in front after turning for home but Sunphantom, responding gamely to strong urging, regained command a few yards from the finish.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SELMALAD, $8.10, $2.90, $2.20; THIRD DEGREE, $3.00, $2.50; UNERRING, $3.00.

SELMALAD, away forwardly, obtained clear passage for the entire trip, drew clear with a rush passing the furlong, but then had to be vigorously ridden to withstand THIRD DEGREE'S challenge. THIRD DEGREE broke in tight quarters, was unable to secure racing space until well within the final furlong, then closed rapidly and was wearing the winner down at the finish. UNERRING broke well, went prominently on the inside and disposed of XANTHEIN in the stretch run.

SECOND RACE—Seven furlongs (out of chute). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:33. Off 2:34. Winner, P. B. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ONRUSH, $4.60, $3.40, $2.80; MAEBOB, $8.20, $5.00; MISS WEBB, $3.70.

ONRUSH, reserved off the early pace, began to better his position while circling the field in the final three furlongs and outlasted MAEBOB when the real test came. MAEBOB displayed the most speed and raced SUNCRAX into submission in the opening half mile, continued gamely when challenged, but was unable to stave off the winner. MISS WEBB, prominent and saving ground the entire trip, hung slightly in the stretch run.

Daily Double, Selmalad and Onrush, Paid $15.40.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAPPY CODE, $21.00, $9.40, $6.60; VASSAR, $6.50, $4.10; MAGICIENNE, $3.50.

HAPPY CODE opened up a commanding lead in the first half mile, and continued briskly thereafter while saving ground and won with daylight to spare. VASSAR was a forward factor from the start and closed resolutely. MAGICIENNE moved up fast leaving the far turn, but weakened in the final three-sixteenths and barely outstayed ODDESA FRANK.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:30. Off 3:32. Winner, Mrs. C. S. Bromley's ch. g. SUN PHANTOM, breaking alertly and running to his best form, opened up a clear lead rounding the turn while saving ground, responded determinedly to punishment and outgamed SORCERESS when the final test came. SORCERESS, a keen contender throughout, moved up menacingly on the outside entering the stretch, took a short lead briefly through the stretch, but hung in the final drive. SACHEM, slow to get going, bettered his position steadily on the outside and shook off GREAT HASTE in the last 70 yards.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000. Grade C Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:02. Off 4:04½. Winner, H. R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUN POWER, $51.00, $16.70, $9.20; PAGE BOY, $5.00, $3.80; OUR WILLIE, $4.50.

SUN POWER, displaying remarkable improvement, gradually improved his position while slipping through along the inner rail, opened up a winning lead entering the stretch and held on courageously under a hard drive to outlast PAGE BOY. The latter, going forwardly on the outside under slight restraint, made a bold effort when placed to punishment, but hung in the final furlong. OUR WILLIE, also stealing through on the inside in the early stages, was blocked on the stretch turn, but closed stoutly when clear and outstayed TEDDY WEED.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200. Grade B Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:32. Off 4:32½. Winner, W. J. Hirsch's b. m. (5), by Petee Wrack—Fire Top. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:49, 1:13 1-5, 1:38 3-5, 1:51 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COLUMBIANA, $9.20, $5.70, $5.10; BULWARK, $8.50, $5.90; THORSON, $9.30.

COLUMBIANA, going in her best form, followed the leaders well up until leaving the backstretch, slipped through on the inside rounding the lower turn, gradually improved her position and, coming to the outside when clear in the stretch, finished with determination and wore BULWARK down in the final drive. BULWARK, quickest to begin, displayed the most speed and shook off repeated challenges from THORSON, held on gamely, but could not stave off the winner. THORSON, showing marked improvement, went in close attendance of the pace all the way, but went lame through the stretch and faltered.

WESTY'S DUCHESS, a forward contender on the outside all the way, finished gamely and disposed of BLIND BROOK in the stretch run. BLIND BROOK, well up all the way, assumed command entering the stretch, but could not keep pace with the winner in the final drive. CONTE, slow to get going, was bothered twice in the early stages, but closed a big gap in the last quarter mile when clear.

EIGHTH RACE—Seven furlongs (out of chute). Purse, $1,000. Grade C. For 3-year-olds. Start good from Bahr gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 5:37. Off 5:39. Track Event Draws Four D. C. Schools

Western, Central, Riders and Tech Enter in Regiment Games.

The District and nearby Maryland and Virginia will be well represented in the scholastic division of the second annual University of Maryland Regiment games which will be held Saturday at Baltimore in the Fifth Regiment Armory.

Gathered together from nine schools in this sector, more than 100 thin clads will seek honors against a field which includes many of the leading schoolboy athletes of the East.

Tech High School, which is sending over a score of entries, tops the Washington contingent, consisting of boys from Western, Central, Roosevelt and Wilson. Virginia will have two strong threats in Episcopal and Washington-Lee while Maryland looks to Hyattsville and Richard Montgomery.

One of the feature races of the program is expected to develop when Jim Milks, Washington-Lee's crack distance man, hooks up with a previous conqueror, Stinson, of Newport News High School. In the recent Southern indoor meet at Raleigh, N. C., Milks was beaten by a stride in the 660 but is confident that another race will have another ending. Milks also is to run anchor on the relay team.

Among other outstanding local boys will be Bill Marbury, Peyton Hopkins and Tom Todd, Episcopal's great trio of sprint men who are entered in the 70-yard dash and also in the relay. They will face such speedsters as Jim Zuppa, Albert Hayden and Bob Joyce, of Central; Louis Mabeli, Harry Gray and Walter Bender, of Roosevelt, Chester Gardner, Washington-Lee, and Charles Gaines, Harry Stone, Robert Dorn and Yates Cameron, of Hyattsville.

Central has an excellent chance of capturing the high-jumping contest, for its candidate in that event is Dan Hoadely, who last year leaped 5 feet 10½ inches to win the interhigh crown.

Hit and Run Takes Fair Grounds Race

New Orleans, March 2 (AP).—Hit and Run, heavily campaigned 7-year-old gelding owned by R. C. Hanna, turned in one of his infrequent good races today to win the mile and 70-yard feature at the Fair Grounds.

The son of Petee-Wrack, far back in the early running, closed fast to take the decision from Mrs. E. B. Shipp's High Flag and seven other cheap platers. Cabotin was third.

As an outsider Hit and Run paid $23.60 for $2.

Mal Elward Appointed Purdue Grid Coach

By the Associated Press.

Lafayette, Ind., March 2.—Mal Elward, into whose hands Purdue University's football fortunes fell last year after illness laid low Head Coach Noble E. Kizer, today was appointed head coach of the Boilermakers.

The appointment was announced by President Edward C. Elliott, who said Kizer, now convalescing at Tuscon, Ariz., had asked to be relieved as coach. Kizer, who is expected to return here September 1, will continue as athletic director.

Elward, a teammate of the late Knute Rockne at Notre Dame, is rated in coaching circles as one of the game's keenest technicians.

Elward's 1937 Purdue eleven tied with Northwestern, Michigan and Wisconsin for fourth place in the Big Ten Conference with a percentage of .500, winning two games, losing two and tying one in the conference.

Elward said active spring football practice would start Monday afternoon.

Following graduation from Notre Dame in 1916, Elward started his coaching career at St. John's Prep at Danvers, Mass., and his team won the East Catholic prep title. In the World War he coached the Newport Naval Reserve and the Hampton Roads Training Station teams.

He became head football coach at Grinnell College (Iowa) after the war and brought Grinnell its first Missouri Valley title in five years. Then he moved to John Carroll at Cleveland, remaining there three years. He came to Purdue as an assistant in the fall of 1927.

Kizer has been on leave since August. Elliott said the decision to make the change was reached at a conference with Kizer and his medical advisers in Tucson last week. Elliott said Kizer's physicians "strongly advised him to give up the strenuous job of coaching."

Heavy Track Expected at Anita Race

Rain Continues to Fall at Coast Track; Owners Wary.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 2.—Unless the rain spouts are shut off soon, the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap Saturday may turn into an equine swimming carnival and a headache for horsemen who neglect to send their mounts into the race equipped with waterwings.

The skies poured it down in bucketsfull again today, and while Santa Anita's sandy cushioned track can shed water amazingly fast, it wasn't designed to perform miracles.

Every hour of rain throws the race open that much wider, giving some owners a chill and others a new hope.

Frank Carreaud, El Paso, Tex., horseman, viewed the prospects with a glow of enthusiasm for his ever-challenging Time Supply. He believes the horse, which ran third in the inaugural "Hundred Grand," second in the 1936 and fifth last year, can hold such fast track expresses as Seabiscuit and Pompoon on even terms or better in the mud.

Reports conflict on the mudding abilities of the 'Biscuit, Pompoon and Aneroid, three leading contenders for the big purse.

Seabiscuit has run but twice on such a strip since Charles S. Howard bought him. He was beaten both times—once by a notorious mud lark, Mucho Gusto, the last time by the more celebrated Calumet Dick and Snak in the Narragansett Special last summer.

Calumet Dick will not be in the coming race, having pulled up lame after last week's San Antonio Handicap. It was a blow to ownerm F. K. Bryson, particularly in view of the muddy prospects.

The Pompoon handlers claim their entry can go in any kind of track, yet there is no doubt a fast one would have been preferred.

Owners of Seabiscuit, Pompoon and the rest may find out more about the mudding capabilities of their steeds this week-end, but it will be rather an expensive time to learn of such matters.

Giuliani Is Signed.

St. Louis, March 2 (AP).—The Browns' office today announced the signing of Angelo John Giuliani, recruit catcher, Giuliani, 23 years old, joined the Browns last fall, coming from Dallas of the Texas league. He is one of six catchers on the Brownie roster this season.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 2.—In this city of sunshine and old people, there are now a lot of guys named Joe on the world champion Yankees baseball team, which is training at Huggins Field. But of the six Yankee Joes, there is one who will continue to command the most attention until mid-May, at least.

He is Joseph Lowell Gordon, 23-year-old "problem child," who has been called in from the Newark Club to fill the shoes of ancient Tony Lazzeri at second base. "Poosh-em-up" Tony retired from the Yanks after performing heroically in the 1937 world series and shifted to the Chicago Cubs.

Gordon is the bronzed, fair-skinned youngster from Portland, Oreg., who proved the most brilliant performer last season on Newark's "wonder team," which won the International League pennant by 25½ games and which came from behind magnificently to win the little world series.

Kid Is Confident.

Even now, as the first squad of white-uniformed Yanks work out on the sun-drenched greensward, you can distinguish the Portland kid because of his confident eagerness and speed in fielding practice and ambitious cuts at the pellet up at the plate. And in the sedate lobby of Suwannee Hotel or under sidewalk marquees of that severe yellow hostelry where the Yanks are quartered, Gordon always stands out—the center of a group of interested fellow players or baseball writers. Without effort or desire on his part, Gordon, day after day, is thrust into the spotlight as few rookies ever have been in the past.

But the brown-haired, 175-pounder takes the whole thing in stride—the admiration, the inquisitive chatter and the speculative glances of Manager Joe McCarthy and Yankee veterans. Because he's that type of fellow—a modern, stream-lined ball player who can delight a select audience of music lovers with a concert of classical violin music, discuss the central European situation with authority or come in fast on a hot one and make a quick put-out at first.

This unusual lad who may make or mar the Yanks' chances for three straight world championships, is a rather handsome fellow who stands close to 6 feet—and who is wrapped up in three great loves; his mother, his fiancee and baseball. Joe dreams of the day when he will be able to complete payments on the Portland home which he started buying for his mother last year and when his earnings will be such that his mother can settle in that home and discontinue her secretarial work.

Proud of Mother.

"My mother is one of the grandest women who ever lived, Gordon explains. "My father died when I was 4. She brought up me and my brother, Jack, without help from anyone. She made sure that both of us received good educations. She sacrificed herself for us, deprived herself so that we might get on. She is the kind of mother poets write about."

In addition to the mother incentive, Joe is determined to be a great major league second-sacker because he wishes to get married at the close of the '38 season. His sweetheart is Dorothy Crum, attractive Los Angeles blonde.

"She's even prettier than her picture," says Joe, pointing to Dorothy's portrait on his dresser, and everyone in the room says, "M-m-m-m, she's certainly a swell looker, Joe." Joe smiles pridefully and says, "Yes, we'd like to get married right after the Yanks win the next world series."

Joe met Dorothy in Portland three years ago, when she was visiting there during one of his vacations from the University of Oregon. He attended the university for three years, hoping to become a bachelor of science in physical education. Now, during this off-seasons from baseball, he continues his studies at the university. "Maybe some day I might want to make a living at it," he explains.

country and that Vice President Chester K. Arthur would make a better President. Guiteau was a crack-brained crank.

Waited for Garfield.

"He loitered around the old station at Sixth and B streets for a half hour until President Garfield arrived at 9:30. The President was taking a train to visit his sick wife at Long Branch, N. J. He came in a carriage with James G. Blaine, the Secretary of State. They didn't have any White House Secret Service men those days.

"Guiteau hid behind the benches until Garfield started for the trains and then trailed him a bit. The President was only six feet away when Guiteau fired the first shot. I didn't see that one, but I heard it. My newsstand was only 20 feet away. I saw Guiteau fire the second shot while the President was toppling to the floor, shot in the back. That second shot must have missed. The President had only one wound.

"Guiteau didn't make much attempt to escape. Pat Carney, a city cop, grabbed him and disarmed him. I called the ambulance. The President lingered for months, you know, before he died. Do you want to see something?"

Yes. What?

Jim Wasdell May Lose Job

Wright, whose 22 victories for the Sanford club last season stamped him as the best pitcher in the Florida State League, and Bill Brainard, who won 19 games with the same club, are the newcomers.

Wright is touted as the possessor of a deceptive sinker ball. Brainard, a lengthy six-foot-five-inch youth will be the tallest player on the squad. Both rookies are 21 years old and on their success is batting practice will depend their future with the Nats.

The batting stroke of young Mickey Livingston, who is slated to be the Nats' No. 2 catcher, came in for additional tatention today. Harris is staisfied that Livingston can hit fast-ball pitching, but his weakness against slow stuff is already so apparent that the Nats' manager is mildly alarmed.

The golf championship of the Washington Club passed today from Al Simmons to Rick Ferrell. Simmons, who held sway in the Washington camp until the catching end of the Ferrell brothers battery put in an appearance, today was beaten by Rick, who scored a clever 82 at the Orlando Country Club layout.

Al Simmons featured today's batting practice with three drives over the far-flung left-field fence, but there was only one disconcerting note in his hitting display. The pitcher was Bucky Harris, whose aging arm threatens to come floating up to the plate in company with the ball.

Orlando, Fla., March 2.—Despite the general acclaim with which they are hailing the development of Rookie Mickey Livingston, the Washington baseball bosses are in a dither in an attempt to obtain a veteran catcher to assist Rick Ferrell.

Clark Griffith admitted today that Catchers Joe Glenn and Arndt Jorgens, of the Yankees; George Tebbetts and Ray Hayworth, of the Tigers, and Bill Giuliani, of the Browns, had been claimed from the waiver lists by the Nats, but to no avail. The other clubs demanded players in trade and Griffith possesses no trading material.

If the Nats are successful in landing an experienced catcher indications are that the Detroit club will be the source. The Tigers, with Rudy York, Hayworth, Tebbetts and Cliff Bolton, must reduce their catching staff and Griffith is hopeful that he may be able to make a deal for the veteran Hayworth or the rookie Tebbetts. He doesn't want Bolton.

St. John's and Fredericksburg Open High School Cage Event

Johnnies Rated Co-favorites With Eastern in Tourney; Close Individual Player Race Seen.

By Jack Munhall.

St. John's crack five, in stride once again, takes to Tech's floor tonight in an effort to add the Evening Star Tournament title to its rapidly mounting honor list.

The Johnnies who, with Eastern have been established as co-favorites in a field of eight Washington and Maryland and Virginia teams, have drawn an unknown quantity in Fredericksburg High School.

Following this encounter, which is scheduled for 8 o'clock, Bethesda-Chevy Chase, which jumbled the scholastic ratings by upsetting St. John's recently, makes its debut against Mount Rainier.

If, as all dope indicates, St. John's and Bethesda-Chevy Chase emerge unscathed from their opening tests, they will clash in the second round. That game would give the Johnnies a chance to prove that their loss to Bethesda was all a mistake.

With no less than four teams conceded an excellent chance of snatching the title which Western defends, tourney play should be fast.

The city championship claims being voiced by St. John's, Eastern and even Bethesda-Chevy Chase will be tested on such tough victims as Georgetown Prep, Western and Washington-Lee, any of which is capable of a form reversal.

Outside of the team competition, the race for individual glory is attracting attention. A committee, composed of Fred Mesmer, Georgetown coach; Fod Cotton, C. U. mentor and Max Farrington, George Washington athletic director, will select the outstanding player of the tournament.

Clint Quantrille, interhigh scoring leader, and Russ Lombardy and Lee Lusby are Eastern's trio. All three undoubtedly will be unanimous all-high selections. But the Johnnies despite the fact that team work is their forte, will counter with a group that is equally as skillful.

In Jim Giebel, their tall center, and Joe Gallagher and Francis Battiste, the Cadets have three of the outstanding performers in this vicinity. Giebel, a lanky senior and the team's leading scorer, looms as the individual player to beat, for he already is considered one of the finest performers ever to wear St. John's scarlet and grey.

The girls' division of the tournament will begin Saturday at the University of Maryland gym, where Sherwood meets George Washington at 7:30 p. m.

D. C. Committee Cancels Hearing on Race Bill

The bill to legalize horse racing in Washington received another setback yesterday when an absence of committee members forced cancellation of the session in the House District Committee chamber.

The sponsor of the bill, Representative Leon Sachs, and 19 other committee members failed to put in an appearance so Chairman Vincent L. Palmisano, of Maryland, and Representative Reuben T. Wood, of Missouri, decided to put off any consideration of the bill.

James to Defend His Rassle Title

Greek boy, a former acrobat in a circus, overcame Martinelli for the second time, but his title was not at stake.

Those who have seen Murphy exhibit his repertoire of holds know that he has that certain "it," or what veteran observers would call "ring personality." A graduate of the Middlesex School of Surgery and Medicine in Boston, Murphy, like James, moves around the ring like greased lightning. Both are as slippery as a skating rink.

Murphy came into local prominence by giving Jimmy Londos a thrilling battle, coming dangerously close to spilling the Gorgeous Greek.

The semiwindup finds Chief Thunderbird, the colorful Vancouver Indian, with full redskin regalia, opposing Boris Demitroff, the Russian Lion. It will be 45 minutes. Bad Chief Chewaki returns for a bout with Bob Miller; Ram Singh, the Hindu, meets Louis Bacigalupi and Pancho Valdez, Mexican champion, opposes Jose Rodriguez. First bout 8:30.

Sicilia Signed for Semifinal

Armanda Sicilia, featured in three main events at Turner's Arena, comes back to the Washington fight center Monday night in a semifinal role, Goldie Ahearn, matchmaker for Turner, announced last night.

The Chicago Italian will meet Abe Donner, former national amateur featherweight titleholder, from Boston, in the semiwindup.

The program thus becomes one of the strongest carded here in recent weeks. It will be bolstered by the appearance of Jack Dempsey, the Manassa Mauler, who will be the third man in the ring.

Johnny Mirabella was signed yesterday to oppose Joe Archibald, Providence puncher, who has been a decided hit here, in the feature event. Mirabella is a New York Italian who comes recommended as a gentleman possessing a better-than-average punch.

The main event will be ten rounds; the semifinal will go eight.

Sicilia, who bounces around the ring as if equipped with steel springs, lost disputed decisions to Harry Jeffra, former world bantamweight champion, and Tony Dupre, the New England titleholder here. Last month he dropped a fight to Lou Gevinson. The Italian also has beaten Baby Manuel here.

Donner comes to town with the best of recommendations. He had an enviable record in Golden Glove and amateur competition, and is carrying his talents into the professional field.

After considering Al Read, Mirabella, Sicilia, Al Mancine and Bernine Friedkin as opponents for Archibald, Ahearn selected Mirabella on the strength of his brilliant stand against Foran, and his previous matches with Mike Belloise and Kid Chocolate.

Monday will mark Archibald's first fight here in several months. He has won nine straight.

Dempsey's advance press agent, Ned Brown, is expected in town tomorrow to start the publicity drums a beating.

Hitting the Headpin

Blaydes Contractors scorched the alleys at Recreation's duckpin plant last night with two all-time Recreation League records, a team total of 1,940 and Bill Dieterich's 182 game.

Blaydes rolled games of 614, 664 and 662 for the record mark, sweeping three games from Marvin's Credit Co. Dieterich's game topped the previous high game of Astor Clarke by 6 pins. Gieb's 429, and Perkin's 408 also contributed in the record set.

Blanken's Restaurant upset the pace-setting University Shop 2 to 1, despite Pinky Bradt's 395 set. John Chaney's 394 aided Bregman's Wildcats to take the odd tilt from Cooke Press. Terry's Appliance, paced by Cliff Hollis' 407, took a 2-1 decision from Marlboro Hotel.

Allied Roofing, led by Perc Wolf's 414, swept the set from Herzog's, with Astor Clarke's 407 high for the losers.

A three-way deadlock for the runner-up position occurred when City Bank No. 1 whitewashed Bank No. 2, Washington Loan & Trust Co. No. 1 won the odd one from National Metropolitan, and National Bank of Washington shoved Hibbs into fifth place by winning two out of three. The teams tied for second have all won 43 and lost 26.

Individual honors went to E. Brent, of Union Trust Co., with a 156 game, and W. Shantz of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath, with a 390 set.

Union Trust rolled high team game of 389, with City Bank No. 1 accounting for team set with 1,656.

Chronister Sees a Real Chance To Upset 'Dope' at Baltimore

Victory Over Glen Cunningham Will Mean Spot on 1940 Olympic Track Team, He Believes.

By Bob Garrison.

Glenn Cunningham will not win the Governor's Mile, feature of the Maryland U. Fifth Regiment Armory Games, Saturday. Neither will Gene Venzke or Archie san Romani.

Anyone of the three "greatest" milers may place second, but Mason Chronister, providing his plans are not too pretentious, will blaze his name acros the Nation's headlines as the conqueror of the world's greatest runners.

All this has been dreamed by the lanky University of Maryland miler who has been invited to run in the classic against six of the country's best at the Fifth Regiment Armory in Baltimore.

The setting is just right, Mason figures, and, if things work as he plans, he's going to upset the dope and sprint home ahead of the seemingly invincible Mr. Cunningham. Not as easy as that perhaps, but let Mason tell it:

"You see, I've only been running the mile for three years, and when I first heard that I was going to get a chance to beat Cunningham, I was scared to death. But now that I'm considering it differently, I'm really looking forward to it.

"The 1940 Olympics is my ambition. I'm planning on making the team that will make the trip to Tokyo. I figure, however, that I've got to beat Cunningham to make that team and I might just as well do it now as ever.

"I had thought it best to wait until later and tackle him in the outdoor meets, but Coach Eppley and Coleman Headley, my teammate and adviser, have pointed out that this is the opportune time. So, I'm going to make the most of it!"

Chronister, with his teammate, Jim Kehoe, another distance runner, is considered one of the best prospects in the history of the Old Line school.

He's a Baltimore boy, and nothing would please him more than to make a reputation right in his home town. Last night he traveled to Baltimore with the rest of the squad and worked out on the board track of the armory.

"I have never had to put myself to a punishing pace in the stretch and for that reason I believe if I can stay with the field I'll pound those boards stride for stride with the leader. I'm going to run as I've never run before. I've got to.

His friend, Headley, a senior member of the Maryland basketball team, who also is a distance runner, is now with the team at Raleigh, where it begins play in the Southern Conference tournament this afternoon. And Mason will miss him Saturday night.

There's a possibility that Headley may get there, however, to steady his pal's nerves and direct his race. If the Terps are eliminated today or tomorrow, Headley will board a train and hurry back to be on hand for Mason's big chance. He thinks that much of his protege.

A last-minute change may see Jim Kehoe run the collegiate mile instead of the 2-mile run which will feature Joe McClusky, New York Athletic Club's great distance star.

Catholic University's nonresident team that will compete was announced yesterday by Coach Dorsey Griffith, who is presently busy with arrangements for the C. U. indoor games March 12.

Leo Walls will run the 70-yard high hurdles; Roger Cooper, 70-yard dash; William Weedon and Ken Simmons, 1,000-yard handicap. His mile relay team, entered in the Mason-Dixon Conference group, consists of Leo Wall, quarter; Bill Weedon and Ken Simmons, 220 yards, and John Corbit, 880 yards.

Wheat Declines As European Buying Fades

Kansas Dust Storms Reports Fail to Aid Early Advances.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 2.—Notwithstanding transient upturns due to some Kansas dust storms reports, Chicago wheat values ranged lower most of the time today, and ended at fractional losses.

Importing countries nearly altogether avoided purchasing wheat from the United States. The sole conspicuous exception was Mexico, which bought 370,000 bushels, to be shipped by rail from Kansas City. Vladivostok, in Siberia, together with Great Britain, continued to buy wheat on a liberal scale, but dealt almost exclusively with Australia.

World Cotton Put At 36,550,000 Bales

New York, March 2.—"On the basis of the latest advices received from foreign cotton growing countries, we find it advisable to reduce our estimate of world production of cotton this season," says the Trade Report Service of the New York Cotton Exchange today. "We now estimate the current world cotton crop at 36,550,000 bales, this comparing with our latest previous estimate of 37,010,000 bales.

"Since our figures for production by the United States remains unchanged at 18,300,000 bales, in terms of running bales including city crop, the reduction in our estimate for the world crop necessarily results from a decrease in our estimate for foreign production. We now estimate total foreign production this season at 18,250,000 bales, compared with our previous figure of 18,710,000. Our figures for production by China, India, and 'other counties" have been lowered, those for Brazil and Russia have been raised, and the figure for Egypt has been left unchanged."

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively

A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Weaken in Stagnant Trade; U. S. Government Bonds Droop; Wheat Lower.

New York, March 2.—Today was the turn of the sellers and most financial markets were trimmed a bit around the edges. Turnover in stocks, a little more than 400,000 shares, the smallest in nearly three weeks. Prices closed irregularly lower. United States bonds were easier and commodities weakened. May wheat closed a half cent down at 93¼ cents a bushel.

This was one of those days in which the rules seem to forbid purchases or sales more than a fraction away from the previous day's closing prices. Leading issues held within a point range for the most part. Chrysler swayed between 54⅝ and 53⅝ and Steel wavered between 55⅞ and 55. Both lost a little on the day.

Most stocks eased a little from the start, and were unable either to rally or to retreat in concert. Comparatively large losses were suffered by Anaconda, Smelters, U. S. Rubber and some of the chemicals. Chesapeake & Ohio in gaining more than a point was an exception to a weak railroad list. U. S. Tobacco, which is to be split four for one, opened 14¼ points higher on its first appearance this week.

Chesapeake Corporation sold at a new high price on a rise of more than 2 points. Ruberoid reflected the suspension of its dividend. It dropped 2 points. Minneapolis-Honeywell gave up the greater part of an early gain of 3 points.

Trade Recedes.

Midweek industrial news was rather flat and could be taken as nourishment or poison, depending upon the stomach. The steel industry, according to the Iron Age, had a rise in new orders last month and is looking hopefully for a further increase in the spring. Commentators suggest that at the moment the consumption of steel and of some other goods exceeds the current rate of output, but stocks nevertheless are considerable and it would require only a slight increase in production to catch up with consumption.

Railroad freight traffic continues to drag, reflecting the slow rate of distribution of goods, for presumably the roads are not losing freight to highway competitors, but merely are finding less on the move. Car loadings last week fell 4.2 per cent from the previous week and were 26.4 per cent under the corresponding week of a year ago. Production of electricity last week also declined, the drop under last year being 8 per cent.

Comparisons Are Odious.

Robert H. Jackson, recently blasting monopolies in the New Deal campaign to help business and now cruising for political office, prepared a table of corporation profit comparisons to support his thesis that the New Deal means business prosperity. Tables would appear to be rather wabbly in the face of the undisputed fact that the country now is in the depths of a severe business depression. Just the same, the comparison given by Mr. Jackson is a bit too unfair to pass unnoticed. He compares the profit of a number of selected companies for 1932 with 1936. The nadir of the depression in the Hoover Administration was reached in 1932. The height of the inflation-produced recovery in the Roosevelt Administration was in 1936. No one would venture to say how much deeper the depression will be, but certainly the profits of corporations in 1938 will make a sorry showing with 1936 and possibly even with 1932.

Figures are at hand in sufficient number to make one interesting comparison right now. In the last quarter of 1936, before anyone had so much as heard of the radical Mr. Jackson, corporations turned in a pretty fair profits report. Last autumn Mr. Jackson tried to make the flesh creep for stockholders in every corporation. The results of such efforts for that period are not exactly meaningless. The National City Bank has just published a compilation of profits of leading industrial corporations for the fourth quarter of 1937—before the full effects of the depression had been felt. Profits for 255 companies dropped 34.2 per cent, as compared with the corresponding period of the previous year.

Grain Futures Trade Lowest in Two Years

Chicago, March 2 (AP).—Volume of trading in grain futures on the Board of Trade has declined to the lowest level in two years, according to Commodity Exchange Commission statistics today.

Trading in February totaled 424,102,000 bushels, compared with 693,096,000 in January and 906,936,000 in February last year. Average daily trade was 19,277,000 bushels, compared with 41,225,000 in February, 1937.

Trade authorities pointed out that lethargy in the grain trade is not unusual at this time of the season. Usually traders are interested in the condition of winter wheat and withhold commitments until more definite information is available.

Growing Worse.

A hint of how much worse business has become in the post-Jackson era may be had from the railroad earnings statement for January. All class 7 roads barely covered operating expenses. Their net dropped over 56 per cent from the same month of last year. Steel corporations, motor companies, building construction companies, chemicals, motor accessories, railroads, railroad equipment and a host of other industrial enterprises are operating "in the red" this quarter. That is not set out to alarm anyone, and it all may be horribly unfair to the New Deal, but it scarcely can be more misleading than the daily dose of economic tommyrot administered by the doctors at Washington to the frightened business patient.

Insurance.

The story is told of a large brokerage house that for some time has been lopping off employes in an effort to trim expenses to the current rate of business. An old employe thought he would try to time-worn plan on his employers. He went to one of the partners and asked for a loan of $100, which he promised to pay at the rate of $2.50 a week. Asked why he needed the money, the employe frankly said that he wished to insure his job over the next 40 weeks. If you could raise $100, the employe was told, we would make you a partner.

Find the Moral.

Some rail investors find the shadow of section 77B hanging over the Colorado & Southern through its guaranty with Rock Island of the $1,072,000 Galveston Terminal Railroad bond issue which matured yesterday. An extension plan covering the issue is now before both the I. C. C. and the RFC, with internal warfare existing between these two departmental branches, it is becoming more difficult for a railroad to obtain an agreement on petitions requiring consent of both commissions. Rock Island's funds are tied up by the courts in bankruptcy so redemption of the bonds, if demanded, would fall entirely on Colorado & Southern. Interest to March 1 is being paid on the bonds, but there is no period of grace as regards principal in the indenture.

Steel Output Is Unchanged At 30 Per Cent

Orders Not Substantial Enough to Indicate an Upward Trend.

New York, March 2.—Steel manufacturers this week found many signs of improvement in business, although maintenance of the national ingot production rate at 30 per cent, unchanged from last week, suggests that increased buying of some steel products is not yet substantial enough to indicate a definite uptrend is near, says Iron Age in its weekly survey of the industry. Four of the nine principal steel-producing districts this week scheduled higher rates of production, as a result of the improved buying, while two districts reported a decline and three were unchanged.

"More significant than the steel operating rate's inability to rebound in the first week of March are the fair prospects for revision of the controversial undistributed profits tax, a breaking of the used-car jam, a favorable freight rate decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission (an 11 per cent increase is forecast) and rather strong indications that the Administration at Washington is prepared to call a truce at least until after the November elections in efforts to pass new legislation opposed by industry.

Automobile Workers Recalled.

"Still more tangible evidence supporting hope for a spring recovery in steel demand is the recall of 20,000 idle automobile workers at Detroit and plans by some automobile makers, such as Plymouth, to lift operating schedules from three days at present to four days a week. Vigorous efforts by the automobile industry, a leading outlet for steel, to break the business recession, accompany reports that buying of new and used cars is now showing improvement.

"The railroad industry, which for some months has kept its purchases of rails and other equipment as low as possible, is already entering the market in a small way and is awaiting a formal I. C. C. announcement of a freight advance to buy steel in quantities certain to be reflected substantially in steel plant operating rates. By mid-March orders for as much as 30,000 tons of rails are expected to be placed. Canadian National Railways has just bought 1,300 box cars from two Canadian companies.

"Total exports of iron and steel products (excluding scrap) from the United States during January are reported at 299,565 gross tons, against 306,647 tons in December and 128,843 tons in January of last year. Declines in tin plate, ingot and rail shipments accounted for the January drop.

"With pig iron prices reaffirmed for the second quarter, and steel consumers for the most part supporting the industry's move in keeping steel prices unchanged for that period, scrap prices have weakened, the Iron Age composite declining 9 cents a ton to $13.58."

Argentina Increases Imports From the U. S.

Buenos Aires, March 2.—Trade figures for January show that imports were valued at 145,801,423 pesos, compared with 106,128,347 pesos in the corresponding month last year.

Imports from the United States rose from 17,976,000 pesos to 25,793,602 pesos, while those from the United Kingdom increased from 21,537,839 pesos to 24,173,349 pesos. Ports and customs revenue amounted to 35,738,623 pesos, an increase of 24.6 per cent.

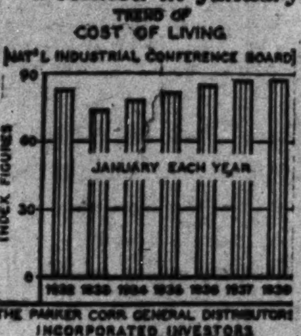
Rising Living Cost Declined in January



Boston, Mass., March 2.—The cost of living has been halted. The January index was down 2¼ per cent from the recent high in October, 1937. Compared with a year ago food prices in January were down 5 per cent, house rents were up 7 per cent, but have been declining since last October. Clothing was 3 per cent, higher than a year ago, while fuel and light prices were down slightly.

Curb Is Steady In Light Trade

New York, March 2 (AP).—The curb market closed steady today, with some leading issues showing tidy gains, many unchanged or slightly lower, and a few specialties with losses of a point or so.

Newmont Mining closed 1½ points higher at 64½, and Great Atlantic and Pacific non-voting was up 1¼ at 47¼.

Creole Petroleum was up ⅛ at 25¾. Kennedy's at 7¼ and Quaker Oats at 100 had each gained a point.

Losses of around a half point were registered by Aluminum Co. of America at 81¾, American Cyanimid "B," 25⅝, and Gulf Oil 40. Fractional drops were taken by Berkey & Gay Furniture at ⅝, Lake Shore Mines 55, Pan American Airways 16 and St. Regis Paper 3⅛.

Safety Car dropped 2 points to 83, and Edison Brothers Stores 1⅛ to 12. Turnover amounted to 89,000 shares, the same as yesterday.

Ruberoid Co. Votes Sliding Pay Cuts

New York, March 2 (AP).—Directors of the Ruberoid Co. today announced a reduction in pay of all salaried employes and officers on a sliding scale basis ranging down from 30 per cent, and omitted dividend action on the capital stock.

Curtailed business was assigned as the reason for both actions. The pay cut will become effective March 15 and range from a maximum of 30 per cent for the highest salaried brackets to a minimum of 3 per cent for salaries of $1,500 or less. No change is contemplated at present in wage rates of factory workers, the company's announcement stated, because hours have already been reduced.

Printing Ink Corp. Declares Dividend

New York, March 2 (AP).—Directors of General Printing Ink Corporation today authorized a dividend of 10 cents a share on common stock, payable April 1 to holders of record March 18. Previous payment was 30 cents made December 27.

Plants are in New York, Chicago, and in New Jersey, Massachusetts, California and Ontario.

Steel Employment Lower in January

New York, March 2 (AP).—The steel industry employed an average of 475,000 workers during January, a drop of 6.5 per cent from the December average of 508,000, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported today.

Employment in the industry reached a record high of 603,000 last August. Since then, the Institute pointed out, steel output has dropped 65 per cent. It was estimated employment declined 21 per cent and pay rolls around 49 per cent from the August figure of $92,663,000. Employment in January, 1937, averaged 548,000.

January pay rolls totaled $47,578,000, down 8.6 per cent from the December total of $52,062,000. In January, 1937, they amounted to $76,423,000. The Institute reported hourly earnings of the industry's wage earning employes as 80.5 cents per hour in January against 81.7 cents in December and 72 cents in January, 1937.

WPA Ordered To Increase Job Quota by 2,000

Additional Eligibles to Be Put to Work as Projects Are Approved.

The District WPA yesterday was notified to increase its job quota by 2,000, bringing its total to 9,000, in addition to the 2,800 persons now at work on Federal WPA jobs here.

At the same time abandonment of the old rule that persons in WPA jobs must have been certified by the Board of Public Welfare was announced. At present there are 7,000 District WPA on the job, but the number will be increased immediately.

Additional jobless, who are found eligible, will be put to work as soon as projects are developed and approved.

His agency has been authorized to make investigations and certify for WPA jobs persons who are eligible for work relief, Otto Cass, deputy director of the District WPA, revealed yesterday. In the past year the rule has been that certification of these must be made by the public assistance division, and until a year ago it was ruled further that no one could be certified for a WPA job, regradless of his need, unless he formerly had been on the District relief rolls.

Cass put seven case workers on the job yesterday as soon as he received the announcement, and said they had registered 4,024 jobless. He added that action had been taken on 2,344 cases.

He announced that 461, or about 20 per cent, of the applicants had been rejected, and that all but 500 of the 1,883 persons given jobs already had been put to work.

The institute co-operates with churches and clubs in the conduct of an educational program in mental hygiene, as well as operating a child guidance clinic and a life-adjustment center for adults.

Speedy Trials Foil Criminals, Pine Declares

U.S. District Attorney Asks Co-operation in Fight on Numbers Game.

Speedy trials are the most effective deterrent to crime, David A. Pine, newly appointed district attorney, told Advertising Club members yesterday at a luncheon in his honor.

Criminals who have been apprehended by police if given sufficient time will attempt intimidation of witnesses, establishment of "phony" alibis and in some cases, "actually try to buy off a witness," Pine declared.

"We have found through experience that the criminal, if brought to trial within three weeks will not have a chance to escape punishment," Pine said.

The district attorney stated that he had noticed a definite decline in the number of crimes recently in the District, due to "speedy trials and severe punishment."

The newly appointed prosecutor urged Ad Club members to co-operate with the district attorney's office at all times.

"When you see us do something wrong," he said, "don't tell your friends about it. Don't 'beef' about it. Come down to my office and tell us about it. If we can correct the mistake all well and good, and if we can't we may be able to remedy the situation in the future."

In connection with the numbers racket, the district attorney described the violation as "a serious one."

"Now, I'm not a fanatic on the subject of gambling," he stated. "I don't see anything morally wrong with a game of penny ante poker or bridge, but this numbers game is more serious than people think."

"This inevitably leads to high-jacking and robbery and gang wars between rival factions of the numbers racket and also between gangs and the numbers racket element," he declared.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, also an honorary guest at the luncheon, praised the newly appointed District Attorney.

Wilmont Squires, president of the club, congratulated Pine on behalf of the entire organization, "as the local boy who made good."

G. H. A. Calls For Showdown With Hospitals

Heads of 9 Institutions Are Invited to Discuss 'Discrimination.'

Facing a serious emergency in which human life is at stake, the Group Health Association yesterday requested heads of District hospitals to confer tonight on the question of admitting G. H. A. physicians and surgeons to practice in them.

Superintendents, officers and trustees of nine private hospitals have been invited to attend the meeting, which will begin at 8 p. m. in Room A of the Interstate Commerce Commission building, it was learned. Hospitals involved are Children's, Columbia, Emergency, Episcopal, Garfield, Georgetown, George Washington, Providence and Sibley.

Spokesmen for the health group, which is sponsored by the Home Owners Loan Corporation, and the hospitals both were reluctant to discuss the situation in advance of the conference.

Discrimination Charged.

R. T. Berry, G. H. A. secretary, in his letter of invitation, said ". . . it is the opinion of this group that it is being discriminated against unjustly" by the hospitals in their refusal to extend courtesy privileges to the association's staff doctors.

It was learned that some of the group's physicians are allowed to treat G. H. A. patients in some of the hospitals but in none of them may they perform surgical operations. This is the handicap which is believed to have led directly to the calling of tonight's "showdown" meeting.

In operation since November 1, 1937, at 1328 I street northwest, the group health clinic now furnishes complete medical care to 5,000 men, women and children, comprising 2,500 Federal employes in 19 agencies and their dependents. The flat fee of $2.20 a month for single workers and $3.30 for those with families includes a maximum of 21 days hospitalization for each illness, as well as medical and laboratory services.

Crisis Perils Survival.

With the hospitals refusing to extend their facilities to the salaried doctors, however, the association faces a crisis upon which its survival may hinge.

Under present conditions, if a G. H. A. client has a sudden attack of appendicitis and an emergency operation is deemed necessary, it may not be performed at any of the hospitals unless the knife is handled by a non-G. H. A. surgeon.

Whether such emergency actually has occurred, officials on neither side would say. It is obvious, however, that with 2,000 to 5,000 persons of all ages in G. H. A. care for the last four months cases requiring immediate hospitalization have arisen.

To date the clinic has managed to care for most, if not all, of its clients in need of hospitalization by permitting patients to be taken care of by a private doctor holding a hospital "courtesy card." All expenses are borne by G. H. A. It is certain, however, that the association cannot afford to follow such a policy indefinitely.

That the hospitals have acted on their own initiative in barring the group's doctors was indicated last night by District Medical Society spokesmen. The society has disputed the Group Health Association's legality and propriety ever since it was estabilshed.

"The medical society does not exert any pressure on the hospitals on which physicians shall receive courtesy cards and which shall not," said Dr. Thomas E. Neill, president. "One can't blame the hospitals for being careful to whom they give courtesy cards."

A similar view was expressed by Dr. F. X. McGovern, the society's spokesman on public relations matters.

Only Hospitals Blamed.

"The present matter is one between the G. H. A. and the hospitals," he declared. "Most of the doctors holding courtesy cards are members of the medical society, but not all of them. Although the society is opposed to the association, it has not carried the fight before hospital heads, as far as I know."

"A crisis has developed due to the fact that the members of the group are being denied treatment, by licensed physicians and surgeons of their own choice in the hospitals of the District of Columbia," G. H. A. Secretary Berry informed administrators of the nine hospitals.

"Since the organization of Group Health Association in November, 1937, sincere effort has been made to secure the co-operation of hospitals in Washington.

"To date no action has been taken by this association which might react unfavorably against the hospitals. Unfortunately, however, these efforts have not met with success and it is the opinion of this group that it is being discriminated against unjustly."

Nitric Acid Fires Oil at Navy Yard

Firemen were called to the navy yard yesterday to extinguish a blaze which broke out in the planing ship after a carboy of nitric acid exploded, setting fire to a tank of cleaning oil.

Workmen were forced to vacate the building when dense clouds of smoke arose from the smoldering oil pot, but only slight damage was done.

Fire fighters in every part of the city were kept busy answering alarms for brush fires, 12 alarms being turned in between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. yesterday.

D. C. Jail Officials Deny Quarantine

District Health Department officials last night denied existence of a quarantine at the District Jail after the death of a woman prisoner from what authorities believed to be epidemic meningitis.

Postmortem examination of the body of the victim—Ethel Ward, 42—failed to disclose evidence of meningitis, according to Dr. James G. Cumming, director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases. The woman was sentenced on a soliciting charge. She was taken to Gallinger Hospital two days later and died Saturday.

Father Hyvernat, on First Staff Of C. U., Is Honored by France

Jules Henry, counselor of the French Embassy, pins the Order of Officer of the Legion of Honor on the Rev. Henry Hyvernat, who left his native France 50 years ago to teach at Catholic University, and today is the sole survivor of the original faculty.

79-Year-Old Egyptologist Is Given Medal of Legion by Jules Henry, Though Expatriate Many Years.

France yesterday remembered her distinguished former patriate son, the Rev. Henry Hyvernat, sole surviving member of the original faculty of Catholic University, and conferred upon him the Medal of an Officer of the Legion of Honor.

From his chair the 79-year-old educator smiled proudly as the coveted decoration was pinned on his cassock by Jules Henry, Counselor of the French Embassy.

"I am glad that France has not forgotten me even though I am far, far away, and probably never shall return," said the bearded scholar after ceremonies were over.

"For me the honor is not so important. It is most important because it brings more honor to my beloved university, where I have worked for 50 years."

Only two weeks ago Father Hyvernat was notified he was to receive the honor. The presentation took place in his study at 3405 Twelfth street northeast, where he spends all his time, except when he is wheeled to the university nearby to conduct his classes. At the presentation were close friends and colleagues of Father Hyvernat. Representing the university was the Right Rev. Patrick J. McCormick, vice rector.

Father Hyvernat, who was born at Loice, France, June 30, 1858, allowed himself to remember many things from a long, eventful life yesterday, as his guests left and he fingered the medal.

He recalled his boyhood in France, and his student days at the Petit Seminaire de St. Jean, in Lyon. He was a student there, a boy of 12, when the Franco-Prussian War scourged his native land.

"The Prussians came no nearer than 100 miles, but we all felt the pinch," nodded Father Hyvernat.

He is a graduate of the University of Lyons, the Pontifical University in Rome and the University of Munich. He was professor of Assyriology and Egyptology for the Roman Seminary until 1888, when he was "lent" by the Church in France to the budding Catholic University of America.

Since that time he has been on the faculty, as Andrews professor of Biblical Archaeology, and since 1895 head of the Department of Semitic and Egyptian languages and literature. He is the author of many textbooks and volumes on Egyptology, the Hebrew language and history of the Orient.

'Nice Work if You Can Get It,' and Miss Lam Got It

Miss Hazel Lam, until yesterday a maid at the Shoreham Hotel, is glad that she was courteous to Joan Bennett when the actress stopped at the hotel during a recent engagement at the National, because last night Miss Lam entrained for Hollywood to become Miss Bennett's personal maid.

A tall, stately brunette, Miss Lam had worked at the hotel nearly five years since she came here from her home in Elkton, Va. She was so efficient at her job that recently she was made assistant housekeeper and assigned to Miss Bennett's suite when the star arrived.

When she returned to Hollywood, Miss Bennett wrote the Shoreham to say that she had never had such fine service in any hotel. At Christmas she sent Miss Lam a greeting card. Last week she wired an invitation to her Beverly Hills mansion.

As personal maid, Miss Lam will attend Miss Bennett while she is on the set as well as in her home. All her expenses to California have been paid in advance, and she will receive $100 a month plus expense money when she starts work.

D. C. Man Dies, 2 Others Hurt In Md. Crash

Robert Jackson's Daughter Faces Charges After Hitting Pedestrian.

An auto collision near Clinton, Md., last night claimed the life of a Washington man while two other men, injured in the same crash, lay seriously injured in Casualty Hospital.

The dead man was Charles Burke, 30, of 917 Quincy street northeast.

Meanwhile the daughter of a high Government official faced a charge in connection with an accident in Washington and earlier, a coroner's jury exonerated a Maryland man in the death of a Washingtonian.

A technical charge of reckless driving was placed against Mary Jackson, 17-year-old daughter of Robert H. Jackson, United States Solicitor General, after the car she was driving struck and injured a man at Twenty-ninth street and Cathedral avenue northwest, last night.

The victim, James Cook, 31, of 2928 Thirty-third place northwest, a Government clerk, was removed to Emergency Hospital, where attendants said he may have a fractured skull.

The girl was released in custody of her father. The charge was filed at the Eighth Precinct by Private S. J. Prophet, pending outcome of Cook's injuries.

Jackson said his daughter had been blinded by headlights of an approaching car as Cook stepped from the curb, stepped back and then started again to cross the street. He said she failed to see him the second time.

Miss Jackson was driving with Julia Rich, daughter of Representative Robert Rich, to attend a club meeting at Cathedral School, where she is a student.

Nicholas Krick, 31, of Millersville, Md., was absolved in the death of Robert A. Dulin, 30, 1802 M street southeast, but was charged with having bad brakes immediately after the jury rendered a verdict.

Dulin died instantly Monday when he was crushed under Krick's truck at Fifteenth and H streets northeast. Detective Sergt. Aubrey M. Tolson said he believed the strong wind caused Dulin to lose his balance and fall from a loading platform. Medical testimony at the inquiry showed Dulin's blood contained a high percentage of alcohol.

Traffic Policeman J. B. Singleton arrested Krick on the bad brake charge. He was required to post $50 collateral for his appearance in Traffic Court today.

Murray Beardsley, 25, 1829 Lamont street northwest, driver of the car in which Burke was riding, received concussion of the brain, severe lacerations and possible fractured skull. Emmett Bonde, 42, 625 Keefer street northwest, is believed to have sustained a fractured skull.

Nine-year-old Gene Guthrie, 816 Sixth street northwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital for minor cuts and shock after walking into the side of a street car at Fifth and G streets northwest. Police said Arthur W. Hall, 32, was motorman of the car.

Bob Burns Says—

I'll havet'a admit that city people can correct my kinfolks on the use of English and some other unimportant things like that, but when you come right down to real common sense knowledge about the important things, I'll put my kinfolks up against anybody.

Last Sunday, after church the minister complained of havin' a headache. An elderly, society lady spoke up and says "Well, if you just put a cabbage leaf from the north end of a field on top of your head, it'll cure it in a minute."

My Grandma spoke up and says "That cabbage leaf won't do a mite of good unless you put a black button upside down on top of it."

Should America Agree to Disarm?

Early this week Japan's Foreign Minister hinted that his country might be interested in a new international pact to limit naval building.

Should the United States halt its proposed naval program if other countries will sign a disarmament treaty?

Read what the American public has to say on this vital question in a Nationwide survey reported in tomorrow's Post.

Chinese Held For Slaying of Laundryman

Indictment Returned Even Though Police Find Motive Lacking.

The District grand jury yesterday indicted William Derr, 36, Chinese resident of Fall River, Mass., for the garroting of Quan You, 55, Chinese laundryman who was found slain in his shop at 1405 H street northeast.

Despite the lack of a motive, according to police, the indictment was returned because of the testimony of a colored employe of You's, who identified Derr as one of the late callers on the night of his slaying. Both Derr and You were from Fall River, Mass., and were acquainted, police said.

Included in other indictments were ones charging Stanley P. Sampson, 34, with robbing a bus driver, and another alleging Frank Elmo Byrd, 30, had attempted to shoot a policeman February 22 after he had been arrested for loitering. Police said they heard a click and found that a loaded gun in Sampson's pocket revealed that one cartridge bore the mark of the hammer.

Others indicted were Basile Ferro, nonsupport; Norman S. Deal, Albert Lloyd, James Lloyd and Frank W. Nicklo, joyriding; Robert Lee Bell, James Foster, Charles Harris, William J. Steinbaugh, Robert Mawson, Crosby Littlejohn, Herman A. Key, John T. Ballinger, grand larceny; Allen Smith, Fred D. Mason, Janette Hard and Wallace Stanchel, housebreaking.

Argel R. Boggs, Paul O. Richardson, William S. Harley, Morris H. Williams and Grafton D. Copeland, robbery; John Henry Lyons, Matthew Thomas, Louis Mann, assault with a dangerous weapon; James Robert Holt, Horace W. Butler and Herbert W. Ottey, narcotic violations; John Carbone and Arthur Louis Polk, gaming charges.

N. Y. Editor Urges Strong U. S. Navy

A Navy powerful enough to make European nations respect the United States was advocated last night by William Griffin, editor of the New York Enquirer, before the New York State Democratic Club rally and dance at the Democratic Club, 1500 Rhode Island avenue northwest.

"No nation would risk war with the United States if the United States were prepared," asserted Griffin.

Other speakers included Representatives Eugene Keough, William T. Byrne and James J. Ianzetta, of New York.

Rep. Transue to Speak To D. C. Michigan Club

Representtive Andrew J. Transue, of Flint, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker when the Michigan-Washington Democratic Club meets at 1500 Rhode Island avenue tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

In the absence of Michael Gold, the president, who is on a vacation, the first vice president, Edward J. Hayes, trial examiner for the United States National Bituminous Coal Commission and former prosecuting attorney of Detroit, will preside.

Phi Sigma Sigma Gives Dance Saturday Night

George Washington University's chapter of Phi Sigma Sigma sorority will give a dance for the benefit of the Flora Alpert Zucker Memorial Fund at the Carlton Hotel Saturday night.

The fund was established in memory of the first deceased alumnus of the chapter here. It is used for purchasing corrective medical appliances for children of indigent parents.

Friends to Give Dinner For Fascism Opponent

Friends of Randolfo Pacciardi, former Italian newspaper man and opponent of Fascism, will give a dinner in his honor at 7 o'clock tonight at the Continental Hotel, North Capitol and D streets. Representative John T. Bernard, of Minnesota, and Charles Edward Russell will speak on the Spanish war.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

A Lucky Grand Slam.

The lamentable fact that justice, if not blind, is, at best, near-sighted leads to many an undeserved windfall at the bridge table. It sometimes appears as though bad bids are rewarded and good bids penalized. This, however, is illusory—in the long run, old man "law of averages" catches up with the culprits.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
4♠	Pass	6♣	Pass
6♠	Pass	7♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's jump to six clubs over four spades was the sort of bid that is typical of the "selfish" player. After South's tremendous jump to four spades North knew very well that his own ace and one spade were more than adequate support, and that he should have persisted with his own suit to the level of six was nothing short of atrocious, particularly since his own suit was a minor and since he was playing match-point duplicate. Apparently, when South went on to six spades, North changed his mind and abrutly decided, quite unwarrantedly, to support spades to a grand slam. That he had been guilty of trapping his own partner never would have occurred to North.

West, shrewdly realizing that South was probably void of clubs, did not make the mistake of opening the ace—he chose the heart king instead. Unfortunately, from East's point of view, this lead was equally futile. Declarer won and ruffed a heart, then led the club king through East. When East failed to put up the ace, South decided that East didn't have it, so declarer ruffed the club and ruffed another heart with the spade ace, then ruffed a second club, and ran off every trump. Upon leading the last trump South still had the A-10 of diamonds and a low heart. West had the club ace, and queen and two diamonds. On the trump lead West had to let go a diamond, and dummy then discarded its last club, keeping the K-J-8 of diamonds. Declarer then cashed the ace of diamonds and led the ten toward dummy. West's queen appeared and made the grand slam a lay-down.

North probably congratulated himself on his own "splendid bidding." But if West had had the inspiration to open a trump, or if East had had the diamond quene, North would have had no chance to be complacent.

Police Jury Trials Scheduled for 24 'Accident' Deaths

Despite official reluctance, the negligent homicide law will be invoked in every traffic death case of that type in Police Court, it was determined at a conference of assistant United States attorney Tuesday.

The conference was called because, by strict interpretation of the law, every "negligent homicide" case reported by a coroner's jury must be prosecuted in Police Court, even though there is no evidence on which to base conviction.

Result of the decision is that 24 cases of that type on the Police Court docket will be sent before juries. It was emphasized that reason for the conference was to determine what to do with cases in which there was no possibility of conviction.

To try such cases causes loss of the time of the court and prosecutors, it was stated. Attending the conference were John W. Fihelly, John J. Wilson and David A. Hart, all assistant United States attorneys. They said the problem will be studied further for a solution.

Parents Blamed For Baby's Death

Narrows, Va., March 2 (AP).—Dr. M. C. Newton, Giles County health officer, expressed belief today 8-month-old Faris Nathan Deaton probably would not have died had a physician been called to lance an abscess in the child's throat.

Paul and Ruby Deaton, parents of the child, were free under $750 bond each, pending hearing on charges of criminal negligence in the infant's death. The family belonged to a religious group which forbade treatment by a physician.
